Chats With Parents CHILDREN'S LOVE

By Alice Judson Peale Billy's mother frequently refers to him as her "little sweetheart." The designation is more revealing than she realizes. She admits that she loves him with devotion; that he is to her the most precious thing on earth. But when it happens that absorbed in play he forgets to give her the whole-hearted personal response to which she is accustomed she is annoyed and shows her annoyance by treating him coldly.

Returning one evening from an absence of several days, for which she had taken no trouble to prepare him she was hurt deeply when he scarcely returned her greeting. Billy, for his part, was hurt too. Had she not deserted him? It would be hard to tell which of the two, the mother or her 4-year-old son behaved more childishly. It would seem that the child had the more justification for his behavior.

One cannot expect a child to adjust himself to a lover-like capriciousness in his parents. He does not understand a love that goes from one extreme to another. He is unskilled at dramatizing his emotion, and cannot find his way in a situation that demands a quality of feeling of which he is not capable. He is merely baffled, confused and hurt. In the long run he learns to love such a mother at one moment and hate her intensely the next. He learns to sulk and to tease by pretending indifference or to get what he wants by showing especial affection.

Children are not little sweethearts, they are children. And they do not need passionate admiration that asks a like return, but rather quiet steady affection which they may take for granted.

One-Day Meeting Now Under Way At Church Here

A one-day conference sponsored by the United Christian Missionary society of the Central Church of Christ opened this morning at the local church, one of the tenth annual series being held in various states and provinces of the United States and Canada from Oct. 31 until Nov. 18 and from Nov. 28 until Dec. 16. Commencing the morning program were addresses by Rev. C. E. Burgess, pastor of the Christian church at Boise; Charles G. Eason, for 40 years a missionary of India; and P. M. Rogers, a secretary and head of the department of benevolence of the United Christian Missionary society of the Disciples of Christ.

A dinner and program will be features of the session this evening, and the event is open to the public for a nominal sum. Mr. Eason will be one of the speakers. He is native of Bombay, India, where he was born of English parents, and where he also received his education. He has an intimate knowledge of Indian affairs which he discussed this morning and which he will again speak about this evening.

Mr. Rogers was formerly field representative in California for the United Christian Missionary society, and will discuss his work in that and also in his present field. Mr. Eason also will be a featured speaker at the banquet, Rev. Paul De P. Mortimore, pastor of the La Grande church, said this morning.

Official Count Is Completed In Wallowa County

By W. L. Flower (Observer Correspondent) ENTERPRISE, Ore. (Special) — County Clerk D. B. Reavis has completed the official count of Wallowa county votes and the result saw no upset over the unofficial results. The official count, however, gives the following results on state and national offices:

For president: Hoover 772, Roosevelt 1790; for U. S. senator, Gleason 1059, Steiwer 1214; U. S. representative, Brady 144, Butler 749, Pierce 1589; state secretary, Hoss 1229, Wisecarver 1030; state treasurer, Holman 994, Maloney 1298; attorney general, Dodson 1004, Van Winkle 1240.

Joint senator, Union and Wallowa county, Eberhard 998, Hess 1486; representative, Union and Wallowa county, L. F. Allen, unopposed, 1631.

Judicial ballot results: supreme court, Bean 1647, Hewitt 655; Bailey 1885, unopposed; circuit judge, Union and Wallowa counties, Knowles 1548, Ringo 1144.

The official count showed that prohibition repeal carried by 41 votes, the county vote being very evenly divided. Another close one was the tax supervising bill which carried by 23 votes. Officially Wallowa county voted yes for taxpayer's qualification, yes for judge to try certain criminal trials, yes for six per cent limitation, yes on oleomargarine bill, yes on Rogue river bill, no on higher education bill, yes on prohibition repeal, yes on freight truck and bus bill, no on college moving bill, no on tax and debt control, yes on tax supervising, yes on income tax and decidedly no on the power bill.
