

Conference Elevens Taught Not To Insult a Gentleman

By Bill Parker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The Centenary College football team, which is going to play a grand football machine going full steam ahead, are a double pain in the gridiron records of Southwest conference teams.

Several years back Centenary, coached by H. H. Norton, requested admittance to the Southwest conference. The request was frowned upon and shelved. Since then the Gentlemen have repeated the request each year at the annual conference meeting without avail, although Centenary abides by all conference by-laws and regulations.

A gentleman of the Old South can tolerate just about as many rebuffs. The Gents started this season by beating the powerful University of Texas team, 13 to 0. They followed by whipping the Southern Methodist Mustangs, 18 to 7. They continued by beating Texas A. & M., 7 to 0.

They play the University of Arkansas November 26, and already conference followers are sending the Razorbacks messages of condolence. The Centenary team is one of the smallest now playing major football. Ralph Muff and Harold Olin, elusive backs, are midgets, but Coach Ray Morrison of Southern Methodist said they charged with power enough for men weighing 200 pounds or more.

Muff is a triple threat star, while Olin is a master at reversing his field and galloping for touchdowns. Olin, who made the lanky lines of Southern Methodist, Texas and the Aggies look bad, weighs 145 pounds. Paul (Horse) Geisler, a junior end, is rated one of the best to show on a Southwest gridiron this year.

Next meeting of the Southwest conference will see Centenary again knocking for admittance, and observers predict another refusal. If this proves correct, the Gentlemen may cause conference officials' faces to turn a deep crimson by asking: "Yeah, and how about those licks we gave your teams this season?"

to the south. The federal courier attack was reported supported by the nationalist political group.

Federal troops were reported marching toward Comayagua in anticipation of an attack, and fighting was reported at Puerto Cortes.

The nationalist conservative candidate, Gen. Tiburcio Carías Andino, won the presidency in the recent election, defeating Angel Zúñiga Huete, the liberal.

General Carías' inauguration has not yet taken place and President Mejía Collindres remains at the head of the government. He is a political ally of General Carías.

HEAVY RAINFALL HERE THIS YEAR

Forty below in the Yukon and a promise of gales off the Pacific Northwest coast was the weather bureau offering for the Pacific area today.

The lowest temperature this season on the coast was the 40 below zero, weather recorded early this morning at Eagle, Y. T.

Storm warnings were posted for the Oregon-Washington coast today. The United States weather bureau predicted southeast gales would blow over the western parts of the two states for the next 24 hours, bringing general rains as far south as Eureka, Cal. The forecast of heavy rains threatened to aggravate flood conditions in southwest Washington.

Moderate weather for California, with some cloudiness in the northern half and warm temperatures in the south was predicted.

LOTS OF RAIN LIKELY
SEATTLE, Nov. 15 (AP) — The weather bureau here today forecast strong south and southeast winds and gales following a rapidly falling barometer, and storm warnings were hoisted along the Washington and Oregon coasts.

Warmer temperatures, melting snows in the mountains presaged a possible revival of flood conditions in Western Washington such as prevailed Saturday and Sunday.

The storm was centering about 500 miles off the northern coast of Vancouver Island. Lawrence C. Fisher, chief meteorologist, said, and was moving rapidly eastward, gaining in intensity.

"There is going to be rain and lots of it tonight and tomorrow," Fisher said.

can go over the entire situation.

"I had already arranged to meet a number of the Democratic leaders of the present congress late this month at Warm Springs. It will be helpful for me to have your views and all pertinent information when I meet with them.

"I hope that you also will see them at the earliest opportunity because, in the last analysis, the immediate question raised by the British, French and other nations creates a responsibility which rests upon those now vested with executive and legislative authority.

"My kindest regards.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Mr. Hoover's invitation, which reached the New York governor Sunday, said he felt the outgoing and incoming chief executives should talk over the national and inter-governmental problems which would carry over into the next administration. The president pointed out that several nations have indicated hope that payment of their war debts due next month might be deferred until the question could be taken up at a conference. He also referred to the approaching disarmament conference and the pending world economic conference.

RAIL INTERESTS PROTEST TREATY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP) — Representatives of railroad interests today re-emphasized before a senate sub-committee opposition to the St. Lawrence waterways treaty between the United States and Canada.

Fred N. Oliver, general counsel of the Security Owners association, composed of owners of railroad securities, said the project would further endanger investment in American railroads "already threatened by adverse conditions."

A foreign relations sub-committee, headed by Senator Borah (R., Idaho), began hearings on the St. Lawrence pact yesterday.

Oliver testified after Alfred P. Thon, general counsel of the Railway Executives association, who presented the objections of the railroads themselves against the treaty.

Following arguments by Thon, Oliver said "the added facilities proposed are wholly unnecessary and even wasteful from a public point of view and no public good will be derived therefrom."

Outlines Difficulties
Outlining financial difficulties of the railroad, Oliver said:

"The problem now facing the American people, is whether or not the existing abundance of transportation facilities will be able profitably to survive rather than new facilities should be created."

"It seems to us that there is no justification whatsoever for vast expenditures by the government for the purpose of developing competition for our present facilities, thereby lending aid to their more complete destruction."

Oliver said the government was now aiding three competing types of transportation, the railroads, the trucks and the inland waterways.

Thon was asked by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) if his views represented all class 1 railway executives.

"A're there no middle west executives who, if free to express their opinions would feel that there was a definite advantage for them?" Vandenberg asked.

"Whatever has been their views in the past," Thon replied, "they have come to the conclusion that this is a sound position."

Senator Walsh (D., Mont.) asked for the names of some representatives of western roads leading into Chicago who supported Thon's views.

The railroad spokesman named Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific; Henry A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; C. T. Jaffray, of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie; and Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago & Northwestern.

"I am sure that will be most interesting to those in our part of the country," Walsh commented.

Dull Day In The Stock Exchange

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP) — Selling dwindled to a few trickles in today's stock market, but the list failed to develop important rallying power, after yesterday's setback. A slight upturn in the middle of the day was largely lost, and plus and minus signs were mixed at the finish, with changes largely narrow. The turnover approximated a million shares.

JESSE COUSINS, ALLEGED SLAYER, IS UNDER ARREST

had furnished the man with supplies, but Cousins was silent on that point.

Tip Leads to Capture
The capture resulted from a tip given Deputy Sheriff Charles Thurman, who had been working the case since the shooting. Sheriff McCrute, who submitted to a major operation only two weeks ago, left his sick bed to lead the posse of six officers.

Turner and Vlasich drove up to the Cousins place near Proebstel, Wash., Sept. 20. They ordered two quarts of moonshine liquor from Cousins, police quoted Vlasich as telling them, and after paying for the liquor, informed Cousins he was under arrest.

Without warning, Cousins whipped out a .38 caliber pistol and fired six shots, police quoted Vlasich as saying, but the bullets failed to hit Turner's body and three striking Vlasich, Turner died almost instantly, and Vlasich succumbed here several weeks later.

Brother Exonerated
Jesse's brother, Louis Cousins, was arrested at the Cousins place by a posse the next day, but later was exonerated by Vlasich of any part in the shooting.

Cousins, asleep when the posse surrounded the shack, offered no resistance. He told officers he had been considering giving himself up.

CALIFORNIA PUSHES IRRIGATION

SACRAMENTO, Cal. (AP) — In the 45 years since enactment of a state irrigation act 167 irrigation districts have been formed in California. Twenty-five of them are inactive, while those still retaining their districts control approximately 4,000,000 acres, reports the state engineer.

PRISONER TRANSFERRED

PORTLAND, Nov. 15 (AP) — Harry Riley, charged in two separate indictments with first degree murder following the slaying of his wife, Hilda Riley, and her father, Carey Thornberg, was brought to the county jail here today from Burns after officers there concluded the Harney county jail was unsafe.

Colorado River Gives Up Bed So That Hoover Dam Work May Proceed

By Walter B. Clausen
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
BOULDER CITY, Nev., Nov. 15 (AP) — Diving underground to the tune of 150,000 pounds of exploding dynamite, the Colorado river was giving up its bed Monday for nearly a mile so Hoover dam can be built.

The blast Sunday noon was like Titan's alarm clock. The job of actually ousting the mighty, turbulent river and sending it through two man-made holes in the mile high canyon wall proved to be a 24-hour task.

Completing of the earthfill dam to divert all waters through two Arizona side tunnels, each 50 feet wide, was a rush job, lasting through the night to noon Monday.

During the night about half the river flow was pouring through the outer diversion tunnel, the remaining flow rushing under a trestle from which great trucks were dumping rock at the rate of over 50 tons a minute to complete the barrier.

First Major Step Finished
This marks the accomplishment of the first major step in the $155,000,000 project for electric power, flood control of Imperial Valley, reclamation of vast areas and development of domestic water supply for Southern California cities.

The great blast that marked this achievement was one of the most spectacular ever witnessed by construction engineers here. Three thousand holes, each filled with 50 pounds of dynamite, were drilled into canyon walls, on both Arizona and Nevada sides, for a distance of about a quarter mile.

Like a machine gun with a calibre of a 16-inch rifle, detonations rent the air and great clouds of dust surged down the Canyon in rolling waves extending a mile high.

For more than a minute, that seemed like hours, detonations continued as the sides of the canyon walls fell into the river bed.

At the same time minor blasts blew out a temporary coffer dam at the outer diversion tunnel intake, also of an earth barrier at the tunnel outlet. Before the smoke and powder fumes cleared from the canyon, a large volume of muddy water surged down through the tunnel as the river took to its newly made subterranean course.

Year Ahead of Schedule
It was minutes before the blasting master's siren sounded that all danger of falling rock was past. Then with a rush more than a thousand workers went to their tasks, with platoons of big steam shovels biting into loose rock, and streams of dump trucks like ants moved from shovel to the earth fill dams to finish the barriers that will keep all water out of the dam site.

Excavation for Hoover dam will proceed immediately. Walker R. Young, reclamation service construction engineer, and Frank T. Crowe, chief field engineer of the six companies, general contractors, said that work will continue to be pushed with all speed. Already they are a year ahead of schedule.

Butter Prices Advance; Action Is No Surprise

PORTLAND, Nov. 15 (AP) — The advance in the price of butter here was by no means a surprise although there was not the slightest doubt that some of the strength was artificial.

The advance included 1c lb. on all cubes except firsts which were up 1 1/2c lb. The sharpest advance in the lower grade stock indicated the source of much of the trade's strength — the cold storage interests who are forcing values in order to grab greater profits.

There has of late been a very liberal increase in receipts from out-state points, much more than making up for the slight decrease in centralizer churning. This would have taken care of the demand very easily were it not for the fact that consumption is gaining.

The advance of 1c lb. in butterfat followed the general rise in butter.

Market for eggs continues to reflect a strong tone at the recent general advance quoted by the local commission. Trade in pullet stock appears to have been overquoted and resulted in more demand going into other sized offerings.

Spring chicken market continues to reflect only weakness and a very sluggish demand according to trade leaders. Hens were showing a good call for both medium and lightweights. Heavy stuff still holding.

More than passed strength was reflected in the market for country killed calves. Sales of top stuff are being readily made up to 7c lb.

Trifle showing of strength was suggested in the market for country killed hogs along general sales are showing around 5 1/2c lb. Lambs were in very good call up to 9c with a call for ewes up to 3c lb.

What Ho! East in Throes of a Comeback

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
NEW YORK (AP) — The eastern football fan, inclined of recent years to apologize rather than boast of the section's talent, is enjoying a revival of spirit.

What with such teams as Pittsburgh, Army, Colgate, Brown and Columbia on the loose all at one time, the eastern branch of the football family scarcely can be regarded as a poor relation.

Of the five aforementioned eleven, Army alone has tasted defeat at the hands of a team from the west, that is, the hands of Pittsburgh's powerful army.

Colgate's Red Raiders, sweeping through their first seven games, piled up 227 points without having their goal line crossed.

The speedy, versatile Brown Bears, featuring the very latest thing in offensive tactics, a triple wingback, trimmed their first six rivals, including Yale and Harvard.

Lou Little's Columbia Lions, leg by the brilliant Cliff Montgomery, scored seven consecutive triumphs, mostly over pretty stout opposition, with 193 points to opponents' 25.

The West Pointers, after a heart-breaking overtime defeat by Pittsburgh, came back to crush Harvard, 46 to 0, and right now are regarded by many experts as the most violent aggregation in the east.

Seek Rose Bowl Bid
Despite the most arduous schedule undertaken by any team in the country this season, Pitt stands an even chance of winding up undefeated and making a strong bow for participation in the Rose Bowl classic at Pasadena New Year's day.

Only scoreless ties with Ohio State and Nebraska mar the record of the Panthers, who have yet to tackle Carnegie Tech and Stanford. If they win those three, it will be very tough to overlook them when the Rose Bowl committee starts looking over the prospects.

Pittsburgh doubtless would welcome a chance to atone for that 47-14 plastering received from Southern California the last time it carried the east's colors out that way.

Colgate and Brown also are said to covet the Rose Bowl assignment, but Columbia and Army, for various reasons, are not interested.

RECOVER FROM SHOCK
Although slightly dazed at finding all this gridiron gold in their own back yard after so many lean years, eastern fans are bearing up very well.

Those who go in for such things profess to see what amounts to a football renaissance. The east, where the game began, is about to start playing the thing again, they believe.

After bowing in obscurity these several years to the south, the mid-west and the far-west, the section is going to set up its own dynasty, maybe.

Two Verdicts Are Affirmed By Court

SALEM, Nov. 15 (AP) — The supreme court today affirmed verdicts of the lower courts in two damage cases in which plaintiffs were awarded a total of $30,000. Only two written opinions were handed down.

On an appeal from Multnomah county, the verdict awarding $25,000 to Anna Nordland, widow of John Nordland who was killed May 7, 1930 while a brakeman on the Lewis & Clark Railway company, was appealed by the railway company. The court upheld the verdict and decree of Judge H. K. Zimmerman in an opinion written by Justice George Roseman.

In the second case, an opinion written by Justice P. B. Kelly upheld the verdict of $5,000 awarded Edward Fitzgerald for personal injuries, against the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company. The case was appealed from Multnomah county from the circuit court presided over by Judge W. A. Ekwall.

Fitzgerald in his complaint stated he sustained serious injuries as the result of falling down a dark stairway maintained by the railroad company for use of its employees.

The court also denied the petition for rehearing in the will case of Taylor vs. Wait.
