NERVOUS WOMEN
Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I am so nervous it seems as though I should fly" . . . "My nerves are all on edge" . . . "I wish I were dead" . . . how often have we heard these expressions from some woman who has become so tired and run-down that her nerves can no longer stand the strain.

No woman should allow herself to drift into this condition if she can help herself. She should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. For nearly sixty years women have taken this wonderful tonic to give them renewed strength and vigor.

98 out of every 100 women who report to us say that they are benefited by this medicine. Buy a bottle from your druggist today . . . and watch the results.

Howard's Going -Sorry, But His England Calls

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Leslie Howard is giving up a fortune in contract offers in order to go to England for a picture and a play.

Any embarrassment he might feel at turning down bids from leading feminine stars who want him for their films is concealed as he finishes his starring role in the film version of "Berkeley Square."

The English star explains politely that he is engaged to do a film in London for Gilbert Miller, the stage producer who came to his aid in presenting "Berkeley Square" on the stage, that he owes a special debt of gratitude to Miller and would not think of failing him.

Up, Up—And Still 'No'

The bidding studios meet this explanation with offers of larger salaries, larger even than he asks—and Howard is a business man as well as an actor. But he is still going to London, to be away six months or more.

The latest job he refused was the lead opposite Garbo in "Queen Christina." Even if he had no agreement with Miller, it may be that a star of Howard's astuteness would not care to appear in a film which, if precedent is followed, will be "thrown" entirely to another star.

Howard has built his career on business as well as aristic principles, and business sense would dictate the keeping of a weather eye on his future regardless of present monetary inducements.

A Little Psychology

"Berkeley Square" is only one of three pictures currently filming that are challenging the screen's old bugaboo regarding "psychological drama." It presents the difficult task of projecting a modern man's thoughts and personality into a past era, forming a combination of comedy, romance and fantasy — the latter a word at which producers traditionally shudder.

Another is "Night Flight," requiring the director, Clarence Brown, to convey the thought that the lives of four different characters are really one composite life. The task is as ticklish as it sounds.

A third is "The Power and the Glory," unique in that it begins with the hero's death and proceeds, through a series of highlights, to relate a life story ending with his birth.

Non-Stop Flyers Fall Short of Goal

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, June 13 (AP) — Capt. J. Errol Boyd and two companions worked today to get their airplane out of mud flats near St. Marc, Haiti, where they were forced down after flying 2471 miles nonstop from New York.

Capt. Boyd, Robert G. Lyon, the co-pilot, and H. P. Davis, an observer, suffered no injury when their ship, the Columbia, came down last night. The plane was not damaged.

A marine corps airplane was ready to fly to their aid and the American aviators expected to leave for Port Au Prince later today for an official reception. After resting today and tomorrow, they planned to fly back to New York, whence they took off Sunday on their good will journey.

2 Killed in Plane Crash Near Boise

BOISE, Idaho, June 13 (AP)—Flight Lieutenants George B. Halfett and Whitney Close of the 116th observation squadron from Felts Field, Spokane, Wash., were killed here today, crushed in the wreckage of their planes which crashed during maneuvers with the Idaho national guard.

The bodies were badly mangled.

Observers said the two planes were making an attack dive on a group of national guardsmen in simulation of wartime conditions when the craft locked wings. They crashed about 200 yards apart.

Subsidizing exports of ready-made clothing by the Polish government has resulted in a steady increase in shipments to Great Britain, France and Holland.

LOVE LETTERS OF IMMORTALS SHOWN NEW YORK PUBLIC

By Dale Harrison

NEW YORK (AP) — Love letters of immortals are in the showcase here so that the public might read the hearts of dead men.

In an exhibition of amatorpistles placed on display by the Rosenbach company the passions of Benjamin Franklin, Nathan Hale, Lord Nelson and many others are bared.

Lord Nelson wrote to his "Dearest Emma," stating he would "rejoice, my Emma, to have you in my arms when I need not envy a king." James Boswell, who wrote a "Life of Johnson" and lived a life of Lotharlo, was represented with an epistle indited to "My Dearest Life."

Thomas Jefferson is shown in one letter to have ideas of his own on marriage. To his friend, William Fleming, he wrote: "You say you are determined to be married as soon as possible, and advise me to do the same. No thank ye!"

Benjamin Franklin, sometimes called "the first civilized American," wrote to Madame Brillon:

"I had not the happiness, my dear friend, to see you on sday evening, because my horses were at Paris with the young man, and I have neither feet nor wings. If I had wings, I think I should have flown to you, and I think I should sometimes scratch on the window of your bedchamber. It is very mischievous of nature to deny us the advantages that she wastes so profusely on all the little good-for-nothing birds and flies."

One of the most torrid of the love letters on exhibition is that of Constance Lloyd to Oscar Wilde:

"My darling love—you take all my strength away, I have no power to do anything but just love you when you are with me. Every moment you are with me I worship you more, my whole life is yours . . . Do you believe that I love you most passionately with all the strength of my heart and mind . . . and when I have you for my husband I will hold you fast with chains of love and devotion so that you shall never leave me, or love anyone as long as I can love and comfort."

Most fascinating of all is a letter of Edgar Allen Poe to a friend, a letter reciting a love deep, moving and tragic. The letter tells of the recurring illnesses of "a wife whom I loved as no man ever loved before." With each recurring attack of her illness he "felt all the agonies of her death — and at each accession of the disorder I loved her more dearly and clung to her life with more desperate pertinacity . . . I became insane, with long intervals of horrible sanity. During these fits of absolute unconsciousness I drank. God only knows how often or how much. As a matter of fact my enemies refered the insanity to the drink, rather than the drink to the insanity. I had, indeed, nearly abandoned all hope of a permanent cure when I found one in the death of my wife. This I can and do endure as a man — it was the horrible never-ending oscillation between hope and despair which I could not longer have endured without total loss of reason. In the death of what was my life, then, I received a new but—oh, God, how melancholy an existence!"

Cloudy weather prevailed today bringing a drop in temperature of approximately 9 degrees, according to unofficial thermometers.

Mildness...fragrance...purity how real they are in Luckies!

Have you ever happened to wonder why "Toasting" is so important to Lucky Strikes? It's really on account of you. For "Toasting" plays a bigger part than you might think in making Luckies so mild and fragrant and pure. Remember, your cigarette comes in rather close personal contact with you, and if it weren't for "Toasting's" purifying heat, even Lucky Strike's choice tobaccos could scarcely be as mild, so pure. So you see what a big part "Toasting" has in making "Luckies Please!"

—because "It's toasted"
