

Out of the Tuna Can

HOT STUFFED EGGS
8 hard-cooked eggs.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
Few drops onion juice.
1 small can White Star tuna.
1 tablespoon prepared mustard.
2 tablespoons mayonnaise.
Cut hard-cooked eggs in half lengthwise, and take out the yolks keeping the whites carefully in shape. Mash yolks, add tuna, onion juice, lemon juice, mayonnaise. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Put mixture back in egg whites, set in a buttered pan and bake for 15 minutes in a slow oven. When the points of the stuffed centers are brown, remove from the oven. Serve with tomato sauce made by heating the contents of one can (undiluted) of tomato soup. These eggs are also good served cold.

TUNA MOLD
1 large can White Star tuna.
1/2 cup stuffed olives.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
1/4 cup cold water.
3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced.
1 tablespoon chopped capers.
2 teaspoons plain gelatin.
1/2 cup mayonnaise.
Separate tuna into flakes with a fork. Add sliced hard-cooked eggs, olives, capers, lemon juice and parsley. Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes, then dissolve over hot water. Blend gelatin with mayonnaise thoroughly. Turn tuna, egg and seasonings into the mayonnaise and mix lightly, but well. Turn mixture into a dry mold and chill. Turn out on a bed of lettuce and fill small lettuce cups with more mayonnaise.

THIS INDIAN PALM TREE BOWED DOWN EACH EVENING AS THE TEMPLE BELLS WERE CALLING THE PEOPLE TO PRAYER. LATER, IT WAS FOUND THAT TEMPERATURE WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE PECULIAR ACTIONS.

AN ECLIPSE OF THE MOON IS VISIBLE TO ABOUT THREE-FIFTHS OF THE EARTH, WHILE ONLY ONE-FIFTH OF THE EARTH CAN SEE MOST SOLAR ECLIPSES.

A LUNAR eclipse can always be seen at the same time over the whole section of the earth on which the moon is shining at the time, while in the region over which the sun is shining, various sections see a solar eclipse at various times.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Oh, gee!" said Goldy. "I can't wait to reach that light. It will be great to once more breathe some nice, fresh air. Come on, let's run a bit."

"The tunnel darkness frightened me, and it's as damp as it can be. I know we'll all feel better when we once get out of it."

"Now wait," snapped Duncy. "You might fall, and that would be no fun at all. I'm going to be real careful just as long as we're in here."

"The giant whom we left behind may wake up and then try to find just where we've gone. If he does that, there'll be a lot to fear."

So, on they went till Doty cried, "Ah, we will shortly be outside. They reached the tunnel exit and then raced beneath the sun."

"Oh, my, this is a pretty scene, with all the grass so bright and green," cried Goldy. "Let's just play a while. 'Twill be a lot of fun."

"You two girls play and I will plan what we should do next, if I can. It looks as if we'll have to hike, if no one comes along. 'The other Tynies, near or far from here, must wonder where we are. I wish the giant's eagle would return. He's big and strong."

"I'll bet he could, without much fuss, swoop down and carry all of us." Just then they heard a real loud roar. Wee Duncy turned around.

"The giant's coming," he cried out. "He'll catch us all, without a doubt." The giant then ran up. He said, "I knew you would be found!"

"I guess you think this is a shame. Why, I was near here when you came out of my private tunnel. Now I'll take you all with me."

"Each one of you will have to work. I'll quickly teach you not to shirk. You haven't fooled this giant. Not one bit, as you can see!"
