DEPRESSION BRINGS SOCIAL CHANGES

The price may be pretty high but the depression is at least leading the federal government to tackle a lot of jobs that reformers have been urging, fruitlessly, for years.

These jobs are being attempted in the hope that they will put men back to work, smooth out the rough places on the road to recovery and allay social unrest.

Some people have been advocating them for a long time—and, for their pains, have been denounced as radicals, visionaries and impractical theorists. Now there is every indication that most of these jobs will be done, not because the country is wholly sold on them in theory, but because any club is good enough to hit the depression with.

First of all, there is the matter of city slums. For years social workers and others have been telling us that bad housing is a cancer in municipal life.

Then there is the much talked-of plan by which industry and the government would join forces to check over-production, spread work, install shorter hours, eliminate sweat shops and adopt minimum wage scales.

There is, also, Muscle Shoals. Ever since the war a handful of men has tried to make it the basis for a great governmental experiment in power production—a laboratory in which some profoundly important theories about industry, agriculture and public utility management could be tested.

Reforestation on a huge scale is being attempted because of the depression. Government economy has become a fact because of the depression. We are approaching a common sense attitude on tariffs because of the depression.

Nothing in recent history is stranger than the way the depression has brought a round-about victory to the reformers.

NAVY CUSSING

Admiral Leigh, Commander-in-Chief of the Navy, has directed all his commanding officers to "take immediate steps to eradicate the undesirable habit of using profane and obscene language, and to take suitable disciplinary action in the case of each infraction reported."

This means that the sailor will have to be careful of his language in the future. The order has been likened by some to that of Secretary of Navy Daniels when he took liquor out of the Navy.

On the other hand, the New York Sun thinks the admiral wishes to prevent "the use not common nor more reprehensible in the Navy and Army than among civilians, of trite phrases, profane or obscene, lightly uttered, blasphemies repeated by rote, impurities and indecencies that fall from lips behind which there is no thought of their meaning, no conception of their import."

Announcements by President H. E. Inlow of the program of the summer session at the Eastern Oregon Normal school formed the program at the opening assembly of the Eastern Oregon Normal school yesterday at 10 o'clock at the normal school auditorium.

Andy Mellow is being investigated about a little deal in stock sales wherein he is supposed to have suffered a loss of $6,700,000 so it would take the swelling out of his income tax return. Then, it is said he bought the stock back when the tax collector got out of the house.

HITLERITES IN RAIDS ON NATIONALISTS (Continued From Page One) ionic conference, was remaining incommunicado. Some quarters asserted today's events would result in his resignation from the cabinet, in which he is minister of economics and agriculture. Hitler Now Dictates (Before Hitler gained power in Germany the Nationalists were his allies. He no longer needs them as he has a majority in the reichstag without them and he has effectively nullified the power of the legislative anyway.) The governments dissolution order was directed against the Nationalist fighting units, which are comparable to the Nazi storm troopers. In addition the Bismarck Bund for youths of the Nationalist party was suppressed. The fighting units were reported dissolved in Saxony, the free state of Oldenburg, Wurttemberg, East Prussia and Prussia, including Berlin.

ACTION MAY BE NECESSARY TO SAVE MEET (Continued From Page One) ence. "We demand concrete decisions and not signatures at the bottom of papers which the wind will immediately carry away," he declared. "To arrive at this end we bring you our entire aid." Later he emphasized this with: "I repeat that the French delegation brings here France's full aid to the success of the conference." James M. Cox represented the Americans at this session. M. Bonnet indicated last night that he intended to bring up the matter. Senator James Couzens, who listened attentively to the Bonnet speech at the conference, characterized it as "very temperate." "He emphasized stabilization but did not give any way to bring it about," Mr. Couzens said.

WHEAT PLANS ARE MADE KNOWN HERE (Continued From Page One) tion by those participating of not to exceed 20 per cent, and the inclusion of what amounts to partial crop insurance. "The domestic allotment plan has definitely been selected as the one to put in force," experts here said after a study of the provisions, "and it will be based on the proportionate domestic use of the average wheat production in this country for the five-year period 1928-1932." The information disclosed that the government has complete production reports by counties for that period which list Oregon as 13th in the wheat producing states with an average annual production for the period of 21,205,000 bushels. Average wheat acreage in Oregon for the period totaled 1,046,000 of which 869,000 was devoted to winter wheat, and 177,000 to spring wheat.
