

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

GENERAL GRANT'S REAL NAME WAS HIRAM ULYSSES.

DUE TO AN ERROR ON THE PART OF CONGRESSMAN HAMER, GRANT'S CADET APPOINTMENT WAS MADE OUT TO ULYSSES SIMPSON GRANT, AND IT WAS NEVER CORRECTED.

OH, THAT WOULD BE LOVELY! HENRY AND I HAVE THOUGHT OF THE SAME THING.

AND DISEASES—LANDSAKES! IT SEEMS AS IF MRS. GIMMIE'S THREE LITTLE ONES HAVE ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER, AND THEN THE EXPENSES ARE MORE AND MORE AND MORE, AS THEY GROW OLDER.

DRAGG! SODA CANDY!

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

GENERAL GRANT was christened Hiram Ulysses by his grandparents, but when Congressman Hamer sent young Grant's application to the War Department, he gave the name as Ulysses Simpson. Ulysses had a younger brother named Simpson, which was their mother's maiden name. After several unsuccessful attempts to untangle the red tape and get back his rightful name, the young soldier gave up.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

HARTFORD! AT LAST! OH WHAT A RELIEF TO FIND YOU SAFE AND SOUND.

OH HELLO COLONEL! BY JOVE YOU MADE GOOD TIME.

MY WORD, IT'S A TREAT TO SEE YOU AGAIN, HARTFORD! WHAT HAPPENED? YOUR UNCLE MONTEY MIGHT HAVE—

COLONEL, MY LIPS MUST REMAIN SEALED ON THAT POINT, IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT THE EIGHT MEN WHO GUARDED ME NIGHT AND DAY ADMITTED ALL WHEN I MANHANDLED THEM A BIT.

WHAT! YOU MEAN YOU GOT AWAY FROM EIGHT MEN?

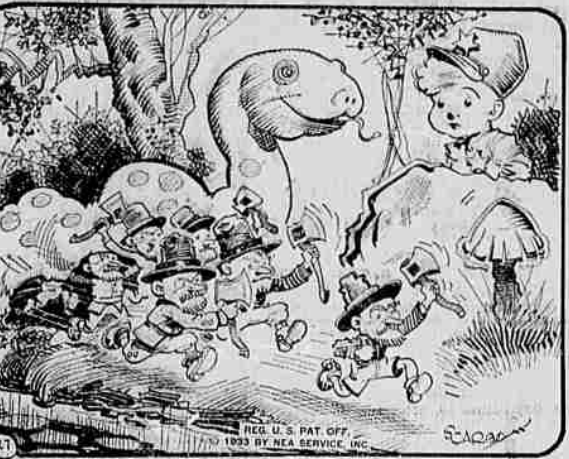

ONLY SEVEN! ONE OF THE CHAPS WAS SENT FOR HELP WHEN THE OTHER FELLOWS SAW I HAD COMPLETELY LOST MY TEMPER.

BAREHANDED? DIDN'T THOSE RED-HOTS COME AT YOU WITH GUNS AND KNIVES AND—

FRANKLY COLONEL, I WAS SO—WELL... INCENED AT TWO OF THOSE LOW FELLOWS THAT I DIDN'T PAY MUCH ATTENTION TO WHAT SORT OF WEAPONS THE OTHERS USED. DASH THEM! BOTH OF MY FISTS ARE A BIT SORE NOW.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

THE serpent wiggled round and round as it moved slowly over the ground. The Tinymites watched it closely and then Scouty said, "How queer!"

"I've seen big serpents in a book, but never one like that one. Look! It's heading right toward us and 'twill very soon be here. We all had best be set to run. This whole thing may not be much fun. Here, Goldy, take my hand and if I go, you race along."

"I'm not a serpent fighter, Gee, that thing is much too big for me. I wish I was a giant. Then I, too, would be real strong."

THE serpent came much closer. Then wee Scouty jumped and spoke again. "What funny feet it has," he said. "Each one is in a shoe."

"Why, now it's stopped! It's looking round. I guess that we're doomed to be found. If anyone is caught, what will the other Tinymites do?"

"We'll fight the serpent," Windy cried. "I'll get a stick and beat its hide. Right now a tree has Dotty. That's enough bad luck for once."

And then they were amazed to see the serpent frisky as could be. They all thought for a moment that the thing was doing stunts.

NEXT came the best surprise of all. The Tinymites heard a faint voice call. "All right, men! Everyone outside! There's work that must be done."

"Just leave our serpent hide right here. There's not a thing that we need' fear." Then from beneath the serpent little men began to run.

"What did I tell you?" Duncy cried. "Those little men have come outside to help us get poor Dotty. Our good friend, the Imp, was right."

"He said the flute would bring us aid. Come on, we need not be afraid. I'm anxious now, to tell these little men about our plight."
