THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Oh, oh! Here's where a mean trick's done," said Goldy. "But we'll have some fun. The fisherman who's up above is wishing for some fish. 'He'd haul them up and have a meal, not thinking just how they would feel. This time we're going to fool him, and he will not get his wish.' 'I'll say he won't,' cried Duncy. 'Gee, it's time somebody's helping me. This rubber boot is heavy. I am no strong man, you know.' 'Come, Scouty, hold the hook real still. We do not want to spoil a thrill. We'll get the boot hooked on real tight and then, up it will go!' 'All right, I'll gladly lend a hand,' said Scouty. 'But, please understand that when it's hooked I'm going to swim up to the water top.' 'It will be heaps of fun to see the fisherman, 'cause I'm sure he will be so disappointed that he'll let the old boot drop.' 'Okay,' said Duncy. 'I'll swim, too. Here's where we both see something new.' And then they hooked the boot on. It was promptly jerked away. 'The man has fallen for our trick,' we Scouty cried. 'Gee, this is slick. I'll bet that this will make him stop his fishing for today.' 'The fisherman took quite a flop, before he let the big boot drop. And then he said, 'My, what a catch!—But this won't spoil my fun.' 'I'll drop my fishing line back in, right near the spot where it has been. If I have any luck at all, I'll hook the other one.' (Copyright, 1933, NEA Service, Inc.)
