La Grande Delegates To Auxiliary Convention in Salem Report An Enjoyable Trip

Delegates to the department convention of the auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans returned to La Grande enthusiastic over the enjoyable days spent in the state capital, Salem, where the sessions were held. Representing the local auxiliary were Mrs. Jessie Nelson, Mrs. Flavia Sherwood, Miss Marion Nelson, Mrs. Edna Hale and Mrs. Ethel Hanford. Mrs. Nelson was department secretary and Mrs. Hanford, department treasurer, for the session, and the latter was appointed on the legislative committee for the next convention. Mrs. Sherwood sang several times during the convention as well as at the Memorial services held on Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian church in Salem. Mrs. Anna Jesmer, of Los Angeles, national auxiliary president, was a distinguished guest at the convention and was welcomed by Mrs. Rose Fugit, of Pleasant Valley, president of the session. The auxiliary meeting was attended by the largest number of persons ever gathered at an auxiliary encampment in Oregon. Mrs. Elizabeth Read, of Portland, was elected president of the auxiliary for the state, and her husband, Harry Read, was elected commander of the post, the first time in history that a man and wife have headed the two organizations simultaneously. They were installed by the national inspector of the post and Mrs. Jesmer at impressive ceremonies. Governor Meier and Douglas McKay, mayor of Salem, extended greetings to the auxiliary at its meeting in the hall of representatives at the capital building. Mrs. Fugit was presented with a chime mantle clock, and Mrs. Hanford and Mrs. Nelson were both presented with silver plates.

The provisions specifically that an individual employer who believes that agreement will cause him hardship may obtain a stay of a particular provision by submitting a petition, approved by the trade association of his industry if he has one, otherwise by the chamber of commerce or other designed representative of the N. INGENUITY SAVES TWO

NEW YORK—Clinging to the seats of their overturned canoe for two hours, John Mulligan, 19, and Robert Donahue, 19, were rescued after spending the night in the cold water of Long Island Sound. When a sudden squall overturned their slight craft, the boys found it impossible to hold on to its slippery bottom. They ducked under it, caught on to the canoe seats and held their heads up out of the water. When dawn came, they got their direction and by paddling with their feet, got within sight of land.

LOCAL WOMAN DEMONSTRATES WESSON MAYONNAISE MIXER

Mrs. T. R. Maxwell of 1765 Adams, well-known La Grande housewife and demonstrator for Red & White Stores, shows how new Wesson oil mixer makes fresh home-made mayonnaise in one and a half minutes.

Grocers Find Heavy Demand for Home Mixer Deal

La Grande housewives are busy mixers this week. Reason: The advent of the Wesson Oil mayonnaise mixer for home use. All grocers in the city are featuring them at a special low price for the mixer and a pint can of Wesson Oil.

Makers of Wesson Oil contend that all people do not have the same taste for mayonnaise. Some like it sour, some like it sweet, some like mustard and some do not; others like a touch of lemon juice instead of vinegar. The only way to have the kind of mayonnaise one likes is to make it fresh yourself in your own kitchen, according to the Wesson Oil people and with this idea in mind present the glass mixer in a special deal with a can of their famous oil. Whips up a perfect mayonnaise to your own taste in one and a half minutes, is the claim and those who have already tried, say it works wonderfully. That housewives are interested in this special mixer deal is evident from the heavy demand upon all local grocery stores since the advertised announcement.

Critics Predict Brilliant Future For Jul Solters

BALTIMORE (AP)—If the experts know what they are talking about, the owners of the Baltimore Orioles in the International League will get a pretty penny for Julius Solters, the outfielder who has suddenly made good in a big way.

Sports writers predict that when the 1934 baseball season rolls around Solters will be wearing the uniform of some big league club and that the front office of the Orioles will be $50,000 richer. They have exhausted their best adjectives as they describe the way he has developed into an outstanding slugger in a troupe which is noted for its slugging.

Kept Orioles in Race As the fourth of July rolled round he was leading the league in hitting with a mark just a shade under 400. He had almost come abreast of his teammate, Buzz Arlette, in the matter of home runs and was given credit by many of the critics for keeping the Orioles in the first division of the International League.

Solters was bought four years ago by the Orioles from the Fairmount, W. Va., club. He didn't prove such a valuable acquisition and until this season was regularly farmed out. Last year he was with Albany until the Eastern League collapsed and then played for Binghamton of the New York-Pennsylvania league. He batted .398 in the latter place.

Put Manager on Bench This year Solters wrote the new manager of the Orioles before the season opened and asked for a chance to show what he could do. He was taken south for training and looked good, but few believed he could land permanently in an outfield composed of Manager McGowan, Buzz Arlette and Ralph Boyle. Solters got his chance when McGowan took ill. So well did he play that the manager kept himself out. Then Boyle was sold to Brooklyn.

Urges Return To Spinning Wheel And Hand Loom

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP)—Return to the spinning wheel and the hand loom is recommended to West Texans by Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological college. Both cotton and wool are grown in abundance throughout this section. With these materials available to everyone, Knapp has proposed that the inhabitants make their own clothing.

Instructions in spinning and weaving have been offered free through the textile engineering department of the college. Individuals, after brief instruction, have been able to weave a yard of cloth an hour, suitable for the manufacture of suits, overcoats, and other articles of clothing. Dr. Knapp recommends a hand loom as a community project rather than for home use. To encourage the movement, Knapp arranged for a loom to be built by Lubbock carpenters and has exhibited it throughout the territory. The total cost was about $55, which Knapp said could be lowered by doing the construction at home. Harness, reed and shuttle equipment may be bought for $10, he said. Knapp says the plan gives promise of a new industry to a territory principally devoted to agriculture and livestock.

casual acquaintances, is one of those restless, daring people who are not happy in the commonplace of existence. His real beginning in the air business was as a parachute jumper.

However, he became a pilot in August, 1925. After an hour and 40 minutes of instruction he made his first solo, continuing as a barnstormer, he eventually became "air chauffeur" for F. C. Hall, Oklahoma oil man, who backed his record flight with Gatsby and from whom he bought the Winnie Mae. One of Post's jobs was piloting Hall on inspection tours of the oil territory.

Post has been a test pilot for a plane factory at Burbank, Cal., a mail and passenger pilot for lines into Mexico and distinguished himself, by winning the race from Los Angeles to the national air meet in Chicago in 1930.

POST'S TRIUMPH IN LONG FLIGHT IS NO ACCIDENT

NEW YORK (AP)—A small-town, oil-stained barnstormer, spurred by the reckless dream of flying glory, has conquered the world as no one man ever has conquered it before. It's no accident that he has triumphed—but accident has helped to shape Wiley Post's flying career. For Post—born in the little town of Grand Saline, Texas, manual laborer in the oil fields of Oklahoma—bought his first plane with insurance money collected for the loss of an eye while working on an oil rig.

Now this same doughy flier, who barely got beyond his grade school geography classes in his quest for learning, has wrapped the wings of a plane around the earth. Twice he has done it with the same ship—the stalwart Winnie Mae. He is the co-holder of one and sole holder of the other of two greatest records in aviation history.

No sooner had he returned from his world flight with Harold Gatty in 1931 than he set for himself a goal that Jules Verne, had he lived and written a mere decade ago, might have considered fanciful. With colossal confidence in himself, Post decided he could wing his way around the globe alone in a week—perhaps a little less. Certainly, he said, he could do it in less time than the eight days, 15 hours and 31 minutes that his flight with Gatty consumed.

So this man of iron nerve set for himself a target that would have seemed a ridiculous conceit not so many years ago. And he took to the air in his Winnie Mae and steered it straight for his target. Before his take-off Post said: "I could stay awake the whole way around the world, without a single stop for rest, if necessary." Today the world acclaims his demonstration of human endurance which seems superhuman.

Just Ain't Human! In fact, Lee Trenholm, Post's manager, was talking with some pilots about Post the other day, and one of them said: "Why, that guy Post—he's just ain't human."

NO NEBRASKA NATIVES IN CONGRESS LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska has seven congressmen, but not one was born in that state. Three, Reps. Edgar Howard, John Morehead and Terry Carpenter, were born in Iowa, while both senators, George W. Norris and William H. Thompson, were Ohio natives. Rep. A. C. Schallenberger's birthplace is Toulon, Ill., and Ranking Member, S. D., is the natal town of Rep. Edward R. Burke.

TO STUDY WOMEN AND DEPRESSION WASHINGTON (AP)—The manner in which the business and professional women met the depression will be studied under two awards just made to the American Women's association, one of $5,000 from the Carnegie foundation, and one of $2,000 from the Guggenheim foundation.

TREE GROWS IN TOWER 150 FEET FROM GROUND DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—The north woods surrounding this city are full of tree planters—serving in the citizens' conservation corps—but none of them will be able to duplicate the feat of one little bird. About five years ago this songster, evidently in the midst of house-moving activities, carried a seed to a crevice in the Central High school clock tower, 150 feet above the street. The tree, now about four feet tall, was found recently by workmen. Its roots are imbedded in a crevice between two stones on a ledge.

Jazz will characterize the entire vaudeville and every act will be a whirl of syncopation, dancing, singing by clever artists. Of course, dancing will be the main feature of the evening with music furnished by a Pendleton orchestra, and the vaudeville numbers will be in the form of intermission features. Proceedings from the dance will be used to finance the trip of the drum corps to the state convention at Klamath Falls, where it will help sponsor La Grande as the 1934 convention city.
