THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

RIGHT through the porthole Scouty crawled. Inside the ship he slipped and sprawled. "Hey, are you hurt?" cried Copy, who was crawling inside, too.

"You surely took a funny slide, first on your back, then on your side." "Oh, I'm all right," laughed Scouty. "Twas a silly thing to do."

"You see, I simply lost my hold and down into the ship I rolled. Gee, hurry up and join me so we both can look around."

"I see a great big cabin door. That's one place where we'll explore. I'm really very anxious, now, to see what can be found."

THEY crept right through the strange old wreck. Then Copy said, "Let's go on deck. Right now we're in the hold. So far we haven't found a thing."

"Behind that door I took a look and all I found was some old book. Let's find the captain's cabin and see what luck that will bring."

So, up a stairway they both went, and 'bout a half an hour was spent in searching all around the ship. "I guess we're fooled," said one.

"We've had no luck at all, as yet. Someone was here before, I'll bet. We'd best go back and look the bunch. This isn't any fun."

JUST then, however, Scouty cried, "Here's one more room. Gee, look inside. I see a rusty treasure chest. Right here is where we stop."

"Come on, we'll take the chest with us. There's no one here to start a fuss. We'll drag it to the railing of the ship and let it drop."

They both took hold and Copy cried, "Oh, gee, I wonder what's inside." And then they reached the railing. Scouty yelled, "Look out, below!"

"We'll drop this thing and then we'll rest," Wee Goldy said. "Gee, it's a chest! It may contain a lot of gold. We'll very shortly know."
