IN NAME OF DEFENSE

Whatever else you may say about naval armament races, you can't deny that they at least have a whimsical illogicality which, if it were not potentially so dangerous, would be nothing less than delightful. A brief survey of the situation as it affects the United States, Japan and Great Britain will show what we mean.

The United States government takes some $238,000,000 to bring its fleet up to treaty strength. It does this, as everyone knows, because heretofore no effort has been made to attain treaty strength. The country has voluntarily maintained a smaller navy than it is entitled to. Consequently, as any American naval expert will tell you, the American fleet has suffered by comparison with those of Great Britain and Japan. Shipyards in those countries have not been idle. Their naval strength has not been permitted to lag.

However, the United States no sooner begins to spend money on its navy than the authorities of England and Japan wake up and announce that times are getting parlous. English naval authorities announce that their cruiser strength will be hopelessly below par as soon as the American program is completed. In sheer self-defense they have got to build more ships. The admiralty experts even cook up a new kind of warship, a 5000-ton "sloop" armed with six-inch guns, which won't come under treaty restrictions at all.

As with England, so with Japan. Obviously the island empire cannot allow the United States fleet to get too big a margin of superiority. In the most peaceable manner imaginable, they can do nothing else than put new keels on the ways. If they don't, their national security will be threatened.

So we find the three greatest naval powers on earth beginning a good old-fashioned armament race — from the purest motives of self-defense! Each must spend millions upon millions of dollars on the race simply because it is afraid of its neighbors. Each one devoutly believes that one or both of its rivals are at fault. Each is afraid that one of the others may get an advantage and then start a war.

If it weren't so expensive and so dangerous, it would be good for a fine laugh.

Oregon Short Line Gets Big Refund

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP) — A credit of $27,815 to the Oregon Short Line railroad was announced by the treasury on account of an over-assessment of income profit taxes for the year 1917.

BUSINESS WOMEN KILLED

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Oct. 5 (AP) — Mrs. Sara Allport of Dundee, was killed last night when an automobile driven by Jim Smith went over an embankment on the Elk River road near Port Orford. Failure of the lights on the car was blamed for the accident. Smith, who was returning Mrs. Allport to her home after a visit with relatives in the Elk river country, escaped serious injury.

WESTLAKE FOR DEER

ASTORIA, Ore., Oct. 5 (AP) — Mistaken for a deer in a thicket, Henry Lauvila, 36, of Svensenville, was shot through the head and killed instantly by a friend at Clifton, 20 miles east of here late yesterday.

Elmo Hiatt, Astoria fisherman and friend of Lauvila, was in a state of near collapse as officers questioned him about the fatality.

BIG SEA PARADE

PORTLAND, Oct. 5 (AP)—Sixty thousand persons are expected to march in Blue Sea tonight in a NRA parade designed as a visible manifestation of the co-operative spirit of the American movement toward economic recovery.

A CAPELLA CHOIR MEETS

The A Capella choir, directed by Andrew Loney Jr., met Wednesday for their second meeting and the major portion of the evening was spent in testing voices. During the business session over which Rev. R. W. Brasher presided they decided to meet at the high school in the music room in the future and the next meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. The room was donated by the school board.

CHOIR MEETS THIS EVENING

The Presbyterian choir will hold the first rehearsal of the season tonight at 8:00 o'clock at the Presbyterian church. Andrew Loney Jr. will direct the music at the church during the winter.

HISTORICAL GROUP MEETS AT SACAJAWEA

Mrs. George E. Currey presented an exhibit of pictures of La Grande in the early days and old papers Wednesday evening when the Union County Historical society met at the Sacajawea inn. Mr. Currey furnished the report of the newspaper committee, and Mrs. Earnest MacDonald reported on the findings of the schools and churches committee.

Community singing was led by Miss Tillie Sing, accompanied by Mrs. Nellie Bell, and they sang a group of old songs. George Currey spoke on "Pioneer Reminiscences" and musical numbers were furnished by Claude Berry and Raymond O. Williams.

Mrs. Currey also displayed school books that were used here in the 1860s.

objections. In the first place these up-state county officials objected to obligating the state for more highway funds, and the second move was that if the $15,000,000 program went through the officials were opposed to more than one road from Portland to the sea. It has been proposed that $6,000,000 of the funds be used for the construction of both the Wolf creek and the Wilson River short cuts from Portland to the coast.

Stacking Hay In City Limits Is Against the Law

It is unlawful for any persons to stack hay or grain on any lot or parcel of ground within the city limits within 250 feet of any building not his or her own.

This is taken from a city ordinance, according to C. E. Lindsay, fire chief, who states there have been several complaints about hay stacks, etc. in the city this fall. Anyone bringing hay into town must keep it in a barn, closed shed or immediately enclosed so as to be protected from sparks, etc.

The city is given the right to declare any stack hay or grain stacks a nuisance and take action at once. Conviction of violating this ordinance makes one liable to civil damage to any person injured, and liable to a fine of not less than $20 and no more than $100.
