OUR NAVY

Today is Navy Day, a day set aside for annual recognition over the nation of that branch of our country's defense. An occasion, particularly in coastal towns and cities, when are held programs and ceremony to better acquaint the people of the United States with what their Navy has done for them in the past and is doing in the present.

Navy Day further commemorates the birthday of that great and illustrious American, Theodore Roosevelt. The late president was a great friend and benefactor to the Navy and it is to his initiative and courage that may be attributed much of the good that has accrued to both the Navy and its personnel. Theodore Roosevelt was born on the 27th day of October, 1858 and Navy Day has been designated in his honor.

Speaking of the Navy, Theodore Roosevelt at the time of his Presidency, said in part:

"The strong arm of the Government in enforcing respect for its just rights in international matters is the Navy of the United States. I most earnestly recommend that there be no halt in the work of upbuilding the American Navy. There is no more patriotic duty before us as a people than to keep the Navy adequate to the needs of this country's position."

"The veteran seaman of our warships are of as high a type as can be found in any Navy which rides the waters of the world; they are unsurpassed in daring, in resolution, in readiness, in thorough knowledge of their profession. They deserve every consideration that can be shown them."

We of the inland country do not often come into direct contact with our Navy nor do we have opportunity to see first hand demonstrations of its operations and accomplishments. Much of the strongest opposition to continued naval progress and construction comes as a rule from inland country because of lack of understanding resulting from this impossible first hand contact. Those who stop to think however can surmise and readily appreciate the needs of adequate policemen of our merchant transportation over the seas. Without a navy, adequate in size to demand respect that insures safe and undisturbed carriage of our goods to all points of the globe — the inland country, producers of all the raw materials that make up much of our export tonnage, would be in a sorry plight indeed.

Let us not rush into vast expenditures in a wild, excited, overzealous melee of what in the end can produce little more than a recurrence of much equipment early antiquated long before normal period of usefulness is passed — let us however, sanely and surely bring our naval forces to point of perfection which this nation should and must have to command the respect of all powers that utilize the seas.

TODAY IN BRIEF, IN AND AROUND OREGON

AS CHRONICLED BY THE DAILY LEASED WIRE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PORTLAND IS SELECTED
PORTLAND, Oct. 27 (AP) — Selection of Portland as a primary market for the purchase of surplus butter and cheese in Oregon as part of a national movement to aid the dairy industry, was announced in a telegram from George Peck, administrator of the federal agricultural adjustment administration, to Senator McNary Thursday.

Purchasing of Oregon's surplus butter and cheese probably will get under way within ten days, it is expected.

1800 UNEMPLOYED REGISTER
SALEM, Oct. 27 (AP) — From 100 to 1800 men will register on the Marion county federal unemployment roll this year, the bureau estimated following another busy day.

FRUIT SYSTEM NEAR APPROVAL
PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 27 (AP) — Only the approval of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace remained today to make effective a blanket license system that will affect every handler of tree fruit in the Pacific northwest. The system was expected to go into effect today as the result of an agreement reached here last night by the control committee of Northwest Fruit Industries, Inc., Paul A. Scherer, Medford, president of the organization, announced.

The license system will be established in accordance with a marketing agreement signed Oct. 13 by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and will apply to the tree fruit industry in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

PHYSICIANS MEETING
PORTLAND, Oct. 27 (AP) — Practically every part of Oregon was represented by 200 physicians who attended the opening session of the 39th annual convention of the Oregon State Medical society here Thursday. The assembly will conclude tonight.

Fifteen thousand of the 80,000 alumni of the University of California are continuing their education by extension courses.

NRA Binding On All Operators In Coded Industry

PORTLAND (Special) — Codes for specific industries approved by President Roosevelt are binding on all operators in that industry, Frank S. Pollak, assistant counsel for the national recovery administration has ruled.

"This means that all members of a specific industry, for which a code has been approved by President Roosevelt, are bound by the code provisions, and must conduct their business along lines laid down by the code," Frank Messenger, district manager of the department of commerce, declared, "they are bound by the code provisions whether or not they have signed the code."

Employers whose businesses come under one of the 83 approved codes, who are not yet displaying the Blue Eagle, must sign a certificate of compliance with their industrial code, and present it to the nearest postmaster before they receive their Blue Eagle, it was announced.

Health

PAINFUL FEET

Of all minor maladies, painful foot is one of the most disabling and depressing.

The foot has two arches, a longitudinal one and a transverse one, both supported by the muscles of the foot. When the muscles are too weak, the weight of the body falls upon the ligaments, and they are stretched and become painful. Inflammatory conditions develop, causing adhesions between the various bones and surrounding structures.

Disturbances in the longitudinal arch, the one running the length of the foot, may be due to excessive weight or to overstrain.

The treatment in the case of overweight is reduction and exercise.

The exercise recommended for the ordinary case of weakened arch requires walking on the outer margin of the foot and attempting to pick up small objects with the toes. Rising on the ball of the foot or resting the foot on the ball and rotating the toes is also of value.

In overstrain, the proper treatment is rest. Bathing the feet in hot water, massaging them gently, moving the bones in the various directions to which they will yield, will tend to loosen up and relieve the stiffness that results from overstrain.

Transverse arch troubles are more common in women than in men. Short stockings which constrict the toes and shoes of bad shape with too high heels are chiefly responsible for this troublesome condition.

When the transverse arch falls, painful callouses on the fore part of the sole of the foot are likely to develop. The callouses then must be cut away and the falling transverse arch treated by means of proper support, exercise, and a well fitted shoe.

a rifle with which he was unfamiliar. He had had no luck in bagging his buck. He pointed the gun at a clump of bushes and observed wistfully: "Now, if there was a deer here I'd just do this and pull the trigger." Just then a 100-pound buck strolled into the clearing. Penland brought the deer back with him.

LEWISTON, Mont., Oct. 27 (AP) — John Schwab Jr., ranch youth, shot one deer and summoned his brother and two neighbors to help him pack it home. When they returned, at night, another buck was standing guard over the dead one and he hurled a stone. Raymond Schwab between the eyes and downed him. The youths leaped on the animal and slashed his throat.

Local Option Is Part of Norway's Liquor Control

OSLO (AP) — Norway gave up prohibition after a decade's trial.

The system now in force includes local option — whereby each city, town and village determines whether it shall be wet or dry—and a government monopoly in the trade with wine and spirits.

The government monopoly maintains sales organizations in the largest cities. Customers are allowed to buy over the counter any amount of wine or liquor, but none is served for consumption on the premises. Certain restaurants, cafes and hotels are granted the right to serve alcoholic beverages.

Dry Areas Import Liquor
Many places are still dry, so that neither beer, wine nor spirits may be sold or served, but importation of these beverages for personal use is allowed.

Since it is difficult in many rural districts to obtain legal liquor, "moonshining" is practiced to a certain extent. Liquor prices are high, in many cases being prohibitive for the common people, which has been one of the contributory causes to the illegal distilling.

Prohibition For 10 Years
Norway's prohibition period dated from December, 1916, and in the succeeding years the nation experienced a wave of smuggling, illegal trading in liquor, establishment of private stills, crime and deaths caused by the consumption of poisonous substitutes.

After a plebiscite in 1926, in which a big majority voted against prohibition, the law was repealed. Since then the number of arrests for intoxication has steadily decreased, though it has not reached the low pre-war figure, and smuggling was practically stopped immediately.
