THE ARMISTICE DAY GAME

La Grande High school's football team, unbeaten in its own district although loser twice in interdistrict and interstate games this fall, will take on its traditional rival—Baker High—here Saturday afternoon in the feature event of an Armistice day celebration.

Despite the two above mentioned losses the Tiger team this year has been a colorful one, flashing forth at times with real championship play, and all indications are that the Saturday game will be one of the best of the season. Baker has been improving slowly, and like La Grande, remains unbeaten in its district, although loser to two out-of-district teams.

It also will be the last local appearance of the Tigers this fall, and with an exceptionally good game indicated, a record-breaking crowd for a high school football contest should be present to give the local boys the cheer and sideline support to which they are justly entitled.

ANSWER TO ROLL CALL

During the last year the Red Cross has distributed flour and clothing valued at $12,000 in Union county. Much of the goods was furnished by the government, but the distribution cost the Red Cross a large sum of money. In return, last fall only a small number of local people answered to the annual roll call with a dollar membership.

The 1933 campaign will begin Armistice day to continue until Thanksgiving, and hopes are high that La Grande will give more support to this friend who was unquestionably a friend indeed. Without the Red Cross, last winter would have been much more difficult for all of us, and there is more work ahead this year.

It takes only a dollar to show real support to the Red Cross, and it seems that every citizen of La Grande who has gainful employment should feel it his or her absolute duty to contribute to this worthy cause.

Yes, you can probably have brandy in your mince meat this winter. But pity the poor fellow who has no mince meat—he'll have to drink his Christmas pie.

Issues Warning Against Buying Bonneville Land

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Secretary of War Dern has issued a warning to the public against land speculation in the neighborhood of the Bonneville Columbia river can in Oregon.

The war department, he said, has been advised that speculators are buying land in the vicinity of the dam for the purpose of forcing prices above "reasonable values."

"The public is warned not to be misled as to the value of land," Secretary Dern declared, "and of the possibility of being caught in a land boom such as occurred in the vicinity of Muscle Shoals, Ala., during the construction of the dam and power facilities in that locality."

able fact that harmony in higher education is impossible until a chancellor is appointed who is free from long-standing partisanship in educational controversies.

The bitter battle surrounding the Nelson regime and the Kerr administration flared into fury last Saturday when Dean Morse made an attack on President Nelson for two addresses Nelson had made a few days before on the Eugene and Corvallis campuses.

Nelson's resignation was submitted after, he said, he had given the matter profound consideration. In tendering his resignation, Nelson wrote that future contacts with the University faculty would be frequent and "under existing circumstances... could be nothing but embarrassing both to the faculty and to me."

INJURY TO HEAD FORCES WIGGINS TO GIVE UP RING

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Chuck Wiggins, Hoosier playboy of the ring, probably has drawn on the gloves for the last time.

An injury to the head, which physicians said might cause serious trouble if aggravated, has retarded the mischievous heavyweight, whose colorful career is known to followers of the ring sport all over the country.

Wiggins was an active fighter for 15 years, beginning as a welterweight and ending as a heavyweight. He has nothing left of the fortune he made.

'ALL-LITERARY' ELEVEN HERALDS 'SILLY SEASON'

CHICAGO (AP)—This being the time of year for all good football fans to rush forward with their pet mid-season "all" teams, the following "all-literary" eleven is submitted:

Leifery, Northwester, end; Eskine, Southern California, and Conrad, Ohio State, tackles; Scott, Ohio, and Lamb, Washington, guards; Yates, St. Mary's, center; Wells, Harvard, quarterback; Fontaine, Wisconsin, and Clemens, Southern California, halfbacks, and Shakespeare, Notre Dame, fullback.

By Brooke Peters Church Teaching writing is one of the most difficult problems of education.

It generally is taught in school with doubtful results, and yet to teach it at home is scarcely feasible, partly because, unlike reading, it requires certain ideal conditions of position and implements, and partly because, regrettably, there are too few adults who can write either legibly or with any style.

Furthermore, writing requires a muscular control of the hand which few little children can be expected to have. There is much of the beauty of handwriting about writing which the typewriter is fast blotting out of the world.

Little children of pre-school age are being taught to use the typewriter, and it is not to be wondered at that when they reach school they see no need to learn more than the motions of handwriting. Anything more seems to them superfluous and absurd, and they go through life with signatures worthy of the feeble-minded.

Few mothers allow their children to use a sewing machine before they have learned a little about hand sewing. If the typewriter offered any perils of personal injury to the child, no doubt there would be restrictions on its use.

The school can only teach and give practice, but it is for the parents to set up and demand a standard of excellence. Certainly the quality of handwriting has a very marked effect on the temper of the reader, and many an examination has been flunked or job lost because the writing was poor.

Underhanding is to go out of use entirely and typing to take its place. It might be well if we emphasized its value as an art as well as a practical accomplishment.

It had been carried on by the defending forces with machine guns and rifles firing continually.

Even after the surrender was definitely announced firing continued. It was not known at first whether this was directed exclusively against the forces or whether it included some 750 members of the A. B. C. who, heavily armed, were scattered throughout the city under secret orders.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—High government authorities answered reports of new violence in Cuba with a relaxation late today that intervention was not under consideration.

Threats from Cuban revolutionary factions to sack American property unless the battle over control of the government is settled quickly brought appeals for protection to the state department from United States interests in Havana.

City Cannot Have 11 Liquor Stores

server can not interpret this. But let us take a look at Noah Webster's famous book.

The dictionary defines the word "liquor" as follows:
1. Any liquid substance, as water, milk, blood, sap, juice, or the like; sometimes, specifically, a beverage; as, temperance liquors, or those not intoxicating. 2. The solution of soap used in scouring wool. (One can liquor sheep by rubbing soap on the wool?—Ed's query.)

2. Specific, an alcoholic beverage, as brandy, wine, whisky, beer, etc.;—often limited to such as are strong or distilled; as, beer, wines, and liquors.
3. Pharm. A solution of a medicinal substance in water; distinguished from tincture and aqua. The U. S. Pharmacopoeia includes in this class of preparations all aqueous solutions without sugar, in which the substance acted on is wholly soluble in water, excluding those in which the dissolved matter is gaseous or very volatile, as in the aquae, or waters.

4. Oil or grease. (Possibly that's how that phrase "well oiled" originated—Ed's note).
Liquor, v. t. 1. To cover or dress with oil or grease.
2. To treat with a liquor or solution, as sugar by passing a sugar solution through the molds.
3. To supply or ply with liquor; to treat;—often with up. Slang.
Liquor, v. i. 1. To drink liquor;—often with up. Slang.

And that's what the dictionary has to say about it! And we don't know yet whether liquor, as used in the city charter, means only intoxicating liquor, or whether it includes three-point-two and drinks with less alcoholic content.

Not content with defeating Wake Forest College 26-0 in 1908, North Carolina State College engaged that team on the gridiron for a second game the same year and won 76 to 0.

Portland Judge Upholds N. R. A. Minimum Wage

PORTLAND, Nov. 9 (Special)—In the first test of the NRA in a state court, District Judge John A. Mears, in a sweeping decision which sets a precedent for U. S. jurists, today upheld the NRA wage scale in Multnomah district court in the suit of Bessie N. Walker against Noble & Sons, confectioners, for $14.50, the difference between the wages paid her and the minimum wage allowable under the Blue Eagle.

Judge Mears, presiding in small claims court, based his momentous decision on the investigation of officials working under the direction of the Multnomah county NRA compliance board, who reported to the court that the wages paid by Noble & Sons were below the minimum prescribed in the NRA agreement.

Mrs. Walker, a waitress, began work in the confectionery as a substitute for another girl who was ill. She remained when the other girl failed to return to work. When Noble & Sons refused to pay her the minimum NRA wage, she brought suit.

"In all disputes of this sort, the reasonable value of the services rendered are a recognized principle of law," declared Judge Mears, in commenting on his decision. "It is usual to call in expert testimony to fix the reasonable value of services rendered. However, the National Recovery Administration, after much research, has established a fair minimum wage. This is, beyond question,

"... see my pots shine!"

I cook with clean Electric Heat

NEXT time you're hot and bothered and out-of-sorts from a session of pot scouring, remember this woman.

She cooks the clean electric way. Never has blackened pots to scour.

She cooks in cool comfort, and she spends less time at it. Complete insulation and the elimination of air currents through the oven keep heat in the range, out of the kitchen.

Automatic, her electric range will start itself, maintain proper temperature, and shut itself off at the right time. It cooks a complete meal while she is miles away, driving or shopping, on the golf links or the tennis court.

With the oven reaching baking temperature in ten minutes, with cooking utensils in direct contact with heating surfaces, she finds electric cookery fast.

Economical, too. Roasts shrink very little. Meats retain their juices, vegetables keep their natural salts and minerals. All her foods taste better, and their healthful qualities are greatly improved.

Come in and see for yourself what electric cookery will mean in your kitchen. Witness a demonstration today.
