

OREGON DEFEATS GAELS; NEBRASKA SUBDUES STATERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1 (AP)—For the first time in five years of football rivalry, the University of Oregon held a victory over the St. Mary's Gaels today—the score, 13 to 7.

Defeated in four previous encounters, the Webfooters out smarted and out fought the Gaels at Kezar stadium yesterday and Oregon rosters, hilarious over the victory, broke up and carried away a goal post.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 1 (AP)—One of the most successful football seasons ever enjoyed by the University of Nebraska passed into history today after the 22 to 0 trouncing the Cornhuskers gave the Oregon State Beavers in a Thanksgiving day inter-sectional classic.

TWO TEAMS TIED FOR STATE TITLE

With Washington and Medford both winning "state championship" games yesterday, the two teams are unquestionably tied for the title and unless a play-off takes place will go down in the records as co-champions for 1933.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 1 (AP)—A fast and powerful Washington High school eleven, champions of the Portland interscholastic league, put on a dazzling display of football to defeat Salem High school, 14 to 0, in their Thanksgiving day game at Multnomah stadium here yesterday, played for the benefit of the Shrine hospital. The attendance was officially given as 10,929.

MEDFORD, Ore., Dec. 1 (AP)—Before a large Thanksgiving day crowd, and perfect weather conditions, Medford High, scoring a lone touchdown, defeated Bend, 7 to 0, in a hard fought battle.

The Bearpickers marched from the Bend 30-yard line in the third period to the touchdown that won the game.

Seek Beauty In New York; Movie Land Best Bet

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Three wise men of Hollywood went to New York in quest of beauty and returned to continue their quest—in Hollywood.

The three—B. G. DeSylva, Sid Silvers and David Butler, musical producer, comic writer and actor, and director, respectively—wanted a new "find" for the film musical they're plotting.

They made several tests, from which they expect to choose perhaps one or two girls—but not the girl for the top spot. She will be found in Hollywood.

The same has been the ending to many another search for beauty in New York on the part of Hollywood producers, but the magic of a Broadway stage success continues to exert more influence on the collective producer mind than anythingavoring of local acclaim—unless it happens to have been established by a rival producer.

New York comes to Hollywood, too, to get talent nowadays. And that makes it all sound like a sermon on the greener pastures beyond the other fellow's fence.

"Sonny Boy" Is Born

DeSylva, incidentally, tells a story that illustrates the uncertainty of entertainers—be they song-writers or moving picture producers—in predicting what the public wants.

DeSylva, Brown and Henderson, song-writing trio now reunited for films, were in Atlantic City a few years ago working on a new show when a telephone call from Hollywood reached them in their hotel.

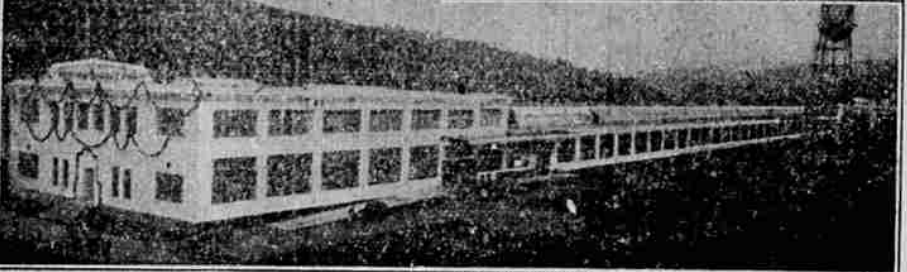

Al Johnson was on the wire pleading for them to write him a song for "The Singing Fool." He had a song, he said, but it was terrible. This was Tuesday and the song had to be recorded Friday.

Improved In Storage?

The three song musketeers delved into their stock of old unused tunes, and found a dusty unpublished song they hadn't considered good enough to release. They wrote new lyrics, and submitted it to Johnson, who re-

Spanish Plant Expands Firestone World Interests

Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., (center) Vice-President of The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, and other directors of Firestone-Hispania watching the first tire being built in the new factory at Bilbao, Spain. The factory, located in the beautiful Ibaizabal River Valley, is shown below.

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company continued its ever-widening scope of activity with the recent opening of Firestone-Hispania's new plant at Bilbao, Spain. A large staff of Firestone's American technical and production men were sent to Spain for the erection and operation of the plant.

Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., son of the rubber pioneer and a director of the Spanish Company, represented the Firestone organization at the opening of the new plant, where the governor of Vizcaya Province, the mayor of Bilbao, leading bankers of the country and 300 tire dealers of Spain gathered. Mr. Firestone, addressing the assembly at the inaugural luncheon in Spanish, said, "Spain has already recognized the value of highway transportation by the construction of fine hard surfaced arterial roads. We will lend every possible assistance to our Spanish associates in their sincere desire to serve efficiently and economically the rapidly increasing automotive needs of the nation."

Life Story Of Mae West, Star Of Movie Land, Is Colorful

(Paramount's Sensational Star) Chapter I

If Ripley would like to find an oddity of nature, or a freak of creation for his "Believe It Or Not," that will stand out like the handles on a bicycle or be as striking as a red tie on a clergyman, let him try and find the civilized man, woman or child who by this time has not heard of or seen Mae West on the screen.

What a sensation this lady is, who portrays sinful dames. Hollywood has not yet recovered from the shock this dynamite lady gave it. And certainly she is the darling of the heart of every theatre manager who checks up in his box-office at night.

But to get down to facts and figures.

Old Doc Stork hovered over Brooklyn, little knowing that the infant he then brought would one day become the exponent theatrically of lusty and careless ladies.

Mae was born only two blocks from the birthplace of her predecessor as the screen's wildest woman, Clara Bow.

August 17 was the date of her arrival and seven and eight have always been her lucky numbers, she maintains. Note that her birth date shows the one and totals the other.

There are some meemies who allege that the gorgeous Mae is older than she appears. They argue how could a very young woman have so much stage and screen presence, so thorough a technique, and be so completely mistress of her art. Well, the explanation is simple. The fact is that Mae has been before the public for a long, long time, because she started her career at the age of five. And she points out that when she was a very young woman playing in "Diamond Lil," she was obliged for the sake of realism to build and pad herself up to look like a hardened, experienced woman.

Her father, Jack West, was a popular figure, too. He rated headlines back in those gay nineties Mae glorified in her play, "Diamond Lil," and in her film, "She Done Him Wrong." He was a featherweight boxer, who nearly rose to the world championship in his class.

From her dad, Mae inherited the fighting spirit which has carried her to the top. From him, also, she gained her utter fearlessness, her poise, her strong body, vital health and carefree personality.

Mae's mother was of French and German parentage born in Paris. She was gay, vivacious, innately artistic, sympathetic, understanding and ambitious. Mae declares that her mother alone is responsible for her amazing success. It was her love and encouragement from the days Mae was scarcely able to toddle that made her become an actress.

Mae was five years old when she made her first public appearance. The occasion was a church social—and a yellowed newspaper clipping which her mother saved proclaims that she stole the show. That started a habit, incidentally, which she has followed throughout her show career. Many talented actors shy away from appearing with Mae West, because they know she will take the play right away from them.

"The only reason you are here now is to close the record which Senator Howell gave his life to build and which that rat from Louisiana helped kill!" Eyes blazing with anger, Chief Investigator John G. Holland is pictured as he unloosed a tirade against Senators Logan and Thomas, members of the Senate committee investigating Louisiana election scandals, at New Orleans. Huey Long, at a nearby table, was the third target of Holland's denunciation.

NEW PLAN TO DO AWAY WITH SLUM SECTIONS IN N. Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—Down with slums! Away with unsightly hodge-podge that call themselves residential communities! "Yes"—echoes a chorus in scores of teeming cities—"but how?"

The Regional Plan association of New York City thinks that it has the key in a theoretical project on Long Island—a sort of "master formula" adaptable, it believes, to any of the 191 cities over 50,000, and providing complete community centers for 5,000 or less to $25 a month per room.

A Two-Year Problem

The formula submitted to the Public Works administration in Washington has been worked out over a period of two years, and construction is plotted as a working basis for private or governmental interests.

A section of land in a "blighted area" in the Borough of Queens, New York, was selected by the association for application of the theory. Similar sections in other cities could be used.

The plan for the low-cost design for 6,000 persons covers more than 41 acres and includes all community facilities such as a church, school, playgrounds, stores, swimming pool, tennis courts, athletic association, social club, and a moving picture theatre.
