THE THREE LITTLE PIGS

"The Three Little Pigs," technicolor animated cartoon creation that has taken the country by storm, is appearing at the local playhouse and La Granders, like the rest of the nation, are turning out to see it. Why a movie "short", less than 20 minutes to show, should create such a national sensation, is difficult to believe until one sees the film.

The drawings and colorings are supreme, but that is not particularly the reason. The musical score is superb, catchy and perfectly synchronized and the little picture in its entirety is undoubtedly the best production yet of its kind, yet that is not the full reason for its success. These things contribute mightily to the pleasure of its audiences but the real success of the picture in our opinion lies in the psychological effect of the theme.

Based on an old nursery rhyme, familiar to all, the picture breaks upon the nation at a time of realization that it portrays exactly the experience and explanation of the period of adversity through which we have passed. Like two of the little pigs in the story most of us during the years just preceding our depression gained the idea that the life of heyday and prosperity would continue indefinitely . . . no need to worry, plan or become too concerned about the future . . . the future would take care of itself. Much business, fortunes and investment, our very lives themselves were built rapidly of sticks and straws, with foundations even less secure. Common sense told us better, but we were too busy enjoying things as they were. "Who was afraid of the big bad wolf?" Nobody!

But the wolf, in the form of depression, came back. The unground and the unreal, built of sticks and straw quickly collapsed. We are again in the realization that life, success and progress in the real develops with careful well sounded reasoning and planning of the future upon foundations of new wisdom, common sense, thrift, cautiousness, sobriety of mind and purpose.

It's a mighty sturdy public building that stands until the last bond issue for its construction is paid off.

No one is rich enough to do without a neighbor.

INFLATION ISSUE TO BE CONFUSING TO U. S. VOTERS

By Byron Price

One of the most confusing situations in all political history will confront the voter in 1934 if, as many expect, the inflation issue is carried over into the congressional campaign.

Even in 1890, when the silver dispute developed many complicated ramifications, the question presented for decision sounded simple compared to the currency problem of today.

There is no agreement as to what the administration plans to do with the wide inflationary powers it has, and, on the other hand, there is no union of thought among those who criticize the administration.

Possibly some of the fog may lift as time goes by, but it is expecting a great deal to assume that anyone is likely to appear on either side who can state the question simply and understandably, in terms not open to dispute, so that it can be answered directly "Yes" or "No."

Double faults. Broadly, it appears that most of the protests against the Roosevelt gold-buying program rest not so much on objections to the intrinsic economic soundness of that policy, but on apprehension as to its ultimate result.

The apprehension takes two directions. Some argue that the constant change in gold prices, however much good it may be doing to the currency, is leading to disastrous business uncertainty. Others deduce that the gold program, although not dangerous in itself, is a first and irrevocable step toward later wild inflation.

Stated more compactly, the present question largely settles down to this: Can inflation be controlled?

The answer would be easier if there were agreement on the meaning of the terms involved. Administration opponents talk of themselves as the "sound money" crowd. Yet Mr. Roosevelt, too, is pledged to "sound money"—the words come directly out of the last Democratic platform—and certainly no one is going about shouting for "unsound money."

The term "inflation" is quite as elusive, as used today. Generally it means cheapening the value of money, and getting more of it into circulation. Some think gold-buying is inflation; others even think inflation began under Hoover. Still others are assuring the country, "There has been no inflation yet."

In Wall street many regard Senator Elmer Thomas as the wildest kind of inflationist, but he, himself, hints that he is not for inflation at all. He says he wants "currency expansion."

Making a Party Issue. Nor is that the whole difficulty. To be determining in a campaign, an issue must be made a party issue. How is that to be done?

Many thought party lines pretty well demoralized by the campaign of 1932. It seems to have escaped general notice that the currency debate has demoralized them far more.

Al Smith was regular enough to support Mr. Roosevelt for president, but he is not regular enough to support him now. Senator Borah was not insurgent enough to bolt to Roosevelt in '32, but he is insurgent enough to come to his defense now.

To millions of voters, it all is pretty much of a headache. And probably the worst is yet to come.

BENNETT BAGS TAGGED DUCK

A Mallard duck, shot by Alvin Bennett, of La Grande, in Malheur county the other day, carried a U. S. biological survey tag C-413371. Mr. Bennett plans to send the tag to Washington to learn where the duck was tagged.

People and Spots in the Late News

TAMMANY BUSTERS—Left, Mayor-elect Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York City, son of an immigrant Italian bandmaster, and right, Judge Samuel Seabury, scion of an old American family of Episcopalian clergymen, whose famous inquiry into Tammany's methods swept the Tiger out and Fusion candidates in on a reform platform.

IN AND OUT OF THE NEWS—Left, Maxim Litvinoff, former rebel and travelling valetman, now Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, who negotiated Russian recognition with President Roosevelt. Right, former Congressman Andrew J. Volstead of Minnesota, who unconcernedly sees his noted dry law swept away by repeal.

WIND FIGHTERS—Upper picture, 90-foot duralumin whirling tower erected at Burlington, N. J., by Julius D. Madaras, inventor, (left) to show that enormous power of winds could be scientifically harnessed to generate electricity at one-fifth usual cost. Public utilities financed his experiments in wind tunnels at University of Michigan. Ten-mile wind on tower exerted 2,000 pounds cross pull and bent heavy iron bars.

ONLY CO-ED among 3,000 student engineers at New York University, Isabel Ebel, right, studies retarding effect of winds in all modern transportation and tries to develop better airplane wing with less air drag. Car model is scientifically streamlined to create better balance, larger passenger area, comfort and economy, through reducing wind resistance.

CARNERA, BAER AND DEMPSEY IN PICTURE

La Grande theatre fans, and boxing fans as well, will find much of interest in the today and Tuesday offering at the Liberty. "The Prizefighter and the Lady" featuring Max Baer, heavyweight challenger, and Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion of the world, will open its first run here tomorrow. It is appearing in a first run theatre in Portland now and won wide acclaim from both theatre and boxing critics. The two big boys of the ring square off in the picture, and the same thing may happen some day with the world's title at stake.

Others in the cast include Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, who acts as referee; Myrna Loy and Walter Huston, famous movie stars.
In addition to this picture, the famous "The Three Little Pigs," which has taken the movie world by storm, is also on the bill for the three days.

CREPE AND VELVET MAKE THEATRE OUTFIT

WASHINGTON (AP)—Shades of red are attractively combined in an evening ensemble worn to the theatre by Mrs. William C. Gwynn. The gown is flowered crepe in shades of pink worn with a tiny jacket of garnet velvet. The long outer wrap is a rich wine velvet.

Beware the Cough Or Cold That Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, crocote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the crocote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. —Adv.

Health Is half of success

To the Editor:
On a late issue of bonds four and a half per cent was the rate of interest to be paid, according to the papers. Notwithstanding one heavy bond issue after another, and a great increase of the national debt, a tremendous rush is made for every bond issue on the part of the money lending classes. Was it necessary to make the people pay four and a half per cent interest?

The same government in Washington has fixed the rate of interest to be paid on deposits in the banks at two to three per cent. It makes a difference who gets the interest.
The interest on the bonds is paid to such fellows as those in Washington who determine the rate of interest.

BLUNT SPEAKS ON "POVERTY"

J. H. Blunt spoke to the young people of the Christian church last night on "Poverty; Its Causes and Remedies." Using statistics and illustrations from life as well as facts from the Bible he showed that man's poverty is caused largely, in fact almost entirely, directly or indirectly by his own mistakes and wrongdoings. Many causes such as sickness, disease, accidents, infirmities and the like are traceable to man's own violations of moral and physical laws, he said.

Every man achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment; constipation. It dulls energy, often causes headaches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
