Arthur Bruce Returned to Boise, Idaho

Word has been received here that Arthur Bruce, who spent considerable time in La Grande and Union several months ago, was returned to Boise Wednesday from Denver to face three grand jury indictments. Because he was taken from the train on a stretcher, with his head bleeding, wild rumors of attempted escape or of attempted suicide ran riot around Boise, a news dispatch said. Deputy sheriffs explained, however, that Bruce had gone into the wash room just after the train passed Orchard, determined to clean up when he reached Boise. As the train swung around a curve he lost his footing and fell against one of the cupboards in the smoking-wash room of the Pullman.

Fred Lanzer at Session in Baker, Ore.

Fred Lanzer, of the Mt. Emily Lumber company, attended a meeting of lumbermen of Southwestern Idaho and Eastern Oregon in Baker on Wednesday. The meeting was held to discuss the NRA and other matters pertaining to the industry.

Boyd Jackson in Play Cast

"Gods of the Mountains," by Lord Dunsany, is one of two productions being presented this month by the dramatic department at the University of Oregon. Boyd Jackson, son of Mrs. Ruth Jackson, and a student at Eugene, has an important part in the production, portraying the role of a beggar, one of a group who unwisely attempt to impersonate the gods.

One Coffee can't serve Two Masters

Percolator method or Drip method. Take your choice, but whichever method you prefer, be sure to buy the proper coffee for it. The methods are so different that a different coffee is required for each.

In a drip coffee maker, boiling water drips ONLY ONCE through a coffee specially prepared to yield its flavor QUICKLY. In a percolator, water passes many times through a coffee prepared to yield its flavor SLOWLY. The same coffee can be used for both methods, but like a "Jack-of-all-trades" it is "master of none"—neither drip nor percolator. In one or the other, little things happen. It's a little weak, or a little strong, or a little cloudy, or it has a little less flavor. It's these little things that make or mar good coffee. Be sure to use the correct coffee for each method.

Your grocer has two Schilling Coffees, identical in flavor, but each is specially prepared for its purpose—each one different in blend, roast and grind.
