

LA GRANDE HIGH DEFEATS POWDER TOSSERS 38 TO 18

La Grande High school's basketball team chalked up another victory Saturday night, but not until a listless display in the first three quarters had local fans on edge. But in the fourth period, the Tigers turned on the heat to score 10 points and defeat North Powder 38 to 18.

In a preliminary, the La Grande seconds trounced the North Powder Bees 19 to 8. The victors started off with a rush and held a 4 to 2 lead at the end of the first quarter. In the second quarter the Tigers whipped up somewhat to take an 11 to 10 lead at halftime, and during the third frame built up an insecure margin of four points. This period ended 19 to 15.

Then the blue and white tossers started stepping, led by Bean, Stitt and Reynolds, and poured in points at a high rate of speed. Stitt was high scorer of the contest with 11 points.

WASHINGTON NEAR BASKETBALL TITLE WITH EIGHT WINS

Table with 4 columns: Team, W, L, Pct. Lists Washington, Oregon State, Idaho, Washington State, California, Southern California, Stanford, and Ucla.

SEATTLE, Jan. 29 (AP) — Safely past the mid-way mark with a loss marked up in the record books, the University of Washington Huskies will journey south this weekend for four northern division Pacific coast conference hoop tussles that may give them the title now held by Oregon State.

Coach Hec Edmundson's men have played just half of the 16 conference games on their schedule and have won all of them. Four more victories would put the bunting beyond reach of the other members of the circuit.

The league-leaders will meet the Oregon State Beavers at Corvallis Friday and Saturday nights in their first series with last year's champions, and then will shift over to Eugene for a pair of games with the Oregon Webfoots, Washington State and Idaho, the other two members of the northern division, will tangle Saturday night at Moscow.

In game last week, the Huskies took a pair from Oregon, winning 33-28 Friday night and 34-25 Saturday, while Oregon State took Friday's game from Washington State 26-23, but dropped the second meeting 24-15. Bob Galer, the Huskies' point-piling forward, got five counters in the first Webfoot game and 14 in the second to run his season's total to 88, an average of 11 points a game.

Imbler Defeats Wallowa Cagers At Imbler 34-11

IMBLER (Special) — Imbler High school added another victory to its list last Friday night by defeating Wallowa by the top-sided score of 34 to 11. Wallowa failed to score a field goal the last quarter, when Bartness, Wallowa forward, made a field goal against Imbler's second team. Meade was high for Wallowa with four counters, while McCoy, Imbler forward, was high man for Imbler with 12 points.

The lineups: (1) Wallowa Imbler (34) (2) Sannar Pratt (5) (3) Bartness Crouser (9) (4) Southwick Fowler (1) (5) Carpenter McKinnis (5) (6) Bird Friewold (5) (7) Eddleman Tetter (2) (8) Sutphin Wagoner (5) (9) Meade K. Pratt (5) (10) Bird Koeman (8) Referee: Jiggs Burnett. Umpire: Gene Perry.

Elgin Tossers Break Even In Weekend Games

ELGIN (Special) — The Elgin boys' basketball team broke even this weekend, defeating Union Friday night at Union, 34-28 and losing to Wallowa on the latter floor 17-24.

Both games were marked by very spotty basketball. Trailing at the half by a score of 16-10, the Elgin team came back handsily to tie up and finally pulled ahead with a last quarter rally in the Union encounter. Knezovich's floor work was outstanding.

The Wallowa game was rough, featured by the long range shooting of Carpenter, Wallowa guard and Barnes, Wallowa forward. Close guarding and inability to break consistent-

BLOND GODDESS A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Janice Kent, the movie star, has disappeared, and a man named Ortega, ostensibly a Hollywood agent, is suspected for a Mexican picture with the producer. Frank stepped behind his improvised barricade of stones and drew his weapon. The stones across the road would stop the car he was sure — unless the driver elected to crash through.

If the driver suspected he was being stopped he might make the attempt; it did not matter whether the car was the one he awaited or some stranger. The driver's reaction — seeing an armed man waiting on the other side of the barricade — would be the same.

He withdrew to the side and crouched behind a larger boulder. Headlights glared from behind the nearest turn. The engine roared spasmodically as the car lurched over the uneven road-bed.

Frank could not discover the car's make or condition behind the dazzling light. The automobile approached the road's edge across the road; he heard the springs squeak and the front end within the car called something, unintelligible. He heard the ratchet of the hand-brake click.

As the driver's door opened he saw suddenly that this was the tan car that had crashed Janice Kent's motor at the Hollywood intersection three nights before. Now, however, the top was up and the side-curtains fastened. He arose from behind his boulder and leaped forward.

A MAN stepped out of the open door. Started recognition leaped into his eyes as he saw Grahame. Over his shoulder Frank was conscious of a gleam of metal, instinctively he averted.

Flame stabbed from within the car — a gun emitted. Frank felt the tug of the passing bullet at the side of his coat. The driver's hand was thrust within his coat lapel. Before he could withdraw it, Frank swung his pistol forward.

The heavy barrel met the forehead of the other. The driver lurched backward against a fender. Grahame swung and dropped to his knees. Again the gun from within the car roared.

Frank threw up the muzzle of his weapon and fired at the flash. A man cried out; there was the clang of metal. A door struck thinly against the side of the car.

Springing to his feet, Frank tore at the rear door of the car. He jerked it open, twisted sideways and thrust his gun within. Instantly he saw that the two opposite doors were open. Through the other rear door he saw two men clawing up the short embankment.

The one to the left thrust up his hand gripping at a road post. It was black-spotted with blood. As he watched, the other, a smaller man, drew himself erect upon the top of the bank. His face was in profile.

The nose was disproportionately large, a hooked beak of a nose, predatory and vulturine. Frank's gun lifted; his trigger finger contracted slightly. He did not fire, but shook his head to throw off the confusing mist the clash had induced. He he, but three against one, with Janice's presence jeopardizing his efficiency, were odds that gave him some little thought.

HE took out his army automatic, slipped out the clip and shook it free of water; he slid back the cocking mechanism and with his handkerchief wiped the arm as free of moisture as he could. Winslow watching from the roadside, whistled.

"Haven't seen one of those for years," he said. "If the cops back in town caught you with that they'd write a letter."

Frank grinned. "Just an ounce of prevention, Spin. Hope I won't have to."

"Another of the famo's last words," chuckled Spin. This seated themselves on road side boulders. There was a moon nearly full overhead, and by its light Frank saw that his companion's face was pale and strained. While he had a draggish the half-conscious flyer through the surf they'd been given a bad pounding.

BETTER PRICES IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP) — Commodity stocks and specialty issues led the equities market in a steady but restrained advance today while Washington developments generally were viewed as constructive. A late rally in wheat and cotton and a reduction of international dollar rates aided the recovery. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 2,850,000 shares.
