"WAS TAKING EVERY KIND OF DRUG FOR CONSTIPATION"
Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief

Read this very enthusiastic letter:
"I am 34 years old and as far back in my life I have been constipated. I was so bad that I had one bowel movement every five or six days—I was taking every kind of drug known for constipation."
"Now for the last two months I have been eating a little ALL-BRAN night and morning and I have at least two to three bowel movements each day."—Mr. Frank Piratzky, 40-66 98th St., Corona, Long Island, New York.
Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a fine source of iron for the blood.
The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.
Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two table-spoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.
You'll enjoy eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream—sugar or honey or fresh fruits added. Or, to use in cooking.
In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NEW VISION IS NEEDED
They were talking about the depression, and a young woman told how friends of hers, living on a farm, had suffered great losses. Their farm equipment had gone to pieces, their car was a wheezing wreck, they wore old patched clothing, and they were hanging on to their farm only by virtue of the mortgage-holders tolerance.
And an old lady who listened to the conversation smiled gently and began to compare the plight of depression's victims with the early lives of her own parents, who had opened up a farm back in the pioneer era.
"Your friends," she said, "have had a terrible time, and they have a lot to worry about—but do they really know what privation means? Did they ever get through a winter on cornmeal and bacon, as my parents did repeatedly? Have they lived through month after month completely isolated, with the nearest neighbor 15 miles away and no way of communication with him in case of need?
"They've lost everything—yet they still have their electricity to light their farm and pump their water and lighten their laundry work. Their farm machinery has run down—but my parents had no farm machinery at all. Their auto is a wreck—but at least they have it, and it still runs and it will take them places in a tenth of the time it took my parents to move about. They're wearing old clothing—but they didn't have to weave the cloth it was made of, or cut and sew the cloth once it was woven."
Now that little comparison between today's troubles and the everyday life of our forefathers may be pretty cold comfort for a family that has been hit by the depression. Yet it is something worth thinking about. Bad as times have been—and they have been cruelly bad—it pays to remind ourselves that even the worst that we have today is in many respects better than the best that our grandparents had.
The obvious reply to that, of course, is that the pioneers could endure hardships because they felt themselves to be part of a great movement. They were not living for the present, but for the future. They could discount privation, because they saw a richer and happier time ahead of them. Well, that's true enough—but can't we do the same?
The finest thing that has happened to us in this last year is the fact that we have had a rebirth of national solidarity. We seem all headed in the same direction once more. There is in the air again a feeling that the whole country is working together for the common good. The vision similar to that sustained the pioneers may be used by all of us.

Credit Expansion To Follow Devaluation
increase in gold would support a theoretical maximum increase, according to the workings of our banking system, of several times that.
The action of the president in authorizing the treasury both to buy and sell gold at $35 an ounce, in the opinion of foreign exchange experts, may largely solve the problem of stabilizing the dollar, particularly insofar as the gold countries are concerned. It is therefore possible that the stabilization fund may not have to devote much attention to the international money market, and may concentrate upon domestic problems.
