Riding Ease In New Dodge Six The Last Word

The ultimate in present day comfortable, effortless driving is claimed for the New Dodge Six, now being demonstrated in this district by L. C. Smith, local dealer, but that isn't all that the newest creation can boast of.

Yesterday afternoon an Observer reporter was allowed to drive the new "Miracle" car through the courtesy of Bert Hamilton, member of the Smith agency, and he found there are three different ways to drive it, the conventional gear shift, free wheeling and the automatic clutch—but most users are almost entirely devoted to the latter because of convenience and safety.

Another powerful sales point is the safety steel body, that absorbs shocks that ordinarily would injure passengers or car. In addition to these features the New Dodge Six has hydraulic brakes, new seven-point ventilation that allows one to control or shut out air currents anytime one wishes, new luxury in designing, a powerful, quiet engine, a cross lighting system that makes glare practically impossible, and many other features.

And Dodge has the new "Floating-Cushion" wheels, which give riding ease of a new order, that enables one to go over ruts, rocks, through the worst kind of roads with a minimum of discomfort. The bumps one expects simply do not materialize. The reason, of course, is that the wheels absorb all jolts, jars and vibrations.

On Business—
