Washington's Birthday Luncheon

Held By D. A. R. Thursday
At The Home of Mrs. A. T. Hill

The Washington's birthday luncheon held Thursday at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. A. T. Hill, on First street, was a most colorful affair; for the members of the La Grande chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, having as their guests a score or more of women eligible to membership, appeared in lovely colonial costumes, younger women and matrons wearing lovely shades of pink and yellow and green and lavender, with powdered hair or snow-white wigs. This picture of women, gowns and crowns of white hair, had a beautiful setting too, for the Hill home was most attractive, with its decorations harmonizing with the national colors. Especially striking was the living room where the console set carried tapers of matching color with red and white carnations and blue pussy willows.

The luncheon was served at 1 o'clock with the menu including items appropriate to the day, such as Virginia baked ham, southern sweet potatoes, Martha Washington pie.

The program immediately followed. The chairman of the program committee, Miss Mabel Morton, presided, and after a short introductory presentation the regent, Mrs. W. B. Picketts, who welcomed the guests and then led in the singing of "America" and the salute to the flag. Mrs. Robert Dixon, chaplain, offered the prayer which is known as "George Washington's Prayer." Mrs. Flavia Sherwood sang a group of songs at the beginning and at the close of the program. A one-act play, "A Colonial Dream," provided the remainder of the program. It was a clever little production, exceptionally well-done by a group in beautiful colonial costumes. Miss Marianne Boyles, as Lionel Wellman, Mrs. Jack Coolidge, as Penelope Prim, and Mrs. Joel Richardson, as Mistress Susanna Love, took the leading roles and they were supported by the other girls of Miss Love's school, Peggy, Mrs. Lynne Bohnenkamp, Anne, Mrs. Ray Williams, Becky, Mrs. Homer Lefel, and Constance, Mrs. Harry G. Avery, with Miss Jean Williams as director. One feature of the play was the minut presented by the four students, Peggy, Anne, Becky and Constance with Mrs. P. S. Robinson furnishing the accompaniment. There was an hour or more of informal sociability before the company dispersed.

Washington's birthday is one day of the year, which Daughters of the American Revolution never fail to observe. Flag day in June being the other of two days invariably recognized. While nothing of a biographical nature of the first president was presented at yesterday's program, a short tribute from John Hyde Preston was read, and in compliance with numerous requests it is included here:

"No greatness is as difficult to define as it is to measure. As a general, other men have excelled him. Any amateur militarist can pick holes in his strategy. Grant and Robert E. Lee could have easily won all the battles he lost. And yet it is very doubtful that they could have won the Revolution. Perhaps he is the only man in history who could have held together those disorganized, mongrel states and led them to final victory. He won the war by the one thing nobody had counted on when they appointed him commander-in-chief in 1775. He won it by his character. . . . Character implies a combination of selflessness, vigor, intelligence, courage and steadfastness. Washington had all five. He added to these his charm, his silence, his profound capacity for love. Other men have qualities, he had character. "He was a leader who could not be led, a man who governed only to serve, an idealist who would fight for his ideals. That is why he will remain forever the republican hero, America's "rock of ages."

Informal Party Enjoyed by Club

A pleasant informal afternoon was enjoyed by the Goodwill club of the Women's Relief Corps Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Laura Davis. In the absence of Mrs. Margaret Harmon, president, who is visiting in the valley, Mrs. Davis, the vice president, was in charge of the business session during which it was decided to give away the quilt which the club has made at the next meeting in two weeks.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent visiting and refreshments were served. Mrs. Laura Braden and Mrs. Jennie Eckstein were guests.

Mrs. Lillian Shewmaker will entertain in two weeks.

Bridge Party At C. L. Thompson Home

One of the delightful events of Tuesday evening was a bridge party at which Mrs. Chester L. Thompson entertained members of her club at the Thompson home. Mrs. H. M. Howard and Mrs. Forrest Scroggin were guests, the former receiving the guest prize. Prizes among the members were presented to Mrs. Homer V. Lefel, first, and Mrs. E. Robert Quinn, consolation.

Refreshments were served. In two weeks the dinner club will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson.

Literature Group Hears Review

Roark Bradford, a negro author, whose contribution to recognition of the negro has been a definite and lasting one, is the author of "Kingdom Coming," which was reviewed Thursday night by Miss Eva Wear before the American Association of University Women literature group. Miss Margaret Carstairs was hostess to the group at the Sacajawea annex.

Miss Wear's review caught the spirit of the negro race and was a portrait ably presented.

N. O. W. Make Plans For New Club

Thirty-three members of the Neighbors of Woodcraft met recently at the Odd Fellows hall. A club was organized of members which will meet the third Thursday in each month. The next regular meeting of the lodge will be held on March 6 at 7:30 o'clock.

Friends Enjoy Bridge Party

Mrs. Floyd Anderson was hostess at a charming event Thursday afternoon at her home when she entertained a group of friends at bridge.

Guests were Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Skiff, Mrs. H. M. Finlay, Mrs. George Fuller, Mrs. Clifford Perkins, Mrs. George Tiss, Mrs. Philip Walnum, Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Willard Tubbs and Mrs. Fred Jones.

Cast Entertained At Church Party

The cast of the three-act comedy, "The Man in the Green Shirt," which was given recently at the Christian church, was entertained at a no-host party Tuesday night at the church parlors. Various games were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served at 10:30 o'clock.

A gift was presented to Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Nelson from Division C of the Ladies Aid in appreciation of their help in directing the play.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Helvey, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Falow, Rev. and Mrs. Paul Mortimore, Mr. and Mrs. John Winburn, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Winburn, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and Miss Beryl Jones, Cecil Stuart, Fern Jones, Thelma Strain and Lynn Smutz and Bob Evans.

Relief Society Holds Meeting

Literature of the Bible is the theme of the literary lessons discussed once a month by the members of the Second Ward Relief society of the L. D. S. church. Mrs. Eva Price led the lesson Tuesday on the various types of interests supplied by the Bible, oratory, allegory, essays, biography, folk lore, romance, drama, history, lyric poetry and law, assisted by members of the class.

The study will be continued at the March literary lesson. Next Tuesday the social service lesson, "Sex and Emotional Maturity in Children," will be led by Mrs. Eva Price.

Wetomachich Camp Fire Girls Meet

The Wetomachich Camp Fire group was entertained at the home of Misses Edna and Jean Jasper Tuesday. After a short business session candy was sacked by the girls and refreshments were served.

Camp Fire Girls Plan Skating Event

The Hewokete Camp Fire planned a skating party at the park for Saturday when they met Thursday at the home of the guardian at 7:30 o'clock. If the park is not open Saturday they will enjoy a party at the home of Miss Harriett Becker, the president. Plans also were made yesterday for making a calendar for the group.

After the business meeting refreshments were served by the guardian, Miss Erma Divens.

Parletts Entertain Club

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Parlett entertained at four tables of bridge Tuesday night for members of their club at their home. Prizes for high scores at bridge were awarded to Mrs. C. A. Rosenbaum and W. C. Hoppel. Refreshments were served.
