Mrs. Clyde R. Seitz Gives Review Of "Life of Henry Hudson" At Art Ramblers Club Meeting

Mrs. Clyde R. Seitz reviewed "The Life of Henry Hudson" by Llewellyn Powys, Monday afternoon before the members of the Art Ramblers club at the home of Mrs. L. B. Moss, Hudson was an English navigator in the service of Holland in the 17th century. He made four voyages, which Mrs. Seitz discussed, looking for a passage to China, and during the fourth he discovered the Hudson bay which is named for him.

Gatusi Camp Fire Girls Get Honors

The Gatusi Camp Fire group held an impressive council fire at the home of Mrs. Raymond O. Williams, guardian, Monday afternoon at which honors were awarded to the girls. The committee for March was appointed, consisting of Adelaide Ann Zweifel, Gloria May Walker, Judith Jane Williams and Mary Marie Heasler.

Mr., Mrs. Barron Are Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Barron were complimented last night on the occasion of their seventh wedding anniversary when Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Perkins entertained at their home. After an evening of pinocle a buffet lunch was served at midnight. The service carried out a pink and white color scheme attractively.

Mrs. Hoppel Is Hostess to Club

Mrs. Clyde Hoppel entertained at an afternoon meeting Monday for members of the Wakelita club and Mrs. J. E. Reynolds, a guest. Prizes at bridge were awarded to Mrs. Joan Brandt, first, and Mrs. J. E. Reynolds, second.

have been started indoors are likely to be more tender than outdoor seedlings. Cabbage, cauliflower and head lettuce plants are commonly so started, and should not be set outdoors until the likelihood of severe frost has passed. Seedlings may sometimes be obtained which have been started outdoors south of your locality where spring is earlier, and which have been hardened to light frosts. But the advantage of early setting out of plants is not so great as early seed sowing; the plants continue to grow indoors without risk while you wait for safe weather.

Health

COLD IN THE EYE
What is commonly called a cold in the eye or pink-eye is really an inflammation of the conjunctiva, that is, the membrane covering the eyeball. It is caused by germs. At times the onset of this condition may be so sudden that the patient believes he has a foreign body in his eye. As the condition progresses the evidence of its inflammatory nature becomes clear, for minute pieces of pus and mucus are to be seen around the eyelashes. The eyeball itself may become brick red in color, due to the congestion of the blood vessels. The inner surfaces of the lids are also red and the lids themselves may become thickened.

Treatment of this condition calls for frequent and gentle washing with a mild lotion. Such a lotion can be made out of boric acid, 2 per cent, table salt, borax or sodium bicarbonate. The eyes should be washed with the lotion three times daily and after each washing a drop of some mild antiseptic should be dropped within the lower lid. Ten per cent argyrol or 5 per cent protargol, these two being silver compounds, may be employed.

Before going to bed it is important to grease the eyelashes and the lid margins with petrolatum. This will prevent the lids from sticking together during sleep. Should the lids become adherent, the sufferer experiences much annoyance, and healing is retarded because the drainage of the secretions is interfered with. At times the conjunctivitis is limited to the corners of the eye. In this condition the redness is seen at the eye margins and it extends a little on to the skin surface. Flakes or small collections of mucus and pus may be seen at the eye margins. This condition usually responds to the treatment described above, but in addition requires further treatment with zinc sulphate, which should be administered under careful medical supervision.

Heads Chinese

Traditions of centuries were upset when Mrs. Jessie Lee Mar, Fresno Cal., was elected secretary of the Six Companies, Chinese-American benevolent society. It is the first time a woman has held office in a major Chinese organization.

550,000 Miles In Air for Her

Katherine May can be pardoned if she looks down on folks a little, for she's been up in the air so much that it's become a habit. Miss May, shown here in San Francisco in her uniform as stewardess on a transcontinental line, has traveled more than 550,000 miles by plane in the course of her work.

Vivid New Colors and Light Effects

The millions of visitors who saw the 1933 Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago and who return to see the 1934 Fair will find radical differences in coloring and lighting effects. New buildings, new color and lighting schemes and many new exhibits will make practically a new Fair. The above picture shows a bit of the color and lighting of the Planarium where myriad colored lights playing downward on the clear waters of the basin and on the brilliantly colored patterns over which the waters flow create a veritable fairland effect.

HEEL-LESS SANDALS

Heel-less and low heeled sandals are one of the surprises for spring that will tempt the venturesome. For afternoon, the low heeled slipper becomes elegant in dark tone velvets. Evening sandals may be absolutely guileless of heels, or have a low heel to conform to this new fashion. They can be fashioned of gold or silver, crepe or satin, and their color is a matter of choice—matching, contrasting or accenting the ensemble. Beige sandals in the truest sense of the word, toes are revealed, but heels may be open or closed.

ISINGLASS BELTS FASHION NOVELTY

PARIS (AP)—Isinglass belts are a 1934 fashion novelty. One designer showed frocks of navy blue and gray wool with clear isinglass belts about two inches wide. They were finished with a fancy clasp of the same material. Quarter sized buttons of transparent wrapping material, painted with bright nosegays, appear on other frocks.

PLEATED RUFF NECKLINE ON PHILIPPINE DRESS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Camillo Ostas, wife of the Philippine delegate to congress, caused a flurry at a White House reception by wearing one of the picturesque gowns of her native country, made of coral-colored Pima cloth with a high pleated ruff at the neckline.

SWEDEN CUTS NAVAL COSTS

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Swedish naval estimates are being reduced about 20 per cent to nearly $1,000,000. The economies include training seamen on shore for most of the year, decommissioning most of the ships and employing women as cooks and waitresses.

SCARF'S WORN INSIDE

If you are being tailored for spring and plan to wear a alpover sweater with your suit, you will probably want a scarf to relieve the crew neckline. The very newest thing you could possibly do about it is to wear a short scarf, tied as fashion high around your neck, and tuck the ends inside your sweater. Then tuck out your favorite brooch, and pin it to your sweater to secure the scarf. Double-headed pins are the smartest for this brooch-and-scarf ensemble idea.

HALF-SIZE CORSETS

It is surprising but true that lots of women don't know that corsets come in half sizes, although they may be convinced they can't wear anything but a half size dress. If you are being fitted to a corset, you may emerge triumphant with a half size, and not even know it. But if you are dashing in and asking for the same also corset you bought last time you may be risking that little extra something a half size one way or the other could do for you.

May Be Judge

John C. Bowen, internal revenue collector for Washington and Alaska, who is expected to be U. J. district judge for northwest Washington, succeeding Judge Nester, resigned.

O. H. BAUMGART IS MENTIONED FOR LEADER

Otto H. Baumgart, formerly of La Grande and former president of the Union County Young Democrats, is being mentioned as one of seven prospects for the presidency of the Young Democratic League of Oregon. It was learned here today.

ATTEND DINNER AT ENTERPRISE

George Walker, president-elect, Harold C. Boone, secretary, and several other members of the La Grande chamber of commerce, will go to Enterprise tonight to attend the annual banquet of the chamber of commerce there. Others planning to make the trip are Gene Walker, F. G. Henning, Marcus Roesch, Frank Tuckey, B. C. Madill and possibly A. K. Parker.

BLOND GODDESS A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

Her shirt, her jacket, her breeches—were beginning to show the ravages of daily toil. They looked worn and scuffed. Her hands were swollen and red from the unaccustomed severity of working with the coarse fiber. Only her face looked serene and fit, that and the minted-gold glory of her hair.

Langton said softly, "Frank, a girl of her courage deserves taking chances for." Frank turned away. He suspected that his old friend had discerned that he, Grahame, was in love with Janice. The kindly fellow, however, had not hinted at it; but certain little tactful gestures when none were necessary made Frank realize that he was conscious that perhaps at least one of his two visitors from civilization might be aware of a sentiment that was deeper than mere comradeship.

The thought was painful to Frank. To him Janice's decision in Holly wood had been uncompromising; there was no further appeal to be made. Any thought or speculation upon what might have been served only to stir unpleasant memories.

Langton had said that she was a girl of courage; to Frank this enforced littleness had given him a greater opportunity to judge; she was magnificent—miraculous. That night he helped Langton complete the balsam-wood jacket. It was a clumsy affair made of two foot lengths of this curious wood that is lighter than cork.

It was tied together with twisted strands of cactus fiber; shoulder straps were made of the same material. Frank tried it on. He realized that in a day or two he would put it to use.

LATER that night, sleeping soundly, they were awakened by the crashing of thunder. Sheet-lightning flared about the skies. Huddled in the doorway of the shack that screened the entrance of the cave, they stood until the sky opened its ducts and drove them away from under the flimsy roof.

Within the cave, dank with unevaporated water from the last floods and musty with bat offal, Grahame and Langton stared at each other soberly.

Resinous torches provided in anticipation of this emergency had been lighted. The thunderous booming without precluded any possibility of sleep.

"The rains are here," muttered Grahame. "It won't be long now," replied Langton lightly. Frank noticed that his friend's face looked queerly pale on the patches his beard did not cover.

In the morning, it was Janice who told them about the curious behavior of the abkin. The girl had insisted, despite the protest of the man, that she be the high-priest's attendant.

She had, however, been determined; therefore they had constructed a pallet in a corner of the inner cave for the abkin and one nearby for the girl. When the two white men, who usually slept in the outer shack, had entered the cave and lighted the torches, Janice had looked to the welfare of her charge.

She had found him, his back supported upright against the cave's wall, rigid in a state approaching cataplexy.

She had shaken his shoulder thinking him in the midst of a dream, but he had not awakened. Usually, she knew, he slept lightly. His limbs and his body were marble-stiff. His face was frozen although his eyes were open but opaque.

Janice reported that it sounded like a quiet droning so imperceptible was his voice, but by concentrating she was aware that words were being said from his parted lips; strange words that held the cadence of mystic ceremony.

"He was asleep and dreaming," Frank suggested. Langton looked thoughtful. The two men did not press her with further comment or question, but as of one accord they made their way to the stream's edge.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Returns—Rev. Carlos A. Plummer returned home yesterday from Baker, where he spoke Sunday morning and evening at the Church of God.

Visiting Sister—Mrs. A. W. Daubner, of Gooding, Ida., arrived last night and is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. Harry Gibson. Mrs. Daubner plans to be here for about three weeks.

Returns to School—Helen Blokland returned to school today after an absence of two weeks, because of illness. She is a student at the J. H. Ackerman Training school.

From Pendleton—Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McDonald, who temporarily make their home in Pendleton, were in La Grande over the weekend and Mrs. McDonald attended the spring fashion tea, sponsored by the American Association of University Women at the Sacajawea Inn.

Visiting Here—Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Happersett, former local residents who now make their home in Portland, are visiting here with their daughter, Mrs. Raymond O. Williams, and their son, Sidney Happersett.

Curses Here—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Currey and family, who have been making their home at Enterprise, are the guests of Mr. Currey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Currey, for a brief visit.

FAGOTTING—Fagotting manages to add an expensive look to the most modest frock, and has returned to spring importance. Fagotting details that form decorative patterns add a delicate touch to patterns. It also brightens up dark sheers almost as effectively as color accents, and is much newer. Dressmaker blouses take to fagotting, too, and the first thing you know you'll be hearing of peek-a-boo shirtwaists again!

Lard Pays Brazilian State Debt—PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil (AP)—Lard exports to Europe last year by the Rio Grande do Sul state consultative commission enabled the state to reduce its debt $6,000,000 and balance its budget. With the last profits the commission holds bonds outstanding in the United States.

WANT TO MAKE JELLY? HERE ARE A FEW HINTS—If your jelly supply is running low, here are a few hints to be remembered: Large fruits such as apples should be washed, cut in pieces, water added in sufficient quantity to cover the fruit and cooked until soft. Small fruit such as grapes and currants should be washed, stems and seeds picked out and put into a kettle. Break up by mashing with the potato masher and cook until soft.

DAILY GIFT THOUGHTFUL FOR FRIENDS AT SEA—If you have a friend about to take an ocean voyage, why not wrap up six or seven—depending on the number of days at sea—inexpensive gifts to be opened each morning. This gives the traveler a pleasant daily anticipation, wondering what the little package may contain.

BROCADE PATTERNED IN WHITE AND GOLD—PARIS (AP)—The Princess de Faulcigny Lucinge attended the recent white and gold gala dinner dance at the Ritz wearing a white and gold brocade dress made on slender, clinging lines. With it she wore Roman headdress of thin cut mirrors. The Comtesse de Chambrun chose a white crepe gown trimmed with gold lame. In her hair was a pearl diadem.

GAY DECORATIVE TOUCH FOR FRUIT COCKTAILS—If you want to make your fruit cocktails even more inviting, here's an idea: Top them with bits of toasted coconut, a sprig of mint, delicate colored whipped cream, perfect whole berries, red cherries or nut meats.

AT THE LIBERTY

Thirty-five chorus girls in "Footlight Parade," Warner Bros. latest musical hit now at the Liberty theatre, stood out so prominently by their beauty, talent and personality, that they have been given a chance to become featured players, or even stars.

These girls were among the 260 selected by Busby Berkeley to dance in the unique ensembles which he staged for the picture. The thirty-five film executives upon looking at the picture. They were given contracts with the company and will be training for individual roles in forthcoming pictures.

They have been dubbed the Warner Bros. starlets and will be advanced in their work as rapidly as they prove their ability.

"Footlight Parade" is a lavishly produced musical picture with spectacular sets, brilliant dance numbers and a romance of back stage life. It was written by Manuel Seff and James Seymour and directed by Lloyd Bacon. The all star cast includes James Cagney, Joan Blondell, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Frank McHugh, Ruth Donnelly, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert and Claire Dodd.
