TWO NATIONS 'SHAKE HANDS' ACROSS SEA

lieve it always has been in the past, to examine the position of Japan in a spirit of amity. . . .

Further the two statesmen spoke favorably of an extension of trade between the two countries.

The notes were released simultaneously to the press at the state department here and in Tokyo.

The Japanese note was delivered by Hiroshi Satto, Nippon's new ambassador here, just one month ago, but only today was its receipt disclosed.

Some close observers here saw in it a friendly attempt by Japan to lay the groundwork for opening discussions with the United States on several questions on which the two nations are not in complete accord.

Included in this category would be Japan's unofficial proposal for a preliminary two-nation conference for a discussion of naval armaments, before the general naval conference which is to be held in Washington in 1935. Japan has already served notice she will seek parity at that time.

Others considered it significant that the note had been dispatched just one week before Pu Yi, the former boy emperor of China, became Emperor Kang Teh of the Japanese-sponsored empire of Manchukuo, on March 1.

In general, however, Japan's note was interpreted as an auspicious introduction of Ambassador Satto, accredited with being closer to the military party in Japan than was his predecessor, Ambassador DeBuchi.

"I do not doubt," Hirota said, "that all issues pending between the two nations will be settled in a satisfactory manner. . . .

"It is the sincere desire of Japan that a most peaceful and friendly relation will be firmly established between her and her great neighbor across the Pacific, the United States. And to this end I have been exerting my best efforts since I took the post of foreign minister."

After replying in kind, Hull added: "I feel I should also avail myself of this opportunity to express my earnest hope that it may be possible for all of the countries which have interests in the far east to approach every question existing or which may arise between or among them in such spirit and manner that these questions may be regulated or resolved with injury to none and with definite and lasting advantage to all."

LONDON, Mar. 21 (AP)—An authoritative British source said today that Great Britain would welcome any preliminary American-Japanese naval conference which might result from the exchange of good-will notes between the governments at Washington and Tokyo.

Official circles here say they believe the danger of a naval armaments race lies primarily between the United States and Japan, with Great Britain involved indirectly.
