With 12 visitors present from Pendleton, including the president, Mrs. Dobbins, the meeting of the American Legion auxiliary Wednesday evening at the Suezjaves Inn had unusual significance. A Pledge program was presented by Miss Beatrice Young. Inasmuch as the Pledge conference this year is to be held in England, the studies of the group have centered more or less on that country. Mrs. Annie Brady gave a talk on the English cathedrals, showing some pictures, and dwelling particularly on the Westminster Abbey. She also described the cathedral of St. John, the Divine, in New York City expressing her opinion that when this was finished, it would rank in America as the Abbey does in England.

At the business meeting, one new member, Mrs. Laura G. Comstock, was received. Also a letter of gratitude was received from the library board, for the recent book campaign which the auxiliary staged. Miss Doty stated her belief that the public had become more book-minded and would remember the library with volumes for which they had no further or particular use.

About 30 members were present for the meeting and for the dance which followed when they were joined by the members of the Legion who had also been in regular meeting.
