Miss Ina Fleming, M. Doane Announce Their Marriage On December 23, Last Evening

Members of Division C of the Loyal Sisters Aid of the First Christian church were guests last evening when Miss Ina Fleming, Miss Thelma Strain, Miss Mabel Miller and Miss Dorothy Smutz entertained in the small ball room at the Sacajawea Inn. The climax of the evening was reached when in serving the lunch at the conclusion of a very excellent program, the marriage on December 23 in Idaho, of Miss Fleming and Merrill Doane, of La Grande, was cleverly announced.

There were about 60 members and a group of invited guests present for the event, the president, Mrs. Ruth Helvey having charge of a short business meeting. The program which followed was varied and greatly enjoyed. Miss Helen Jean Speckhart, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Herbert Speckhart, sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "When Song Is Sweet." Miss Helen Miller in Scotch costume sang and danced "Comin' Through The Bye" and also danced the Highland Fling, with Miss Speckhart playing her accompaniment. Mrs. Clarence Berry offered two violin solos, Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" and Rubenstein's "Melody In F." Mrs. Edna Waite at the piano. An enjoyable stunt arranged by Miss Annetta Johnson, was given by Miss Fleming, Mrs. Leslie Courtney, Mrs. Fred Yeske, Mrs. John McKlin and Mrs. P. W. Gibson. The refreshments and announcement followed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Doane are quite well known in this locality. Mrs. Doane has been a teacher of the town school for the past three years and while making her home in La Grande has been very active in the several societies at the Christian church. Mr. Doane is employed here also.

OREGON HIGHWAYS BECKON EARLY TO TOURIST VISITORS

Early evidence that the call of the open road will be heeded, as far as Oregon and the northwest are concerned, by a number of tourist visitors far in excess of 1933 is seen in Oregon State Motor association headquarters at Portland, where there has been a 25 per cent increase in tourist calls over the corresponding period in 1933.

From reports of California affiliated clubs it is estimated the total for the year may exceed by one-third last year's total. In dollars and cents this will represent an addition of more than $6,000,000 to the $20,000,000 gross intake for the state from last year's tourist crop, according to J. A. Crittenden, director of the association, said today.

Prime reason for the greater travel early this year is the arrival of spring for Oregon some six weeks in advance of last year. Few major highways have been closed and at present virtually all scenic spots in the state are available by automobile. Exceptions are a relatively few mountain lakes, such as Diamond lake, according to Mr. Crittenden.

In addition, mildness of the winter has greatly lessened amount of road work and its accompanying inconvenience to travel which will be necessary. Early blossoming roadside flowers have already transformed many Oregon highways into colorful and fragrant lanes and have added greatly to intra-state traffic, Mr. Crittenden said. Among the most beautiful of these is the Coast highway near Gold Beach which for more than a week has been ablaze with color.

Forecast for the summer's amplified interstate tourist travel is based in part on reports from other automobile clubs which reveal that inquiries from all parts of the nation in increasing numbers are mentioning Oregon for probable visits. The Coast highway will get much of this traffic, it is believed.

This westbound traffic volume will be swollen by the thousands who last year went to Chicago for the fair there, according to Crittenden. The McKenzie highway, the Coast highway, Old Oregon Trail, Dalles-Columbia and other major highways are all open and in excellent condition, attracting an amount of weekend traffic that would ordinarily not move over some of these routes until a month to six weeks hence.

Health

ARMPIT INFECTIONS—The axilla or armpit is a uniquely constituted portion of the body. The region harbors many important nerves, blood vessels and lymph glands, and is filled with loose connective tissue.

The contact of the skin of the inside of the arm with that of the chest wall, and the moisture and warmth of the armpit favor the growth of bacteria and the development of skin infections. Once an infection has developed in the armpit it can, unless promptly taken care of, become a most painful and annoying condition.

Occasionally the armpit lymph glands which serve as a barrier against the spread of infectious material from the hand succumb to the infectious process. They must then be opened in order to evacuate the pus accumulated within them.

An extremely troublesome condition is that called furunculosis of the armpit. Here small boils form about the roots of the armpit hair. The infection may work down from the hair follicles to the lymph glands underneath, and then spread to neighboring glands.

The general tendency is for the furunculosis to spread, infectious material passing from one hair follicle to the next. These small hair follicle boils appear in crops and in a short while the whole armpit may become an extremely painful festering, burning, irritating mass.

The important preventive measures are neat and skin cleanliness. The armpit should be washed gently with soap and warm water and dried thoroughly but gently. The skin may then be cleaned with alcohol.

If the pustule formation in the armpit is acute, the sufferer should rest in bed with the arm at right angles. If the irritation is mild, the use of a dress shield which serves to keep apart the layers of skin will give comfort and promote healing. Pain in the armpit and swelling of the lymph glands within it may be the result of a distant infection, involving a finger of the hand.

caston, and agreement with her came from among the five other guests. Miss Ildegarde Kneeland, department of agriculture worker, replied "I did not" when asked about Wirt's attribution to her of statements about her following the philosophy of Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture. She said she did not meet Tugwell until five months after the dinner and had never read any of his writings.

Laurence Todd, reporter here for the Soviet news agency, Tass, testified he had made no statement like that attributed to him by Dr. Wirt that "we have Mr. Roosevelt in the middle of a stream" or the president being "only the Kerensky of this revolution."

He said he had described Mr. Roosevelt as a "strong leader." Another of the diners, Miss Mary Taylor of the agriculture department, testified that Dr. Wirt "had no conversation" but "a monologue" at the dinner. Dr. Wirt was present in the huge audience.
