ing lookouts. They fled out a rear door and separated in the thick Wisconsin woods. Three turned up a few minutes later at Mitchell's resort, commandeered a car, and drove off ahead of the federal men, one carrying a machine gun over his arm, ran into a nearby tavern, Turner's resort, and demanded of Alvin Turner that he furnish him a car. Before Turner could reply, an auto containing two government men and a constable drew up outside.

Shouting "who's that?" the desperado ran out and opened fire with his machine gun. W. Carter Baum, a Chicago federal agent, was killed, Constable Carl C. Christensen, of Spider Lake, Wis., was critically wounded; and J. C. Newman, of Chicago, a department of justice agent, was seriously wounded. The gunplay had taken two lives and left four wounded. Two of Baum's companions were struck by bullets.

The department of justice, in its official report, said Dillinger and three followers, among them John Hamilton, his first lieutenant, escaped from the resort of the lake shore at its rear door. Between midnight and dawn, the guns were silent. The federal agents then approached the house, forced open the door, and threw in tear gas bombs.

Three young women, between 20 and 25 years of age, ran out, gasping and choking. Their names were withheld by the government agents. The department named as the three with Dillinger: John Hamilton, escaped Michigan City, Ind., convict; Tom Carroll, St. Paul bank robber; Homer Van Meter, with a record as a kidnaper and stickup man.

Dillinger came to the camp from Sault Ste. Marie, said J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal investigating bureau. Arriving at the camp Friday, the gang and its three girl companions had held a continuous "party" since then.

Dillinger left his luggage behind. In a suitcase identified as his was found an assortment of pajamas and silk shirts. After the three women surrendered, the agents shot out the resort windows, and as soon as the gas had lifted, searched it thoroughly. Meanwhile about two dozen others—from Chicago, St. Paul and other offices of the government—took up the hunt, confident that they were close behind the elusive Indiana gunman.

Roads in Iron and Vilas county were in bad condition, local authorities said, and the good ones were few enough to permit careful watch.

Judith Lane

SYNOPSIS: Norman Lamper has obtained an injunction against Judith Lane, who is to marry Big Tom Devins. He claims that she is going to desert him, and in spending Big Tom's money for the protection of her daughter, it may mean the parting of the ways in the Dale family.

Chapter 25 PREPARATION

"We need that point," said Cunard. "No man at the present time has the heart to throw three hundred men out of work if he may have to pay them in chancery."

"I have the money. Big Tom gave it to me months ago for this emergency. But Mr. Cunard, if you will place it in your name, it will save me a lot of embarrassment. It would be difficult to explain why a man gave his stenographer a hundred thousand dollars as a gift, wouldn't it?"

"It would indeed. I'll be glad to handle it for you. Anything else?"

"Yes. Do you happen to know if the Devins Construction Company incorporated is hiring any stenographers?"

"We really do need one at the dam. I'd like to keep Miss Kelly here to work with me; have you someone in mind?"

"Yes," she answered earnestly. "Myself."

"Is this wise?" inquired Cunard. Judith smiled wistfully. "It's necessary. I haven't any income, and... and it's going to be imperative that I work from now on."

"You haven't any income?" inquired Cunard and looked at Judge Morgan.

"Even after the injunction is raised Mrs. Dale is not using any of the interest or dividends accruing from Devins' business. She's turning it all back to the trust fund... it's a bit quixotic, but I can understand her reasons for so doing and under the circumstances can't insist she do otherwise."

Cunard studied a moment then nodded his head. "I guess you're right, but it does seem a bit unusual for a girl worth as many millions as you are worth, Mrs. Dale, to be working for a comparatively small salary."

"At least it will seem more natural to me," she said, brightening. "And now about the injunction and the will contest."

"Under normal circumstances there would be no question of our winning the will contest, but with Lamper acting the way he is acting, I'm expecting some sort of trickery."

"Pack all of my clothes, Delphy," she ordered. "Put them into my wardrobe trunks and have Lige carry them to the basement store room. Then take that one trunk down there, unpack the things, air them well, repack them and have Lige take the trunk and my hand bags... I didn't unpack them when I came in last night... and carry them to the Union Depot."

"Now, do you understand, Delphy?"

"Yes... yes-sum," came the dutiful reply.

"You'll take good care of Mister
