E. O. N. NET TEAM WINS 3 - 1 FROM BOISE COLLEGE

The Eastern Oregon Normal school tennis team broke into the win column yesterday by defeating Boise Junior college racketeers here 3 to 1. Previously the Mountaineer net men had lost to College of Idaho 3 to 1 and to Boise 4 to 0 on an Idaho trip. The storm caused a cessation of play for awhile and when it began again, by mutual agreement it was decided to play only one set of doubles, which Idaho and Culliffe won from Taylor and Gilbert 6-4. The Boise team had to leave immediately afterwards for home. Idaho defeated Taylor 6-2, 6-3 to win the first point for E. O. N., and Culliffe, after losing the first 3-6 to Gilbert, came back to score 6-3, 6-4. Allan won from Walburn for Boise's lone point, 6-2, 6-4.

Next Tuesday the College of Idaho tennis team will play a return match here, beginning at 12:30 o'clock at the Normal school courts.

LOCAL STORE LEADS COAST IN SALES GAIN

Further proof that the retail sales condition in this city is steady is shown in the fact that this store was second on the coast in the Ward week last fall. April business at the Montgomery Ward store here showed a flat increase of 57 per cent over that of April, 1933. "It is a great satisfaction to the entire staff of our La Grande store to receive the response of the public that has made this enviable record possible," said Mr. Parise. "We also place much of the credit of our splendid sales increase to the very considerable newspaper advertising campaign upon which this store embarked locally some two months ago. We want to thank the entire community for the support which made our record possible."

SAFEBAY BUREAU HELPS MANY WITH HOME PROBLEMS

What does a homemaker want to know?
If there is any one person in the west who should be familiar with the desires of western housewives, that person is Mrs. Julia Lee Wright, National director of the Safeway Stores Homemakers' Bureau, which will conduct a three-day cooking school here beginning May 9 at the Salsajava Inn ballroom.

"Of course," Mrs. Wright says, "most of the many thousands of requests we receive during the year are for help with recipe problems, etiquette, table decorations, meal planning and problems of buying. We do, however, receive many requests which are of an unusual nature, which we also answer to the best of our ability."

"Among the requests which we receive most frequently apart from those directly connected with food are for games and games for adults particularly. This has been especially true during the past year, and indicates perhaps more strongly than anything else the increasing and very beneficial tendency to make homes grow where only houses have existed before."

"We are often asked to plan complete parties, such as surprise parties for birthdays for everyone from baby to grandmother. Then, too, there are many requests for information on bridge party planning, teas, and even complete formal receptions."

"We see romance in our work, too, in letters from girls about to be married and seeking all kinds of advice on homemaking, and we are even asked to play Beatrice Fairfax roles at times in the settling of domestic problems, although that is a type of request which we naturally do not encourage. One of our most faithful correspondents has been a woman who was separated from her husband largely because, she felt, that her inadequate knowledge of homemaking caused constant disruption. Apparently they really loved one another though, for they were reunited after a separation of six months.

"One unusual request which we received quite recently was on the proper methods of salting, pickling and smoking freshly-killed pork. We dug up that information, too, but we're glad that the women didn't ask us how to go about slaughtering the pig."

"All in all," Mrs. Wright concludes, "the work of the homemakers' bureau can hardly be said to lack variety."

ELGIN ROAD WORK BEGINS; 20 MEN BUSY

federal re-employment service there has submitted a list of names to contractors for work on oiling the Old Oregon Trail between Elgin and Huntington and between Durkee and Oakes, with work to begin Monday. Eighty men will be employed in addition to about 25 men already working on the rock crushing crew.

From Joseph comes word that the Colonial Construction Co., which has the contract for building that part of Little Sheep creek highway within the Wallows national forest, is just about through. A few miles of grading remain, and after that the road will be turned over to the bureau of public roads. The construction company has built a fine road, according to reports from those who have been over it recently.

The company has also been awarded the contract for putting in three bridges costing $30,000 authorized some time ago by the state highway commission. They will be bridges across Camp and Butte creeks, and a new bridge across the Innaha. The Innaha bridge will be located in the same place as the present structure and P. D. Buehert, Wallawa county bridge foreman, is putting in a temporary bridge a few feet down the river which will be used during the construction period.
