Registration Of Cars For First Quarter is Good

SALEM, Ore. (Special) — Registration of motor vehicles in Oregon during the first three months of the year was only 1.6 per cent under the registration totals for the first quarter of the prior license period, from July 1 to September 30, 1933, which is considered a sign of improved conditions, when difference in seasons is remembered, says the office of the secretary of state, P. J. Stadelman.

Fees for both the half-year and for the current full year were $5.00 so that the amount to be paid had no bearing on the number of registrations. With more people on the roads in the summer months, it has been the department's experience that mid-winter registrations fall considerably lower than mid-summer. However, the more open winter, as well as improved business conditions, are held responsible for the heavier registration this season.

During the first quarter of 1934, 234,897 vehicles were listed, while the first three months of the prior registration period showed a total of 238,710 vehicles. Since January 1, 216,082 passenger cars and 18,815 trucks and buses have been registered.

Kidnaped Child Still Missing In Arizona

Four men in a sedan failed to stop for a red light. Three policemen gave chase in the face of machine gun fire from the fleeing car. The officers overtook the gangsters only to be covered by machine guns and disarmed. The quartet fled after hitting one of the policemen over the head with one of the guns.

Three convicts who escaped from Ohio penitentiary by disarming a guard with a smuggled pistol and sliding down a cable thrown over the wall were still at large today.

METHODIST OAK FELLEDE

ASHBURY'S PULPIT IN 1783

MARION, S. C. (Sp) — Marion's famous "Methodist Oak," under which Bishop Francis Ashbury held religious services while visiting America in 1783, stands no longer.

Rot had reduced it to a shell and workmen felled it the other day.

Historians say the tree had reached full growth when the bishop stopped here on his tour to spread the doctrine of Methodism.

Pioneer settlers flocked in great numbers to hear him. There was not a house in the settlement big enough to hold them, so Ashbury chose a pulpit under the oak.

Harry Still, negro living near Vinita, Okla., recently celebrated what he said was his 110th birthday anniversary. He asserted he has lived in the community for 103 years.

Licenses of 70 Drivers Revoked During 1 Month

SALEM, Ore. (Special) — Seventy drivers lost their licenses through revocation or suspension orders in March, the largest number ever recorded in the office of the secretary of state. Increased co-operation of courts in reporting convictions to the state office is held responsible to some extent in raising the number of license cases.

Driving while intoxicated was the chief source of trouble as usual, with 54 persons receiving revocation of licenses, the greatest number ever listed in one month for that offense. One driver lost his license through failure to stop at the scene of an accident and another for driving while his license was revoked, bringing the total revocations to 56. Suspensions numbered 14. Eight of the intoxicated drivers were convicted in Portland courts and 46 in the state at large.

Out of the 70 drivers, 19 had either not renewed their old licenses as required by law or had never obtained operators' licenses, and while conviction in only one case was for this offense solely, the number violating requirements of the law is indicative of the number of unlicensed operators in the state. Attention of enforcement officers is being directed to this condition by the secretary of state's office, in an effort to obtain co-operation in cleaning up the situation.
