Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous; and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.—Psalm 32:11.

OUR ARMY AIR FORCE

Permanent solution of the airman tangle will apparently be left for the next congress. Considering the complexity of the situation — the charges arising from the old regime and the accidents common to the new one — this is just as well, for the whole affair needs more study and discussion than the present congress can give it.

But there is another angle to the thing which ought not to be postponed too long. That is the little matter of finding out just what, if anything, is wrong with our army air service. Now that the first heat of passion engendered by cancellation of the mail contracts has cooled a little, it is easy to see that too much was said about the failure of the army flyers. They had to start in, cold, on a new and rather bewildering job, their machines quite naturally lacked the equipment the mail planes had, and the weather that greeted them was the worst in years.

When all that has been said, however, it remains pretty clear that the army air corps did less well than the nation had a right to expect. Needless to say, this was not due to any failure of nerve on the part of the flyers themselves — they added new records of heroism to the history of the air corps. It seems rather to have been due to some defect in training and equipment of the corps as a whole. Now we don't maintain an army air corps as a spectacular and inspiring sideshow. It is an integral part of our national defense; if it isn't as strong as it should be, our national defense is weak at a vital point.

A dispatch from Europe the other day pointed out that it is the existence of the Russian air force which has probably prevented war between Russia and Japan. The Russian air force is about the strongest on earth, right now; approximately 700 fighting planes are understood to be concentrated in the Far East, within striking distance of Japan, and it is said that their presence has been the principal deterrent against a Japanese offensive in that territory. That gives you an idea of the importance of the air corps.

The efficiency of our air force has been called in question by the airman episode. It is encouraging to know that a committee is preparing to investigate the matter thoroughly, so that the next Congress can take whatever action may be needed.

In Washington

By Herbert Plummer
WASHINGTON — The story of the NRA's national labor board bids fair to be set down as one of the most interesting chapters in the history of the "new deal."

When first set up it inspired the awe of everyone. The title alone was sufficient for that.

Headed by Senator Wagner of New York, an expert on questions affecting labor and its difficulties, the board generally was regarded as one of the most powerful units operating under the national recovery act.

For a while it was hard-boiled industrialists listened with respect to its dictates. The meetings of the board, held in whatever space was available at the time in the huge department of commerce building, were watched with both eagerness and anxiety.

No Real Authority
Then came the awakening. It developed that the board had no real authority behind it. What power it possessed was merely of the persuasive type. Theoretically, it appeared to be one of the greatest gains labor had made in history. In practice it was another story.

Everything was going smoothly until the Weirton steel case came along. The board was called on for decisive action — a showdown. The employer had blocked its attempt to carry out Section 7a of the national recovery act dealing with the right of labor to bargain collectively.

The Weirton Steel company called the board's hand and the case was taken to court. Predictions have been made that the court must weigh difficult and important constitutional questions before handing down a decision.

It will be more than a month before the issue is settled in court. It may take months more for a final disposition of the case.

The Board Languishes
Meanwhile, the national labor board languishes in dignity and austerity provided it by the dais and elegant green plush hangings in its new permanent quarters.

Senator Wagner is pushing his labor disputes bill aimed against company-dominated unions, but is encountering difficulties on all sides. As the bill now stands it would forbid an employer to "initiate, participate in, supervise or influence" the formation of a company union.

Suggestions have been made that "initiate" and "participate in" be deleted, but organized labor is fighting them on the ground that the bill might result in interference with union organization activities.

Eastern Oregon Farmers Apply For Crop Loans

Applications for production loans to farmers in all of Morrow and Wallowa counties, all of Umatilla county excepting the Milton-Freewater district, that portion of Union county lying north of a line running east and west through La Grande, and that portion of Grant county lying north of the middle fork of the John Day river, are now being received by W. E. Moore, secretary-treasurer of the Pendleton Production Credit Association. According to Moore all loans will be made on a business basis and according to the security furnished by the applicant.

"The loans that will be made in the counties served by the Pendleton association must be good loans and loans that are collectible if the association is to continue as a permanent service to farmers in this and other communities, as intended," Moore said.

"Fortunately, not all farmers in this county need credit," he continued, "but for those who do the association stands as a business organization. Loans may be obtained for periods of 3 to 12 months by any eligible, desiring farmer who needs credit and has security, but if a farmer is eligible for credit it must be extended on a business basis."

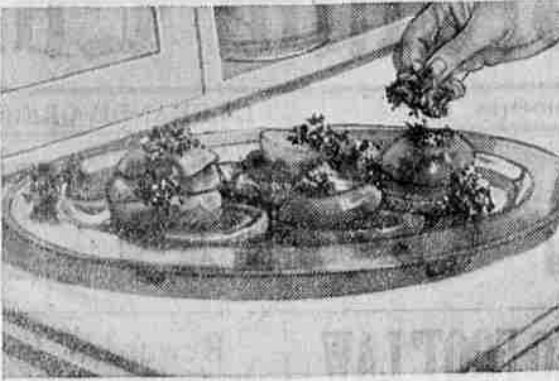

AT THE LIBERTY
One of the unique features in First National's "Fashions of 1934," now showing at the Liberty theatre, is an orchestra comprised entirely of harps. There are twenty-five and they are all strummed by as many pretty girls.

The harps furnish the music for a spectacular fan dance in which two hundred girls hide and reveal the beauty of nature by swirling ethereal feather fans. William Powell has the stellar role with Bette Davis playing opposite him.

Pork Chops Become a Company Dish

By Caroline B. King
Home Economics and Culinary Authority

PORK chops have stepped up wonderfully within the past few years. And why not? A more savory, tender, delicate dish than a well-browned, tastily seasoned, temptingly served pork chop with its accompanying rich hued gravy and correct garnish, it would indeed be difficult to imagine.

Garnish! There lies the secret. Rapidly we are learning that a fruit garnish adds to both the eye and appetite appeal of all kinds of meats—not to mention the fact that it provides an excellent means of including a greater variety of healthful fruits on our menus. To no meat dish is the fruit garnish a more welcome addition than to pork chops, and, to my way of thinking, no pork chops can quite equal!

Pork Chops with Cinnamon Apples. For this dish one selects plump, thick rib chops. Trim them neatly, dust with flour and brown them carefully in their own fat. This may be done either in a skillet over the fire or in the oven. Pork requires slow cooking; so it will be well to keep the heat moderate. Season with pepper, salt and paprika while cooking and add a very little water to the pan after the meat has become browned.

Meanwhile pare large, tart, firm-fleshed apples, remove the cores, slice thickly crosswise, and drop into lemon flavored water to keep from darkening, while making a syrup in the proportion of 1 cup granulated sugar to 1/4 cup of water. After five minutes cooking add a tablespoon of red cinnamon candies or drops, and simmer until the syrup is quite rosy. Now wipe the apple rings and drop them a few at a time into the syrup to cook very slowly. When tender and quite red lift them out.

In the center of each apple ring place a stuffed olive, or a bit of parsley.

When the chops are finished, top each one with a ring of apple, serve on a warm platter and garnish with cream or parsley. Gravy for this liquid in the pan in which the chops were cooked is added the remainder of the syrup from the apples, with a little more water as required, and a tablespoon of sharp vinegar. Thicken slightly with a tablespoon of flour mixed to a paste with a very little water. Cook till clear, add seasoning if necessary, then strain into a sauceboat.

'50-FOOT LAW REPEALED; NEW ONE ADOPTED

they make objectionable noise — but indications were that the "noise" clause probably would be invoked only in extreme circumstances.

Complaints may be filed with the city manager against unclean barns, etc., by citizens under the new ordinance. Then it is up to the city manager, the police chief and the city physician, acting as a board of three, to thoroughly investigate the property in question. Then if the board judges the place a nuisance, the owner will be given a certain length of time to correct the matter. If at the end of that time the nuisance still exists, the police have power to make an arrest and the offender may be fined not to exceed $50.

V. H. McVelle, president of the commission, pointed out last night that the new ordinance gives everyone, both those who keep poultry and livestock, and their neighbors, a fair chance. He assured the delegation present that there would be no prosecution under the ordinance, which was designed to eradicate certain conditions in the city limits that have resulted in numerous complaints to the city of late. "Anyone with clean, sanitary barns has nothing to fear under this ordinance," he said, "but it will protect people against places which are of the 'nuisance' type."
