COMMENCEMENT FESTIVITIES ARE ON

UNION (Special) — Friday night marked the beginning of commencement activities, with the junior-senior banquet that was held at the Union hotel. The dining room was attractive, with bouquets of yellow roses and tulips as decorations for the long tables arranged in U-shape. Covers were laid for 92 students, faculty and school board members. Olin Hudson, acting as toastmaster, called on Ray Hunter to welcome the seniors and Frank Miller, president of the class responded. Supt. Roy Conklin responded to the welcome addressed by Kenneth South and C. L. Cadwell, member of the school board. Irma Taylor's quartet sang "Night on the Water" and "The Old Covered Bridge." Two songs, "Dream Boat" and "Medley of Old Time Songs" were sung by the girls' sextet. The high school orchestra played two selections, "Capital Ship" and the school song. Following the banquet the alumni dance was held at the gymnasium, which was colorful with many streamers festooned artistically from the ceiling. It was a gay setting for the happy youth who appeared at their best in lovely evening dresses. Music was furnished by an orchestra from North Powder.

NORMAL SCHOOL TO PLAY INDIANS

The Eastern Oregon Normal school baseball nine, with five wins and five losses, will not wind up its season with a percentage of 500. Another game has been scheduled to be played at Mission Friday afternoon against the Indians — and so when the season is over, the Mountaineers will either go on record as a winning team, or else will fade several points below the half-and-half marking.

Coach Bob Quinn's nine took the Indians into camp here recently, winning by a one-sided score, but there is no surety that they can do it again — especially since word from Missions indicates the Redskins plan to have their strongest lineup on the field for the coming contest.

FLEA BEETLE IS PROVING MENACE TO OREGON SPUDS

CORVALLIS, Ore. (Special) — Flea beetles, two species of which are now found in Oregon, constitute a serious menace to potato production in this state, causing many inquiries regarding control to be directed to entomologists and farm crops specialists at Oregon State college.

Though the pests attack both the leaves and tubers of developing potatoes, control is directed at poisoning the adult beetles, according to a circular of information on the subject written by Dr. Don C. Mote and F. B. Jackson and issued by the O. S. C. agricultural experiment station.

Last season's experience with the dust method of control demonstrated its value, the circular reveals. Calcium arsenate dust in the proportion of one to four by weight of hydrated lime is most effective and may be purchased ready mixed or is easily mixed at home by using some device such as the diagonal axle barrel dusting machine used for treating seed grain with dust.

The adult beetles emerge in May and June and it is in these months that application is made as soon as the work of the flea beetles appears on the foliage. Number of applications depend upon circumstances, but they are made at about 10-day intervals until the injury is checked by eradication of the beetles. Some times prompt attack will permit treating the edges of the field invaded first by the beetles rather than dusting the whole area.

These beetles are known to feed on upwards of 50 different plants including many weeds. Most serious damage appears on potato, tomato, pepper and egg plants.

The western flea beetle feeds only on the foliage of potatoes, but since the advent of the eastern type the larvae, upon hatching, work down into the soil and feed on rootlets and developing tubers, seriously damaging the quality and reducing the yield in many cases. A copy of the circular describing control methods more fully may be had at any county agent's office.

GUESSING THE PRIMARIES

With little or no contest for local offices figuring in the primaries this year political foretellers of both parties of this section are centering their interests and prophecies upon the race for nominations of governor, with a casual wisecrack now and then dipping into an attempted interpretation of the outcome of the state secretaryship.

Picking the winner in the gubernatorial contest as to who will carry the Democratic banner, through limitation of contestants to two, becomes simply a matter of choice between Willis Mahoney, the fiery mayor of Klamath Falls, and General Martin, the congressman.

In the Republican nominating melee there are however six gentlemen brave and true who seek to be that party's candidate for the high office of the state. There were seven, but E. P. Dodd some days ago announced his withdrawal in favor of Joe Dunne.

Local followers of the party politic quickly eliminate Charles Hall and General Ulysses McAlexander from a chance and with this guess we are inclined to agree. Sam Brown continues to be a puzzle and has many who continue to feel he will be a surprise at the top of the list after next Friday. Were Sam able to talk to each voter of Republican tendencies personally we would give him a better chance but, unfortunately perhaps for him his little old Ford will only cover so much ground in a month's time and he started out too late.

Frank Lonergan looms strong in the minds of many. We look for him to have strong group support in various sections but insufficient strength to pile up a winning total. Lonergan appears about third best.

The Republican contest in the opinion of some is narrowed down to Holman and Dunne and in this we are inclined to agree. Holman is offered as the strongest by a considerable group who point to the fact that he is in state office. Also he is conceded strength from Multnomah county where he has long been successful in political office life. In our opinion however we see Dunne creeping up on Holman's Multnomah popularity with each new day. Dunne is also well liked in Multnomah county, the stronghold of votes, and will break in mightily upon what Holman supporters insist will be theirs.

Holman's presence in state office might have ordinarily given him an edge but he is known to have many enemies through some of his actions of the past two years. Dunne's work in the state legislature for the motorists and dairymen has won him many friends over the state. Unless a radical change sweeps over the situation during the next three days we expect to see a close race between these latter two with Dunne triumphant.

In the Democratic race Mahoney's chances, at first ridiculed by many, appear stronger and stronger as the day of election draws over the horizon. Mahoney is a natural born campaigner and he is here in the field personally conducting his campaign. Martin, at first given a sure bet because of a more or less successful congressional record and resultant favorable and strong publicity campaign, is away at Washington with his campaign apparently in none too strong or able hands. Mahoney is a fiery individual with the usual box of tricks and 'appeal to the masses.' A likeable personality and good appearance, Mahoney has made friends wherever he has gone.

Mahoney has wisely refrained from criticism of his opponent, steadfastly paddled his own canoe and paddled it well among the Democratic ranks all over the state. He has the Portland Journal daily urging front page support of Martin against him and the old steadfast Oregonian of Republican creation, surprisingly commenting favorably upon the Journal's pro-Martin expressions. This is manna for Mahoney and he will make the best of such situation. It is probably one of his best last minute aids, a close campaign from which we will not be surprised to see him successfully emerge.

Should Earl Snell of Arlington carry the solid vote of Eastern Oregon, a loyalty to which he is justly entitled, the Republican nomination for secretary of state should be his. As speaker of the state house of representatives he has a fine record that will bring him much support from all parts of the state. Carl Abrams, however, is a strong opponent carrying also records of many achievements. Both are good men and the race will be close.

FAIR-SIZED VOTE LIKELY NEXT FRIDAY

Joe E. Dunne, father of the $5 license fee act for motor vehicles, took the lead in the Observer vote with a total of 59. Close behind him was the state treasurer, Rufus Holman, with 48, and Frank Lonergan with 41. Sam Brown closely trailed Lonergan with 39. General U. B. McAlexander polled 13 and Charles Hall drew two. E. P. Dodd, who withdrew from the race the other day to support Dunne, also was given two votes.

So there it is—a bit difficult, perhaps to definitely decide just who is the strongest in Union county, but certain evidence that there will be a sizeable vote cast at the primary election, regardless of whether some find the "apathy" impenetrable or not.

TRUCKING CODE MEMBERS WILL ATTEND MEET

Local truck owners affected by the code for the trucking industry in Oregon are awaiting with interest a meeting to be held here May 18 when members of the Oregon Trucking Code Authority will spend the entire evening in explaining how the trucking code will be applied locally.

F. A. Greulich, chairman of the committee making the arrangements for the local committee, stated yesterday that troublesome phases of filling minimum schedules of rates which every truck operator must file will be clearly explained at this meeting to all classes of operators.

He stated further that Oregon was fortunate in that the code provisions tied in very closely with the new Oregon motor transportation act and that compliance with the code and the state law would involve no particular difficulties for Oregon operators.

The local meeting will be held in the Grand Army and will begin promptly at 7:30 p. m.

The meeting will also make definite arrangements for registration of all truck owners in Oregon actually affected by the provisions of the code.

WOMEN OF GERMANY GET 'UNIFORM GARB'

BERLIN (P) — Women are being put into uniforms in Germany "to express outwardly their inner connection with the organization of the creative people," according to the Nazi labor front.

A uniform garb for organized women workers, consisting of a kind of waistcoat of dark blue velvet, a light blouse and a dark blue skirt has been made the official costume of the organization, matching the dark blue "best" suits of male members.

"Putting women into uniforms is contrary to the female character," the labor front's ordinance said, emphasizing that this is merely a "uniform garb" and not a uniform.

In Washington

By Herbert Plummer

WASHINGTON — For the first time since women have been members of the house of representatives a first-class feud has developed between one of them and a male representative.

The principals are Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, chairman of the committee on the District of Columbia, sometimes called the "mayor of Washington," and Tom Blanton of Texas.

Blanton, a member of the subcommittee on appropriations which controls the purse strings for the District and Mrs. Norton rarely see eye to eye on questions pertaining to the welfare of the capital.

On District days in the house the two all but come at blows at times.

The gentleman from New Jersey neither asks nor expects favors of the gentleman from Texas. Nor does she get any.

She boasts of the fact that she plays the game of politics in practical fashion; that she is the first woman Democrat ever elected to congress and the first to be appointed chairman of a major congressional committee.

Claims Equal Rights

Especially does it irk her when Blanton, in his most gallant and chivalrous manner, addresses her in debate as "the lady from New Jersey."

"No matter what the lady says to me," he declared to her one day, "I have to smile and bear it, because I am a gentleman and cannot talk back. I never say anything unkind to a lady."

This was too much for the gentleman from New Jersey. With eyes flashing and her temper plainly aroused, she turned on Blanton with: "Please do not designate me as 'the lady.' I am a member of the house, with exactly the same credentials as the gentleman from Texas, and I want no concessions because of my sex."

"Then everything will be lovely," Blanton shot back.

Foed of Long Standing

The differences between Mrs. Norton and Blanton are of long standing. They date back almost from the time she took over the chairmanship of the District of Columbia committee when the Democrats recaptured the house in 1930.

Earlier in this session the fiery Texan led the fight in the house for a reduction in the amount of money appropriated by the federal government for the upkeep of the District.

In all matters affecting the District she takes an active and keen interest in the house. He boasts of the fact that much of his career in congress has been devoted to studying these problems.

Although not a member of Mrs. Norton's committee, he probably causes her and the residents of the District more anxious moments than any other member of congress.

As Gettle, with a police escort, was sped to his home light-colored officers put the man, Larry Kerrigan, Roy A. Williams and James F. Kirk under a fire of examination that soon brought from them confessions to the crime.

Kerrigan described himself as Gettle's guard and named Williams and Kirk as the two who seized the millionaire from a recreation room on his five-acre wooded estate at Arcadia last Wednesday night. The news of the safe return of Gettle and the capture of the kidnapers brought huge crowds to the hall of justice, where Gettle was first taken, and thence to him home. When rumors of the possibility of an attempted lynching reached District Attorney Byron Fitt, he replied sternly that "there will be no lynchings in Southern California." Fitt promised legal action against the five who will be started today. "We will seek at least life sentences for every person involved," he announced.

BERLIN (P) — Women are being put into uniforms in Germany "to express outwardly their inner connection with the organization of the creative people," according to the Nazi labor front.

A uniform garb for organized women workers, consisting of a kind of waistcoat of dark blue velvet, a light blouse and a dark blue skirt has been made the official costume of the organization, matching the dark blue "best" suits of male members.

"Putting women into uniforms is contrary to the female character," the labor front's ordinance said, emphasizing that this is merely a "uniform garb" and not a uniform.
