MEMORIAL DAY

MAY 30, 1934

TOMORROW, Memorial Day, we shall pause again to remember those brave men who died that our nation might live. Theirs was a spirit of service that should be an inspiration to us all. They have flung the torch of sacrifice and loyalty for us to carry on. May the thought of their sacrifice cause us to remember the ideals of our nation . . . that we too may be prepared if necessary to hold our banner of justice, freedom and democracy flying high above the peoples of our great country for now and ever more.
