Class Picnic Is Big Success

The annual picnic of the Ever-ready class of the First Christian church, held Sunday at the foot of Mt. Emily was considered a genuine success with about 50 people present. The lesson study was conducted under the direction of the teacher of the class, Miss Annetta Johnson, and a service of worship including the communion service was held with Miss Dorothy Smuts having charge. The dinner was prepared by the committee with Mrs. Ruth Helvey as chairman and an afternoon of recreation was in charge of Bennie Hicks.

Memory Of Col. Huron is Honored Sunday

Grande, who commanded the 186th Infantry at the time of his unexpected death last month.

The program: Prelude, procession of colors. "Largo" by Handel, 186th Infantry band. Invocation, Chaplain Blenkinsop. "All Hail the Power," Hymn. Scripture, "The Good Shepherd." "The Lost Chord," Chaplain Blenkinsop and band. "Love Divine," Hymn. Eulogy, Chaplain Beard. "Going Home," band. Benediction.

Postlude. Colonel Huron is missed greatly at camp and many, many expressions of sorrow at his untimely passing are heard.

Sgt. George M. Plank, who rode his motorcycle down to camp from La Grande, took it out the other night for a hunt to Cannon Beach, and as Corporal William W. Runyan punningly remarked, ran into a "mammoth" (Bill sounded it ellick). Plank was climbing a hill and in the dark spotted what looked like cow legs to him, but as he approached it appeared the "cow" had as a hearage a pair of rocking chairs. In other words, the glowing animal was nothing more or less than a mammoth—so George says—bill elk. George wheeled his motor over to one side of the road.

Resinol

Just when Mr. Wapito decided to go the same place in a hurry. The next morning there still was elk hair on one side of the motorcycle and George was limping beautifully as he related his adventures to the usual doubting Thomases.

The usual enjoyer's weekend was spent at Seaside and Astoria, but for details—well, just a bit indiscreet to go into them in detail. Many of the boys enjoyed themselves by communing with nature in the raw—we refer to swims in the ocean, etc., of course. The scenery is magnificent this season, seems to be the run of reports, and the new styles generally meet with favor.

This week will complete the serious training at camp, winding up with the annual sham battle on Saturday, with the 186th Infantry taking the leading part this year. The two rifle regiments alternate from year to year in the demonstration, which is usually witnessed by from 30,000 to 50,000 spectators.

Promotions at camp include the following: to be corporal, Arthur H. Steffen; privates first class, Maurice A. York, Arnold E. Oliver and John M. Lambert. Specialists appointed follow: Burke Inlow, Albert W. Lilly, Carl M. Amos and John V. Ainsworth. Specialists are just what the name implies—privates or privates first class who have some special duty to perform and therefore receive a bit higher pay check. Lilly is artificer and Ainsworth is bugler.

Talk about wild goose chase! The national guard enjoys them every year with some rookie on the raw end of the deal. One member of Company E tramped around camp considerably the other morning in search of a bucket of taps—the kind you blow on a bugle if you can buzz into the mouth piece. The rookie in question had a bucket with him when he finally found out that taps are ethereal birdies and not issued from the QMC at all. Who furnished the bucket is a bit of a mystery. Another rookie left La Grande's street in search of the always missing skirmish line. He failed to get far though, as the sergeant in Union's company orderly tent lifted the corners of his mouth too far when he heard the request.

The mess has been unusually good this year, both as to quality and quantity. Sgt. Fred J. Wells is mess sergeant, Sgt. Max W. Burke first cook, and Carl M. Amos second or "bull" cook. In addition two kitchen police are picked for duty daily.
