Hire Good Painter Who Uses Good Paint, Is Advice

"The wise property owner has learned it saves him money to employ a good painter and one who uses quality paint products," declared H. L. Pickett at a dinner meeting given by National Lead company last night at the Sacajawea hotel to about 30 master painters and paint dealers of this city and vicinity. The chairman of the meeting was Andy Whyte, sales representative for the paint company, and the program was presented by Messrs. H. L. Pickett and W. D. Herman of the National Lead company, manufacturers of Dutch Boy paint products.

"But during the depression," Pickett continued, "many property owners tried to save money by buying cheap paints and hiring inexperienced painters to apply them. The result was early paint failures that cost the property owners many times what they saved on the first cost of their painting jobs. Painters and paint dealers must use advertising and proper selling methods to convince these property owners that it pays to hire a good painter and use quality paint products."

A three-reel moving picture, "Thirteen Tramps," together with newspaper and magazine articles, and features were shown to help painters get their share of returning prosperity. Modern business methods were also discussed. Several painting demonstrations were given by Mr. Herman to show the adaptability of Dutch Boy paint products in producing interior decorative effects and protective coatings on exterior surfaces. The meeting closed with a general discussion of business and craftsmanship problems.

GAME COMMISSION PROTESTS DENIED

SALEM, June 23 (AP)—The state game commission's own program in 1932, setting out appropriations for 1933 and 1934, revealed their recent protests that costs of the game, protective division of the state police were excessive were unfounded. George Flagg, deputy secretary of state, today declared.

IMPROVEMENT IS NOTED IN MARKET

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—Support arrived for the recently depressed stock market today and many issues, led by the metals, rallied fractionally to 2 or more points. The reversal of trend was attributed largely to technical influences. Trading was rather dull, transfers approximating 230,000 shares. The close was firm.

Brokers' sentiment, while not exuberantly bullish, seemed to have improved somewhat. Some observers expressed the opinion that yesterday's sharp sell-off on an expanded volume may have been the expected "climax." Others, however, were still doubtful of the market's ability to do any substantial climbing over the next several weeks.
