EXECUTIONS MOUNT HIGH IN GERMANY

The flow of blood together with a well authenticated prediction, that Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goerring will soon replace Frank von Papen as vice chancellor, whipped the political pot into a new fury.
Among variously reported plans for the future of Chancellor Hitler's political regime was one that Hitler will assume the presidency of Germany on the death of Von Hindenburg. Germany's grand old man of war and peace, who is ill at his home, in Neudeck.
The ultimate fate of Vice Chancellor Von Papen, bitter conservative critic of some of the Nazi methods, had become a question of burning moment in Germany when his friend and patron, President Von Hindenburg, gave his blessing to Chancellor Hitler today.
Those executed in Saturday's ruthless "liquidation" of Nazi extremists and reactionists opposed to the Nazi regime, included Werner von Alvensleben, Von Papen's close friend. The vice chancellor's adjutant, Friedrich von Tschiraky, was reported to have committed suicide. Von Papen's secretary, Hubert von Bose, was said to have gone the same way.
With principal leaders of the opposition already dead and other aborting rumors hourly, opposing forces had no directing heads to lead them into action.
Government buildings were still heavily guarded by police today and police with rifles walked the streets.
Berlin was going about its business, but the atmosphere was still tensely charged as rumors floated back and forth through the streets. In these rumors, foreign power which Hitler charged Saturday with having been in communication with the conspirators against him. The French embassy denied flatly that the French government had any connection with the conspiracy, but the rumors continued in circulation.
Quarters close to the government indicated they felt the Hohenzoellern house was in no way implicated.

BROADLY speaking, the pitch of a bell is determined by its diameter. By trimming off a slight portion of the rim, thus shortening the diameter, the pitch can be raised; by trimming off the inside at the bottom swell, thus lengthening the inside diameter, the pitch can be lowered.

PRICE-FIXING GOES
The recent decision of the president to abandon price-fixing features of some major industrial codes is of exceptional importance. It stems from the growing belief that price-fixing is inimical to the consumer and the small business man. The Darrow report, which was tremendously publicized, concentrated attention on that.

There may be much to be said for price-fixing, used as a weapon to eliminate destructive and wasteful competition. But there is grave doubt if the American people could ever be brought to stand for it. Free competition, with each unit within an industry striving to give better service at a more reasonable price, is part of the American business tradition. When the President started the attempt to fix prices, he intimated that it was purely experimental—he is to be congratulated on making a change when he saw that it would not work as hoped.

A poll made by Fortune among executives of our principal industries, produces the fact that 85 per cent of them believe that the main beneficial results of the NRA codes lie in their wage and working provisions—that great gains in this direction have been made, and that they should not be lost. That is certainly a progressive attitude, and now that price-fixing is to be ended, the labor features are again pre-eminent. The American people, as always, want labor to be amply paid and protected—but they do not want revolutionary changes made in our time-honored governmental or industrial scheme of things.

"My private opinion is that the . . . big smashup is going to be next year, when tax bills come in and the people discover they have to be paid."—Henry L. Mencken.

The station has many plots of grasses sown in rows and Richards explained that grasses grown for seed made a good cash crop as seed grown in Eastern Oregon has a very high percentage of germination. The tour lasted up until the noon hour when all assembled in the spacious shady grove for the basket lunch. Tables and seats were adequate to care for the large crowd and the dinner proved to be a most sociable affair. Mr. and Mrs. Richards provided the coffee, cream and sugar and the elaborate meal was topped off with generous servings of ice cream donated by the Union County Farmers' Co-operative creamery.
