The McCall's, Among Early Pioneers Hold Family Reunion Wednesday At The Home of Judge and Mrs. U. G. Couch

A reunion of the members of the McCall family would always be of considerable interest in this vicinity, but in view of all the public sentiment right now as regards pioneers of La Grande and the Grande Ronde valley and the events which are so soon to portray to the thousands — life here in an earlier day, the family gathering held Wednesday at the home of Judge and Mrs. U. G. Couch at Island City had unusual significance. Many of the names of the connection are closely linked with early local history and the fact that the judge, Mr. Couch, who was a pioneer freighter, brought into La Grande the load of lumber from across the mountains which was used in the first building operations here, was one of the interesting items brought out in the pleasant reminiscences which the day would quite naturally afford.

The magnificent family dinner was served about the middle of the day by Mrs. Couch, the company consisting of Judge and Mrs. Couch and their daughter, Mrs. O. K. Smith and two daughters, of Oakland, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Herman, of Buhl, Ida.; Mrs. Frances M. Smith, of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McCall, of Haines; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McCall, of near La Grande; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown and three daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Seitz and Mr. and Mrs. Arch Bacon, all of La Grande.

Franklin Eberhard
La Grande Man Weds
In San Francisco

Mr. and Mrs. Colon R. Eberhard have been in San Francisco for the past several days, having gone especially to attend the marriage of their son, Franklin K. Eberhard, and Miss Janice Edger which was an event of last Saturday. The account of this lovely affair was given as follows in one of the San Francisco dailies.

Wearing a gown three generations old, Miss Janice Edger was an attractive bride, of Saturday at a ceremony at her mother's home in Green street, when she became Mrs. Franklin K. Eberhard. Made of white Duchesse satin, and trimmed in pearls and rose point lace, the gown was a distinguished costume, made forty-five years ago for the bride's great aunt, Mrs. B. Finnell, and worn at a ceremony in San Leandro, when it was the county seat of Alameda. Later, the bride's mother, Mrs. Benjamin J. Edger Jr., wore the costume, when she was married to the late Colonel Edger in 1905, and remembered having seen it worn at her aunt's marriage, at which she was a flower girl.

The lace cap of the wedding veil was worn by the great grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Socrates Huff, who came from Chicago to California in 1849.

The house was decorated in white gladiolus and stock, and the ceremony was held before an improvised altar, lighted with tall white candles, and banked with ferns. Dr. Ezra Van Nuys, of Calvary Presbyterian church, officiated, and the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Benjamin D. Edger.

Miss Marie Cannon, the bridesmaid, wore a gown of delicate pink crepe and net, and carried pink roses and bouvardia. Rhinestone ornaments were worn in her hair. Miss Cannon caught the bride's bouquet, which was of lilies of the valley and gardenias, with old lace, and pearl clasp. Mr. Allen Van Nuys was best man. There was a wedding breakfast for forty guests following the ceremony, and the couple left to spend their honeymoon in the south. On their return they will make

Sings as Fiance
Lies Dead

Death gloated in the wings as Leah Ray, 19, above, with never a tremor, sang a song in a Detroit theater thanking her sweetheart for a lovely evening. She went on for her act knowing that her fiancé, Harry Pinsky, was a passenger on the missing airliner that a few hours later was found in the Catekill, seven dead in its wreckage.

Authorities say it is better to take in an "alley cat" than a Siamese kitten of unknown heredity, because of the breed's unreliable dispositions.

"WHITE SATIN" SUGAR has no equal!

Made from Idaho-grown beets, it will compare favorably and do anything that any sugar on the market will do! It is PURE SUGAR — as pure as any sugar that is made!

Refineries that produce "White Satin" Sugar are located in important towns of Idaho, Utah and Montana. Many of these towns have become important, have progressed, grown and enjoyed steady prosperity since the establishment of the "White Satin" refineries in their midst. Thousands of beet growers in the territory and valleys surrounding these towns have been made happy and supremely satisfied through splendid, profit-sharing returns from their labors and acreage investments. Last year Idaho beet growers alone received over three millions of dollars.

The makers of "White Satin" Sugar are the second largest taxpayers in the state of Idaho, second only to the railroad, which in turn owes much of the success of its operation in Idaho to the presence of the "White Satin" industry. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were paid the railroads last year by this industry. The success of "White Satin" Sugar is reflected in the progress of your community through its vast contributions to continued railroad operation and in its removing thousands of acres of highly productive land from competition with your home grown crops.
