PIESSED BEEF LOAF
5 pounds thick portion shin of beef
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon white pepper
1/2 teaspoon pickle spice
Order the shin of beef cracked by the butcher. Wash, and place in a good-sized kettle with the salt, pepper, and spice. Almost cover with boiling water, put on the lid, weight it down, and simmer until the meat almost falls to pieces. This will take from two and a half to three hours. Then strain out the spice and rapidly boil down the meat broth until one cupful is left. In the meantime, chop the meat fine, and season to taste with salt, pepper, a little lemon juice, some meat sauce, or a dash of horseradish. Add the meat liquor, pack into a medium-sized bread pan, and weight the meat down by placing a second pan that fits over the top, with some heavy object in it. Chill overnight, and serve cut in thin slices. Surround with lettuce nests, filled with potato or mixed vegetable salad.
