DILLINGER IS SLAIN SUNDAY BY U. S. AGENT

Dillinger, his hair dyed a darker hue, tell-tale scars on his cheeks lifted by plastic surgery, gold-rimmed spectacles framing his shifty eyes, his nose straightened, a carefully groomed black moustache adorning his leering lip, and the whorls of his fingertips obliterated by acid, strode through the lobby and sauntered down the street.

He passed, apparently without recognition, Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the Chicago bureau of the department of justice. Purvis, seated in a parked car moved his right arm in a casual signal. Several agents leaped forward, their pistols glistening in the garish light.

dropped from the phantom freebooter's countenance. He darted into an alley, reaching for a pistol for a duel to the death. As he did so, a fire shot fullalove at him down. Three of the bullets struck him. Two missed their mark and whizzed into the terrified throngs gathered near the theatre, striking the legs of two gaping window spectators.

The infamous fugitive sprawled on the pavement in a crumpled heap.

Sirens shrieked and alarm bells clanged as a patrol wagon, an ambulance and a number of police squad cars raced up. Mrs. Etta Natalasky and Miss Theresa Pauls, both wounded in the leg, were carried to the ambulance. Dillinger, still breathing, was placed in the patrol car.

The vehicle transporting the wounded Dillinger made for the Alexian Brothers hospital. He died without word or motion, before medical aid could be administered, at a street crossing on route to the hospital.

The slug which ended an amazing crime career had struck in the neck and coursed up to emerge beneath the right eye. The others had pierced the left breast, one cleaving the tip of the heart, the third striking two inches further down.

One federal man, Purvis said, had fired the five shots. He declined to reveal his identity.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—The government today hailed John Dillinger's end as one of the most smashing blows ever delivered at crime in the United States.

It vowed that the manhunt would never cease until it punishes all members of the Dillinger mob and "anyone who ever gave them any aid, comfort or assistance."

TRAFFIC GAIN IN OREGON REPORTED

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A substantial increase in traffic by both Oregon and out-state cars occurred in July as compared to June, despite the strike and gasoline shortages, according to figures released here by Ray Conway of the Oregon State Motor association. The figures were gathered at 27 traffic stations by the Oregon state highway department in its monthly check. The total for June and July was also considerably higher than for the same period in 1933.

In the two months this year, 45,000 automobiles passed the checking stations, as compared to 42,891 for the same period in 1933. July of 1934 showed an increase of 10.6 per cent over June, while July of 1933 showed only a 9.4 gain over June of that year. Foreign cars in this month's check showed a 21.1 per cent increase over June this year.
