28 BANKERS ARE FACING CHARGES

DETROIT, Aug. 1 (AP)—Twenty-eight present and former Detroit bankers were charged with various infractions of the federal banking laws today in 22 indictments returned by the federal grand jury which has been investigating the circumstances that led to Michigan's financial debacle of last year.

The charges mainly are conspiracy to make false statements, and misapplication of funds.

Many of the men named today were among the 13 indicted June 29 by the same grand jury. Among those indicted today are: Wilson W. Mills, chairman of the board of the closed First National bank, Detroit; John Ballantyne, former president of the Detroit Bankers Co., holding company for the First National and other banks; E. D. Stair, president of the Detroit Bankers Co. and publisher of the Detroit Free Press; Oscar Weber, vice president and general manager of the J. L. Hudson company and a former director of the First National; and Robert O. Lord, former president of the Guardian Detroit union group, holding company for the Guardian National Bank of Commerce and a score of other Michigan banks.

Find Marriage Pact Is 'Grand'

First year of marriage for Minna Campbell, screen comedienne, top photo, and J. W. Sefton, Jr., San Diego, Calif., banker, shown below with her, was "just grand" under their pact by which the actress could go out with any unattached male during certain hours. So they've liberalized the agreement as to hours and predict even more happiness in the coming year.

was the only organization with which she identified herself. Until physically unable, Mrs. Russell was one of the prominent workers of the local congregation. Last winter she went to Laguna Beach, Cal., thinking her health would be benefited and later returned to Portland. Six weeks ago she went to Hot Lake where her case was diagnosed as hardening of the arteries. Her condition has been serious since that time, with intense suffering.

Roosevelt To Visit Portland On Friday

Thursday, the cruiser Houston and New Orleans may stop over for the president's plans for landing Friday morning still stood.

EUREKA, Cal., Aug. 1 (AP)—While Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt enjoyed her vacation four somewhere in Southern Oregon today, residents of Eureka still commented on the two narrow escapes from collision the first lady experienced as she entered this city in her blue roadster yesterday and on the gracious way in which she took the incidents.

"Twice an automobile driven by Mrs. Frank Brennan, wife of the collector of customs of this port nearly rammed Mrs. Roosevelt's roadster and each time the quick action of Lorenza A. Hickok, Mrs. Roosevelt's companion who was at the wheel, averted a crash.

TACOMA, PORTLAND PROS IN PLAYOFF

SEATTLE, Aug. 1 (AP)—A double feature was on the golfing bill here today as Emory Zimmerman, Portland, and Jimmy Johnson, Tacoma, both professionals, tangled in a playoff for the Washington state open golf championship, and some 125 amateurs started on their 13th annual race for the state simon-pure crown.

Zimmerman and Johnson nosed out Neil Christian, Yakima pro, by two strokes in the 72-hole open tournament, tying at 290 after the latter had cracked badly on the homeward stretch yesterday.

Oregon Liquor Question Causes Capital Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The question whether a state liquor commission, such as the Oregon control commission, can legally be considered a corporation, subject to the federal income tax, continues to be debated among officials here as they attempt to determine whether the Oregon liquor control commission should be assessed for its earnings.

A ruling of the general counsel in the Oregon case has held that a state liquor board is not engaged in handling an essential government function and therefore could be taxed under the corporation income tax provision.

On the other hand, Commissioner Guy T. Helvering of the internal revenue bureau, has expressed doubt whether the state commission can be considered as a corporation. He pointed out, however, that liquor sold through such state commissions is subject to the direct federal tax upon its release from warehouses.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER G. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Sergeant Harper has needed to find a certain 15 calibre revolver to establish his theory that the two men found dead in Pierre Dufresne's house were murdered by a third person, and did not kill each other. Dufresne and others of his household have placed obstacles in his way. Now he has found the gun hidden in one of the roof gutters.

Chapter 31
A GUN TALKS

In his eagerness Harper bent down to reach the revolver, but Lafferty jerked him back by the collar. "You can't get it that way; you'll lose your balance. We need a rake or a pole."

"I'm not going to wait for that. Here, hold me while I crawl after it." Harper stretched down the slope head first, while Lafferty kept a tight grip on his ankles. Lower and lower he crawled until he picked up the gun by the barrel.

Lafferty promptly hauled him back to safety. Without even bothering to shake the snow from his clothing, Harper stood up and broke open the revolver.

"There you are! One empty shell! Jack, this is the real murder gun. Now, if we only knew who hid it up here!"

They hurried downstairs, and Lafferty sprayed the heavy revolver with the insulflator. He tapped the gun with steady strokes of an unopened pocket-knife, to dislodge all loose particles, then bent his tall body over the table as he adjusted the circular lens to the proper height and squinted through the glass at the magnified surface.

Sergeant Harper stood beside him, watching closely. But his expression did not reflect the extreme disappointment of Lafferty's as the latter straightened up and muttered, "Not a mark—curse the luck!"

"I didn't expect to find any," Harper commented. "We've got to be content with having recovered the gun and that's something at least. Direct proof of chicanery is what we've needed most in this case."

He picked up the distorted bullet rescued from that dark cavity under the stone steps and held it beside the discharged metal shell. "I'm sure these belong together. If they do, we've got our cornerstone in place. It won't be hard to check it up."

"Sure, it's a hundred to one this is the gun. Only one bullet has been fired and the caliber looks right. The barrel's fouled, too," Lafferty sniffed at the muzzle opening.

"THAT certainly was an inspiration, looking in the gutter of the roof. Whoever put it there was a fast thinker, no doubt about that." "Mrs. Whitmore's chance words gave me the idea. For no particular reason they called up a vision of a window being raised and the gun dangling outside with the string doubled through the trigger guard. At the same time I remembered how the eaves projected over the top-floor windows. The gun could be swung higher and higher until it landed very neatly in the gutter overhead and out of reach.

Balance 18 Months

A new kind of Ironer... a G-E Flat-plate Ironer... the greatest advance in the history of home ironing. Here's how amazing it is:

You sit down in a comfortable chair. Lay your pieces on the flat surface just as you always have... the common sense way. The Ironer glides in place. Push a cool little handle. And there you are! The most beautiful, smoothest ironing you ever saw. The very first time you try it, too! Why, it's so simple you could do it blindfolded. That's why it's three times as easy... twice as fast. And it doesn't cost a cent more to operate than your hand iron. When not in use... fold it right up into its own beautiful white porcelain top kitchen table.

The minute we saw it, we knew it would be the rage with our customers. So we ordered plenty. But at our attractive price and terms, our first shipment will not last long. So come in today... sit down and try it yourself. Then you'll know just what a great advance in home ironing the General Electric Company made for your benefit.
