Pioneer Autoist Recalls "Dash" That Amazed U. S.
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—They used to call Jack Murphy a speed fiend because he set a world record in traveling by motor car from Cleveland, Ohio, to Chicago in nine days! The "great dash" took place back in 1904, recalls Murphy, who is now employed on the mechanical staff of a Memphis newspaper. There were five men in the car, which was further larded with axes, shovels, pulleys and enough rope to tie up a ship.

"When we ran into a swamp, we'd hook up the block and tackle to a tree," Murphy relates. "Then four of us would grab the rope and the other would hold the steering wheel and push."
That wasn't the only bother on the trip. Sometimes there was deep sand.
"There weren't any road maps or signs," the pioneer motorist recalls. "And when we had to drag the car through a creek, it was necessary to take the carburetor off and clean it. But with all of that, we and everybody else thought we were making fast time."

TOLEDO (Laboratory B)—Test-wheel driven by electric motor spins so fast it looks quite solid. Merz show engineers that wheel is running faster than in any previous test. New testing structure makes the difference, cuts bearing friction. Cars will go faster with the same power.

DETROIT (Laboratory C)—Triple wheel, steel wheel, motor in rear, increase force of the axle, motor in rear on the long wheel base—weld structure and drag out the axle. Cars will go faster with the same power.

ASSOCIATED (Laboratory D)—Also motor complex one hundred horse run at open throttle. Engines grin broadly—they have something there. Merz show more R.P.M., more speed than ever before—and with less gasoline. New Cyclol cuts oil-drag. This motor is run down, manometers show less wear. Cars will go faster with the same power.

NOW THE MOTOR OIL THAT CUTS OIL-DRAG

NEW CYCOL

Releases new power, increases speed—Cyclol's solvent-refining makes this difference

New Cyclol releases new power to your car because it offers less oil-drag, grade for grade, than any other motor oil.

The impurities, the sluggish qualities that drag down power have been removed from New Cyclol by solvent-refining—the process first used in the United States by Associated. Cyclol's solvent-refining process removes more retardant compounds from the crude than any other process—and does it without impairing natural lubricating qualities of the oil. No sludge, no hard carbon.

New Cyclol is a lively oil, twice distilled under vacuum to avoid heat injury. Cyclol is the heart-cut of selected wax-free crude and stands up under severest driving conditions.

For a livelier, more economical motor, fill your crank-case today with New solvent-refined Cyclol—it still costs only 25c a quart.
