GRAND VIEW CAMPGROUND COMPLETED

U. S. Forest Service Finishes Work on Park on Mount Emily.

FINE OUTLOOK ON VALLEY SCENERY

Campground Permits Required, Along With Shovel, Axe and Bucket, to Prevent Fires.

The U. S. forest service has just completed at a cost of $850 a public camp ground on Mount Emily. Cold water has been piped to the camp ground from a mountain spring near-by and tables, toilets, covered garage pits and fireplaces are provided as well as one open front shelter.

The camp ground is to be known as Grand View Camp, so named because of the magnificent view of the Grande Ronde valley, Cricket Flat and Wallowa mountains that may be enjoyed from there. A parking rail and observation seat have been provided for the campers' convenience.

The Grand View Camp may be reached by the new Mt. Emily road and is approximately 13 miles from La Grande. The camp is just one mile north of the stub road that leads to the Mt. Emily lookout.

The elevation of Mt. Emily is 6,064 feet above sea level, and it is one of the largest mountains in this immediate vicinity.

Campfire permits will be required at this camp ground as well as elsewhere and a shovel, axe and water bucket must be provided. Permits

MAYO NAMED KAMELA, HAINES, TELOCASET

From Stayton, Ore., comes word of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mayo, celebrated Sunday at their home. It is of particular interest to old timers and the present generation in the La Grande vicinity, since they were married at Island City July 27, 1864, and he is responsible for the naming of Kamela, Haines and Telocaset.

Mr. Mayo opened the first telegraph office at La Grande in a box car. As the railroad was being constructed at various points sidings were built, and Mr. Mayo named many of them. He had known Dr. William McKay at Pendleton, and from him had learned the meaning of many Indian words. One siding at the top of a ridge Mr. Mayo named Kamela, the Indian name for sumac, or top; another Telocaset, the Indian name for the tamarack pine which grows in that country and differs from other pine in that it sheds

Dizzy Array of Fabrics Displayed At Style Exhibit

By Adelaide Kerr
PARIS, Aug. 7 (AP)—The dizziest array of hybrid luxury fabrics Paris ever displayed is the outstanding feature today of the fortnight of dressmakers' winter exhibits now drawing to a close. Designers no longer are content to cling to standbys, but sponsor a bewildering potpourri, mingling two or three materials into one fabric. Heads of buyers reeled trying to figure out what they were seeing.

There were changeable lame velvets, quilted lame taffetas, cellophane silks, pailletted laces and quilted, elasticized crinkled velvets in vivid and subdued colors for evening wear. Other items included gunmetal gold and silver lames, woven on a base of black, white, pale green.

MAYO NAMED KAMELA, HAINES, TELOCASET

From Stayton, Ore., comes word of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mayo, celebrated Sunday at their home. It is of particular interest to old timers and the present generation in the La Grande vicinity, since they were married at Island City July 27, 1864, and he is responsible for the naming of Kamela, Haines and Telocaset.

Mr. Mayo opened the first telegraph office at La Grande in a box car. As the railroad was being constructed at various points sidings were built, and Mr. Mayo named many of them. He had known Dr. William McKay at Pendleton, and from him had learned the meaning of many Indian words. One siding at the top of a ridge Mr. Mayo named Kamela, the Indian name for sumac, or top; another Telocaset, the Indian name for the tamarack pine which grows in that country and differs from other pine in that it sheds its leaves. One siding he named Haines, as that piece of property was owned by Judge Haines of Baker and a well-known pioneer of that section. Still another siding was named Emilia, a Spanish name for a species of oak.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayo lived in Corvallis from 1893 to 1898, where Mr. Mayo had charge of three steamers running from Harrisburg to Portland. They also lived for several years at Astoria and Spokane until he retired and came here.

Mrs. Mayo was born in Fox valley, east of here, the daughter of John Preston and Martha Berry, who crossed the plains in 1852.

The Mayos have one son, J. W. Mayo, who was in New York on business and unable to attend their anniversary party. However other relatives, including brothers and sisters, were present.

RETAIL LUMBER PRICES REDUCED IN LA GRANDE

A reduction in the price of retail lumber in La Grande was announced today by local dealers, the reduction being voluntary in nature and in cooperation with President Roosevelt's reconstruction program. The price changes here are in line with a national movement on the part of retail lumbermen to assist the federal government in its efforts toward recovery.

The price reductions range from five to as much as 16 or 17 per cent. The drop is more pronounced in common lumber, which is used more extensively in construction than the select grades. No. 2 dimension has dropped $5 per thousand feet.

Locally, it was pointed out, that the reduced prices means a considerable savings to local people who have contemplated either repair work or new construction this summer or fall.

Only Portland and Astoria rank higher than the cities in the La Grande group, which include Albany, Ashland, Baker, Bend, Corvallis, Eugene, Grants Pass, Hood River, McMinnville, Medford, Oregon City, Pendleton and The Dalles.

Cities grouped in class 6 include Cottage Grove, Dallas, Forest Grove, Klamath Falls, Marshfield, Roseburg, Salem, Silverton, Tillamook and Woodburn.

McNARY NOT TO SEEK NOMINATION FOR PRESIDENT

SALEM, Aug. 7 (AP)—Senator Charles L. McNary, who returned to his farm home near here yesterday, "will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1936, nor would he accept such a position were it offered to him," the Oregon statesman said in a signed story here this morning. The article said the senator was apparently quite content to go on representing this state as effectively as possible as leader of the opposition in the senate, rather than enter the national campaign.

McNary expected to take some part in the congressional campaign this fall, going east in October to confer with the senate committee at Chicago on the campaigns being conducted in the various states for the reelection of Republican senators in November. He predicted many close fights, "with the new dealers making every effort to add several neophytes to the 60 senators they already have in the upper house."

The senator will not take an active part in the campaign.

E. D. DAVIS LOSES $90 IN ROBBERY HERE LAST NIGHT

E. D. "Buck" Davis, salesman for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was robbed of about $90 in cash last night by a holdup bandit near the west end of the U. P. depot, according to reports.

Davis had gone to the depot to mail a letter. It is reported, when someone stuck some instrument—presumably a gun—against his back and ordered him to "stick 'em up." He did and the robber went through his pockets from behind, obtained the cash and made an escape before Davis could get a glimpse of him. Davis had left his car and stepped onto the running board to reach inside it for something when the hold-up occurred.

The witness said the aim of the Silver Shirts was to "take charge of the United States government."

PRUNE INDUSTRY AGREES ON PRICE

SALEM, Aug. 7 (AP)—Closing a three day session here late last night, the lately organized control board for the prune industry reached an agreement on minimum price rates for dried and green prunes. The prices were immediately approved by Max Gehlhar, state director of agriculture.

In making the prices known Gehlhar emphasized that the rates were minimum prices, and not in any way to be considered maximum prices.

The base price of 39-cent Italian prunes was set at $22 per ton with a deduction of $1 per ton for each point smaller, and addition of $3 per ton for each point larger.

Petite prune prices will vary from one-half cent higher per pound than

ASSIST FARMERS IN HOLDING GRAIN

New Scheme Will Leave Control of 1935 Supplies in the Hands of the Growers.

By Stephen J. McDonough (Copyright, 1934, Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—A gigantic crop loan plan which would leave control of 1935 supplies in the hands of farmers who grow them is hatching in the farm administration.

Modeled after this year's corn and cotton loans, the plan will call for government loans on a wide range of other crops. There will be a stipulation that supplies must be sold when prices rise to a certain point.

Last year the government advanced farmers ten cents a pound on stored cotton, and 45 cents a bushel on corn sealed in cribs or warehouses. This pegged prices at those levels and officials say the plan was a success.

As prices advanced beyond those levels recently farmers began selling crops, paying off loans and making a profit for themselves. The farm administration declares the idea

EX-MARINE TELLS OF ACTIVITIES OF "SILVER SHIRTS"

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7 (AP)—Virgil Hayes, former United States marine, testified at a congressional subcommittee hearing here today that he was offered $10 each for stolen government rifles, $50 each for machine guns and $20 a case for ammunition by an official of an organization known as the Silver Shirts.

Hayes named W. W. Kemp as the official who made the offer. He described Kemp as commander of the San Diego Silver Shirts.

"Kemp said that President Roosevelt was being advised by many persons sympathetic with communists," the witness testified. "He mentioned the names of Secretary Morgenthau and Assistant Secretary Tugwell. He said all Jews must be removed from public office."

The witness said the aim of the Silver Shirts was to "take charge of the United States government."

SHORTS OUTLAWED BY GOLF ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Feminine wielders of the mallet and the niblick were plunged today into an argument that threatens to shake the ancient Scottish pastime to its foundations, and it has nothing to do with mallets and niblicks, either.

The Women's Metropolitan Golf association sitting in solemn assembly yesterday decreed that henceforth no woman may wear shorts in any tournament play under its direction.

The association's statement did not make clear whether the objection of its members rested on moral or esthetic grounds. It merely announced that "due to the fact that various member clubs and other associations have expressed their disapproval of shorts or abbreviated knickers, the Women's Metropolitan Golf association requests that all contestants refrain from wearing such apparel in future tournaments in deference to these wishes."

Maureen Oroux, one of the game's leading players on the feminine side, opened the rebuttal. She said she would obey the ruling but added "it is going to be hard on those ladies who have reduced their hips or who have secured a beautiful leg tan."
