pink, purple and vivid red day fabrics, stressing rubberized cellulosics, and blunty, crinkled wools, cloque crepes, quilted tafetas and satins with numerous lame weaves and lame ribbon trims.

Evening gowns of costly blended fabrics are designed for the season's favorite slender silhouette, sometimes with modified knee-length tunics. Skirts generally fall in narrow but easy fitting lines to the floor, but are no longer cut in under the hips. Often they are slit and sometimes trained.

10 to 6. What should have been a home run on a combination of a hit and error was called an "out" at home plate on a throw in which the runner appeared safe to all but the umpire by a considerable margin. This would have tied the score.

This was the first of a three-game series for these two teams and the second game will be played this evening at 6:30 at the stadium. This evening also the Greenwood Juniors will meet the Barbers in the first of their series of three games for the championship in the lower bracket of the four high teams. This game will also be played at the stadium at 6:30 and the public is invited to attend. No admission is charged for any of these games.

Games tonight begin at 6 o'clock instead of 6:30 because of drum corps practice.

BETTER FIRE INS. RATING GIVEN CITY

Less than one point, will reflect in lower insurance rates, remains to be seen. The insurance department in Salem today announced that "although the city as a whole would have a lower insurance rate when changed to a more favorable rating, it would not necessarily mean a decrease in the rate on individual buildings."

Local fire insurance men here today were of the opinion that if any changes in rates were made — and they were unable to predict whether such a change would occur — they likely would not be announced until after the first of the coming year.

All the cities mentioned above were given more favorable ratings but only Portland, Astoria, Pendleton, The Dalles and Bend had warranted actual better rating of one point, the insurance department said today.

Locally, the more favorable rating given La Grande was regarded as conclusive evidence that efforts extended here to better conditions are at least meeting with recognition.

to lose about $250,000 if certain features of Wickhard's proposal were adopted.

Oregon farmers are eligible for nearly $1,000,000 this year if they can prove to the satisfaction of the government that they have reduced Oregon's hog population 25 per cent. Most of them are paid cash for their hogs by the buyers, and seldom do sales slips change hands. Wickhard had insisted that if any Oregon farmer is to get a rebate from the government, he must produce a sales slip.

YOUNGSTERS HAVE BIRTHDAY FETE
ELGIN—A very beautiful birthday party was given Saturday in honor of Kenneth Miller's first birthday and Jimmy Shelton's fourth anniversary, at the Emil Miller home.

The center piece was attractive and unique. A stately circus tent arrayed in colorful flags and banners occupied the table, many cloths in varied colors and sizes gallantly doing their part.

The small guests were greeted by Marilyn Patten, who was dressed in a red and white clown suit, with all of the frowns and smiles that make up a regular clown.

The birthday cakes trimmed with candles played an important part at each end of the table. The table was set for 24 guests.

Those present were the honor guests, Kenneth Miller, Jimmy Shelton, Jay Anne McCullough, Billy and Bobby DeBoe, Warren Chandler, Colleen Blanchard, Vesta, Lila Lou and Donna Graham, Lloyd Hill, Shirley Hibbert, Raymond Cross, Carl and Dick Giltner, Alice Anita and Donna Lou Gordon, Doris Jane Gordon, Glen Jones, and Jack and Marilyn Patten.

Light refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

READY FOR THE MATCH
Today Central Europe is the madhouse of the world. Great powers are literally sitting on powder-kegs, and only a spark is needed to produce the greatest explosion since 1914. The last world war started when a half-insane anarchist murdered an obscure Grand Duke in a city few Americans had ever heard of. It takes years to prepare the stage for major wars — to build up the hatreds, the mistrusts, the fears, that underlie them. Once the stage is set, however, only minutes are required to get the play going.

Behind the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss, Austria's five-foot-tall iron man, is an involved, crooked, close-to-untraceable chain of events that go back to the post-war peace pacts. Modern Austria is a head without a body. In the days before 1914, the old empire embraced 250,000 square miles of territory, harboring a population of 50,000,000. After the war, the map of Europe was remade to the order of the victorious countries, and when the operation was finished, Austria had been reduced to 7,000,000 people, with a little over 30,000 square miles of territory. Much of this land is worthless from the standpoint of production — and neighboring nations erected high tariff barriers to prevent the small amount of export Austria could have had. Only loans have kept her from bankruptcy during the past fifteen years.

As a result, her people are despairing, frightened, wondering. She is thus always facing potential revolution. It is that fact that Hitler is seeking to take advantage of. Germany, too, was dismembered by war — and the Nazi dream is to restore the territorial empire that once made Potsdam the most important capital of Europe. Hitler believes that the way to do that is not by invasion — France, Italy and perhaps England, with great armies and navies, would crush him as soon as he started if he tried that course — but by establishing Nazi governments in other central powers, of which Austria is one. Dollfuss was the great defender of Austrian independence — a Christian Socialist, he, although a supreme dictator, hated the Nazis — and his removal was essential to Nazi hopes.

The Nazi attempt to take over the Austrian government, daring as it was, failed. Italy at once moved 50,000 troops to the Italian-Austrian frontier — and with France, is pledged to maintain Austrian independence. There is no Austrian potential revolution. It is that fact that Hitler is seeking to take advantage of. Germany, too, was dismembered by war — and the Nazi dream is to restore the territorial empire that once made Potsdam the most important capital of Europe. Hitler believes that the way to do that is not by invasion — France, Italy and perhaps England, with great armies and navies, would crush him as soon as he started if he tried that course — but by establishing Nazi governments in other central powers, of which Austria is one. Dollfuss was the great defender of Austrian independence — a Christian Socialist, he, although a supreme dictator, hated the Nazis — and his removal was essential to Nazi hopes.

BURY HINDENBURG IN WAR MONUMENT
TANNENBERG, Germany, Aug. 7. — Germany buried Paul Von Hindenburg in a shrine it holds sacred today after Adolf Hitler in an emotional eulogy at the bier said the late president "opened the door" to Nazism.

Brief and simple was the funeral, as the old warrior-statesman had wished, but thousands of uniforms gave it a military atmosphere. The body of the 86-year-old leader was placed to rest in one of the towers of the national war monument, erected on the scene of Von Hindenburg's great triumph over the Russian army in 1914.

MAKES FIRST TRIP OVER NEW ROAD
NORTH POWDER — Tom Gibson, Philo Rock sheepman who leases Whitman forest range for his woods, is said to be the first man to drive a car over the Ekhorn divide of the Blue mountains on the new road connecting Anthony lake with the west side. While the crew is yet working on the last stretch and motorists are warned not to attempt to disperse the right-of-way with the 60-h. p. "cat". Mr. Gibson came over the route Monday. The same day W. E. Barnett, ranger, drove over to Horse camp and back by carefully steering his car around the rocks yet in the way.

Just what the new connection means in saving miles was cited by the ranger when he said he made the trip over the "hump" in 26 miles, while if he had driven around the only other motor road he would have had to travel 216 miles.

500,000 LBS. WOOL SHIPPED TO EAST
ENTERPRISE — Having been held in Enterprise for weeks, on account of the dock strike, over half a million pounds of Wallawa county wool was loaded out of warehouses of the valley the latter part of the week and started via the Union Pacific for Portland. The wool is taken from Portland by ship through the Panama canal to the eastern markets where most of it is manufactured into clothing.

All together there has gone from Enterprise 22 carloads of wool since Friday and there remains three more carloads in the warehouses for future shipments, says the Record-Chiefman. This does not include other shipments made from Joseph, Wallawa and other points in the valley.
