NATURE'S GIFT — WHY REFUSE IT?

Judging from a recent look at the register of the Wallowa Lodge at Wallowa Lake, all parts of the country and some of the world are commencing to be alive to the wonderful recreation spot that exists so close to us except La Grande. We are speaking in terms of not just a day or weekend visit in and out, but of the advantages of this wonderful country as the place to devote an entire summer vacation period.

Accommodations of the lodge or hotel building proper, the cabins and the camp grounds adjacent are well patronized by people of our nearby communities of Pendleton, Baker, Walla Walla and others, who have seemingly long since accepted the Wallowa as the ideal summer playground. Registered there too this year, for prolonged vacation time play, is an increased number from other states of the union much farther away. From La Grande however, for any lengthy stay in any of the various accommodations which the lakeside resort offers, the percentage of registration is exceedingly small in comparison.

La Grande patronizes the lake to be sure, but seemingly more in a manner, perhaps because of its very closeness, of making it the terminus of a Sunday drive. It is a known fact that few people of this community know a great deal about the tremendous beauty and greatness of the open country that extends for miles behind the lake, and the great majority know little or nothing even of the recreation and good time to be enjoyed from just a brief stay on the shores of the main lake at the end of the highway.

It would seem well for La Grande people, of all others, to take the possibilities of the Wallowa country as a vacation land seriously to heart — to utilize its advantages themselves that they may talk more knowingly of its natural beauty and grandeur to others. The promotion of the Wallowa wonderland to the outside world can be of untold value to the future progress and prosperity of this community and section. The promotion of their advantages as vacation lands is the principal reason for the tremendous development of many widely known sections of the country — many of them by the way possessing not near the opportunities of real pleasure offered in the Wallowa.

Many communities the country over owe almost the entirety of their continued progress and prosperity to the fate that placed them near development of vacation lands. This country, of all nations, spends a greater portion of its time "on the road." Traffic of the summer tourist in his car in the United States exceeds beyond any comparison a like trend in any other country in the world. Every family with a car and a few extra dollars gets and accepts the urge to "go somewhere" each year. And where they go depends much upon where they are best urged.

La Grande, as "gateway" to the Wallowa and the "Switzerland of America" has an opportunity to capitalize on a tremendous asset. The average tourist is credited with spending $10 a day. La Grande, at the present time and until new roads are opened into this great country from north and west, can get every Wallowa visitor both going and coming. The percentage of that ten dollars which it will as a result receive from an appreciable travel into the lake basin, is an amount that has kept many communities elsewhere so situated alive and well in comfortable prosperity.

It would seem to behoove La Grande to get actively behind promotion for this great but as yet little known vacation land to which it is both front and back door. The days of taking nature's gifts for granted without effort to improve are gone. In the Wallowa today we have an opportunity given by nature for our future progress well worth while. We can take it or we can leave it — for some other community. Today is our opportunity, for in the tomorrows new roads and new outlets that are sure to come will give this great wonderland to some other section that may prove more alive where we have been lax. The first established however as the "gateway" will never lose its identity or any great portion of revenue that is in future years most certain to develop from this fine back country of which there is little of its kind to even equal.

This summer is practically gone and tourist travel seeking a summer playground is now on the wane or set in its destination. For next year and years following however, let us in La Grande become better acquainted with this great wonderland that has been given us for our advantage. Let us be prepared with first hand knowledge, gained from our own contact, to tell and urge our friends, acquaintances and the rest of our country that here in the Wallowa, only two hours from La Grande, is the ideal spot in the entire world where vacation seekers may come and relax and play through the finest vacation period they have ever enjoyed.

UPTONS LEAVE FOR BEND; END WEEK'S OUTING

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Upton and their niece, Mrs. Dorothy Coome, of Bend, who have been having an outing at Wallowa Lake wonderland came here Saturday and were guests over the weekend of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Anderson at their home near the city. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and their guests attended the veterans' picnic Sunday at Emigrant Springs. Mr. and Mrs. Upton and Mrs. Coome returned last night to their home.

REV. PEARSON OF PENDLETON DIES FRIDAY

Word has been received here of the death of Rev. A. G. Pearson, pastor of the first Presbyterian church at Pendleton, which occurred at Emanuel hospital in Portland Friday night. Mr. Pearson, who had not been in the best of health for some time, was on his vacation and stopped at the Portland hospital to go through the clinic in an effort to find the cause of his trouble. His death followed an operation which was found necessary.

The body was brought to Pendleton and the funeral is to be held there Tuesday afternoon. He is survived by his wife who was with him in Portland at the time of his passing. Rev. and Mrs. Pearson moved to Pendleton about five years ago from Twin Falls, Ida.

One of the first negro millionaires in the world was R. E. Church, boss of Beale street, Memphis.

You'll Get More and Spend Less With a "Caterpillar" DIESEL Tractor

Figure it out for yourself — 6% cent fuel oil against 15-cent gasoline. That's a price saving of 60 per cent. Now add to that a saving of at least 40 per cent in gallons used. The two together make a net saving to the "Caterpillar" owner of better than 70 per cent under the cost of operating a gas tractor. Better investment!
