HOW ALLIES CAN ISOLATE NAZIS' LAST DITCH — Junction between fast-flying Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army in the west and Russia's First and Second Ukrainian armies in the east would cut off southern Germany, where Nazi leaders and remnants of their legions are reported to be fleeing for possible "last stand." Map above shows how junction of the two armies would effect the cutoff and also how other sections of the Third are striking for possible junctions with Allied forces to the north and in Italy.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, April 2 (UP)—Reports of large sales of local rye to distillers drove May rye up five cents, the maximum advance permitted in a day, and caused a general upturn in grain futures on the board of trade today.

Rye closed up 2 1/4-4 1/4 cents a bushel, wheat up 1 1/2-2 1/4, corn up 1 1/2-2 1/4, oats up 1 1/4-1 1/2 and barley up 1 1/2-2 1/4.

May rye climbed to a new seasonal high of $1.22 1/2 a bushel, while May wheat reached $1.73, also a new high for the season.

Demand for rye was stimulated by reports that a substantial part of the local stock has been sold to distillers, although part of this apparently has been on the books for some time and waiting transportation. Traders also renewed their interest in the 4,000,000 bushels of rye bought by the commodity credit corporation for export and wondered how much of this will come from Chicago's supply of rye.

Stocks Advance On Light Turnover

NEW YORK, April 2 (UP)—Stocks advanced fractions to a point today in the lightest trading of the year.

Railroad issues made the best showing. Industrials also had fair-sized advances, while utilities firmed.

Traders were cautious in the commodities because of the highly favorable war news which to Wall Street reflected approach of V-E day and difficulties of the industrial transition period. However, there was as much reticence in selling as in buying.

Only moderate demand was sufficient to send prices up. Steels were strong and the war group generally rose better than the so-called peace section. In the latter, motors were up fractionally and airlines around their best levels of the year. Liquors, which would be able to resume beverage alcohol making on at least a part-time basis after V-E day, strengthened.

The hands tied behind the back. Nearby lay a mother and her two children. The woman was face down with an arm around each child. They had been slashed to death apparently with a saber.

Col. J. D. Frederick, of the 129th infantry, revealed that an estimated 400 bodies were found in three different places in the Port Santiago sector. Death had resulted from shooting, bayoneting or starvation. The majority of the victims were men from 25 to 45.

All died with their hands tied behind their backs and their bodies were piled layer after layer as the Japanese riddled them with bullets.

Planes Support Advance
Carrier planes from the vast invasion armada lying offshore pinpointed individual enemy targets in front of advancing army and marine infantrymen. They drew anti-aircraft fire from the Japanese.

Valens saw one dauntless dive bomber make an emergency landing on Kadena airstrip. It was the first large American plane to land there.

Kadena was reported to be a Japanese defense "bluff." Underground gun emplacements were described as little more than wooden pigstys. The wreckage of Japanese planes lay scattered across the captured airfields, attesting to the effectiveness of the pre-invasion bombardment and carrier strikes.

Tens of thousands of troops went ashore from the 1,400-ship armada and seized an eight-and-three-quarters-mile-long beachhead on Okinawa's west coast yesterday in an operation that placed American military might within 382 miles of Japan's "sacred soil."
