

Colleges Record Enrollment Gains For Spring Term

CORVALLIS, Ore., April 5 (UP)—A 45 per cent gain in civilian men students was reported for the first day of registration at Oregon State college, with the total gain in enrollment over last year's first day set at 5 per cent.

There were 334 civilian men registered, as compared with 230 on the same date last year. Women students increased three per cent, with a total civilian enrollment of 1,631 as compared with 1,491 a year ago.

Women greatly outnumber the men, with a total of 1,297 women and 334 men. Agriculture, business and industry reflected greatest gains in attendance.

EUGENE, Ore., April 5 (UP)—Enrollment at the University of Oregon jumped 24 per cent on the first day of the new spring term as compared with the same day a year ago, university officials announced today.

A total of 1,497 students completed registration the first day, and 136 more had taken out papers, for a total of 1,633. The 1944 figures were 1,210 students registered and a total attendance for the term of 1,512.

Vocal Training Is Offered In College Summer Courses

Plans for a vocal music institute at Eastern Oregon college June 18 through July 7, under the direction of Charles W. Lawrence, professor of vocal music at the University of Washington, was announced today by President Robert J. Maaske.

Under the plan, a vocalist may have two private lessons a week for three weeks and attend a daily combined vocal clinic and chorus for additional instruction and vocal training, for a fee of $20.00.

Another feature, arranged for high school and summer session students interested in vocal training, entitles the student to nine group vocal lessons in the three weeks, plus participation in a combined chorus and clinic. The fee for this course is $10.

Professor Lawrence is well known among musicians in La Grande and eastern Oregon, having taught here a few summers ago. He has the reputation of being one of the foremost voice instructors in the northwest, and has studied with leading voice instructors in New York City, Europe, and elsewhere, and has been a staff member of the University's School of Music since 1926.

One hour of college credit will be granted to any adult student who enrolls and completes the course.

Choose Shoulder Pads to Fit You

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Squaring off or widening your shoulder line with dress pads is a good device which many a clever girl uses to improve her figure by making her hips look slimmer; by glossing over the most glaring posture fault—slumping.

But shoulder-building can be carried too far. It goes too far if exaggerated padding makes you look like a halfback in full football line-up. Shoulder-building goes too far if you're a little bit of a thing and you use it to lop off height, which is what happens when you widen your figure at any point.

Pint-sizers are better off setting for a bit of stiffening at the shoulder line—which can be achieved by an inconspicuous shoulder pad with a crinoline base—and not trying to build themselves out to look like little brigadier generals.

America and her "Underground"

We were sitting around after chores the other night talking about the progress of the war. Chad Davis was saying how, in spite of Germany's defeat, there was still the German underground to cope with.

"I don't worry about them," says Sober Baskins. "So long as we got our own underground in working order."

"What do you mean—our underground?" says Chad. And Sober points out to the fields. "There it is," he says, "under that soil lies the most important weapon that we've got. American crops—from American fields—strengthening our position overseas in a way no other underground can shake."

From where I sit, Chad's absolutely right. Whether it's for the glass of beer that cheers a fired soldier's spirits, or the bread that feeds our armies and our allies, every bit of grain that American farmers harvest is a part of America's great strength.
