disorganizing movements of the German formations which are falling back toward the north-west.

Two Russian armies were closing in on the last two districts of burning Vienna still in German hands. The Leopoldstadt commercial district, including the 2,000-acre Prater amusement park, was cleared yesterday by troops who forced the Danube river canal.

Telbukhin's offensive appeared designed to cut the German route of retreat to the Redoubt from Berlin. Some 90 German divisions, possibly the last organized force still available in Germany, are tied down on the Berlin front west of the Oder awaiting the Soviet attack.

U. S. Sub, Landing Craft Are Lost

WASHINGTON April 12 (UP)—The navy today announced loss of the submarine Scamp on patrol in the Pacific. A crew of about 65 men was aboard.

The navy also revealed that a large support landing craft was lost in the Philippine area as the result of enemy action. Normal complement of such a craft is about 45 men.

Next of kin of casualties on both ships have been informed. The losses increased to 284 the total of U. S. naval vessels lost from all causes in the war. The Scamp was the 42nd submarine lost.

The submarine skipper was Cmdr. John C. Hollingsworth. His wife lives at Groton, Conn.

Harry S. Truman, elected vice president of the United States at the election last fall, who became president of the United States with the death of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

President Had Remarkable Career

Franklin Delano Roosevelt surmounted a crippling malady and early political defeat to become president of the United States four times and one of the world's most powerful leaders in peace and war.

The poor and depression-weary knew him as their provider, the champion of "the forgotten man." But many other Americans regarded him as a hated Robin Hood who pillaged their fortunes, through taxes and restraints on business, to perpetuate himself in office. His name became a household word all over the earth and during World War II it was a symbol of American might and generosity.

Probably no previous administrations were so marked as his by political cleavages which cut frequently across party lines. It was not unusual for him to be opposed by the more conservative members of his own party while some of the more liberal Republicans were supporting him.

First to Break Precedent

Overwhelmingly defeated for vice president in 1920, he eventually became the first president to serve more than two terms. When he ran for his third term, the reaction from his political foes was deafening. The opposition was even more vitriolic when he sought a fourth term. But he sailed into both with thumping majorities.

Crippled by infantile paralysis in 1924, he spurred invalidism, projected his personality into virtually every aspect of national life, and was the most widely traveled chief executive the country ever had. Although he could walk only with assistance, and spent much of his time in a wheel chair, he was one of the most dramatic men ever to enter the White House. He delighted in smashing precedents. He loved to surprise the people by turning up unexpectedly in strange parts of the world. He thrived on political battles, seeming to enjoy them more and more as he grew older.

Before the 1944 political season blossomed fully, the country, for a time at least, about forthcoming political conventions and concentrated on the invasion of France which began on June 6. The president continued to play his game of saying nothing—even after the republicans gave their presidential nomination to Thomas E. Dewey, governor of New York, late in June.

Finally, about a week before the democratic convention in July, Mr. Roosevelt informed Robert E. Hannegan, the national democratic chairman, that he would accept nomination for a fourth term, but would not run for office "in the usual partisan, political sense."

As congress was thrown into a broiling argument over the Wal-

Record Fleet Of Superforts Rakes Japan

By United Press

An American aerial armada of 400 or more B-29 superfortresses and fighters blasted today at Japanese war plants in the Tokyo area and at Koriyama, 110 miles north.

The fleet, possibly the largest yet hurled at Japan from land bases, split over the enemy homeland, with half bombing the Musashina aircraft plant in Nakajima, a Tokyo suburb.

The rest attacked aircraft plants and a power plant at Koriyama.

The B-29's, striking their 15th major blow in the Tokyo area, flew 3,800 miles in the round trip between their Marianas bases and Koriyama. Mustang fighters joined the group from Iwo island, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

A Domei dispatch, recorded by the FCC, reported about 80 American carrier planes raided northern Formosa for two hours today. Formosa lies off the southwestern tip off the Ryukyus, of which Okinawa is the principal island.

Ground Forces Stalled

While the aerial campaign was being renewed, American invasion forces on southern Okinawa remained stalled for the fourth day by heavy Japanese artillery and mortar fire from defensive positions four miles north of the capital, Naha.

Marine forces to the north continued advances on Ishikawa peninsula.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that American troops had completed occupation of Tsugen island off southeast Okinawa, controlling the entrance to Nakagusuku bay.

Nimitz disclosed that American casualties in the first nine days of the Okinawa campaign were 432 killed, 2,103 wounded and 160 missing. The count of Japanese dead through Sunday was 5,069.

In the Philippines, units of the first cavalry division drove 14 miles through disorganized Japanese resistance to secure a second foothold on the east coast of Luzon.

Lee nomination, the president left town under cover of heavy secrecy and sped across the world for another meeting with Churchill and Stalin.

indefinite period after the war ends.

The occasion of his meeting with Ozmona on April 5 was the last time the three wire service reporters accompanying the president saw him to talk for any length of time.

He was in gay spirits then and chatted lightly as he sat behind a paper-laden card table, waving his long cigar holder jauntily and wisecracking with the reporters.

At that time the president had a good suntan, but his face was unusually drawn and there was evidence of a slight cough.

But he did not look or act like a man who was going to die in a week.

This morning the president followed his usual routine of handling paper work that had just arrived from Washington.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early announced in Washington that funeral services will be held in the east room of the White House Saturday afternoon. Burial will be at the president's Hyde Park, N. Y., estate on Sunday afternoon.

Stocks Advance On Active Market

NEW YORK, April 12 (UP)—Stocks extended their advance for the third day today as trading kept to the million-share pace of the previous session.

Evidence as to the volume of "loose" money held in public hands was seen in the announcement of Corning Glass Works that a forthcoming new issue of preferred stock would carry a record low interest rate of 3 1/2 per cent. Some commentators feel, moreover, that so far only a trickle of this money has reached the stock market.

A number of stocks had gains of two points or more, including Johns-Manville, Superior Oil of California, Montgomery Ward and Amerada Petroleum. Good-year, Westinghouse Electric, Homestake Mining, Dow Chemical, Lima Locomotive, Lane Bryant and Industrial Rayon were up a point or more each.

May Wheat Hits 20-Year Price Top

CHICAGO, April 12 (UP) — A surge of buying and short-covering caused all deliveries of rye and May and July wheat to spiral to new seasonal tops on the Board of Trade today. May wheat established a 20-year record at $1.75 1/2, only 1 1/2 cents from the ceiling. Minneapolis and Kansas City wheat and Winnipeg rye all hit new season peaks.

Grains on the Board of Trade closed strong with wheat up 1/4 to 4 cents a bushel; rye up 1 to 2 1/2; corn up 1/2 to 1 1/4; oats up 1/4 to 1 1/2 and barley off 1/4 to up 1/2.

The immediate need for cars to move grain and flour to terminals for shipment abroad, the tremendous grain needs for overseas use, and the large open May interest accounted partly for the wheat bulge. July delivery climbed within 1/4 cent of the day's permissible limit.
