Book Reviews Are Theme of School Mother's Day Fete

The fifth and sixth grade pupils of Mrs. Elizabeth Harris at Ackerman school entertained their mothers at a Mother's Day party this afternoon at an assembly program in the auditorium. The Ackerman chorus sang two songs appropriate to the day—"The Homeland" and "Mother."

The theme of the program was books children love. Victor Welch presented a summary of the books most borrowed by the intermediate grade children over a period of several years, showing that many of the old favorites are still much checked out of the children's library.

Seven brief book reviews were given as follows: Jimmy Lane, on "David Copperfield"; Janet Campbell, "Little Women"; Bobby Rother, "Tom Sawyer"; Eddie Johnson, "Heidi"; Morris Buckwalter, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"; John Leffel, "Swiss Family Robinson."

An original one act play was presented, "A Mother's Day Dream." The characters in the book reviewed previously, or the play were the mothers in the persons who took the place of mother in the story. In the various parts were: Phyllis Snider, Patty Marquis, Bernice Howard, Sharon Davin, Virginia Brown, Joe Hardwick, Jerry Lou Halsey, and Irene Anderson.

THEY GAVE THEIR "ALL" FOR CHARITY—During a recent meeting of the La Grande Lions club, in the midst of the drive to collect old clothing and shoes for peoples of war devastated areas, W. E. Wilkins and Al Thornburg set an example for other Lions and guests by appearing at the club's luncheon attired in barrels suspended from their shoulders. They are shown here at the extreme left as they called upon fellow Lions to emulate their example. However, there seemed to have been a shortage of barrels at that particular moment.

Here Are Some Smart Style Tricks Hollywood Stars Do With Mirrors

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Standing, walking and sitting in front of a mirror studying yourself is not a shameful display of vanity. Nor is it an hour wasted, if you come away with a good idea for a hair-do, a better-fitting dress, an effective way to wear a flower.

Renie of Hollywood, RKO designer, who knows from watching the stars whom she dresses what they do to achieve perfection, says it's the hours spent in front of mirrors that turn the tricks.

"Marlene Dietrich will worry all day about draping a scarf just so or where to wear a flower," says Renie, "and will try it on all the way down to her feet and back up again."

And where will she finally pin it? On her stomach, says Renie, and to justify the new location of her corsage she'll have a dress draped so as to give it a special spot.

Ginger Rogers' sheer perfection in clothes, says Renie, comes from viewing herself going and coming in a three-tiered mirror which commands a 20-foot perspective. According to this designer, if more girls would follow Ginger's example, and would walk back and forth so that the dress under consideration could be studied in motion from all angles—especially from the rear—there would be fewer errors made in selecting clothes.

More wardrobe hits would be scored if women would watch for these points of rear-view behavior. One is a waistline lower in the back than the front.

DIETRICH: Posing pays.

Another is a skirt that could be lifted at the belt to prevent buckling or strategic fullness derived from pleats, bustle, peplum, or tunic. Still another is a larger dress size that could be taken up—not let out—if a skirt doesn't fit.

Laraine Day, another shining example of perfection, hit upon the idea for the hair-do she wears

Aid Society Has Informal Session

Ten members of the Lutheran Ladies Aid society met yesterday afternoon in the church annex, with Mrs. Ellsworth Kruschke and her small daughter as visitors.

After a short business meeting the women worked on afghans for McCaw hospital.

Mrs. Ed Brown was the hostess and refreshments were served at a table decorated with arrangements of tulips and narcissus.

In "Those Enduring Young Charms" by tumbling her hair in front of a mirror. The new style is a feather-cut bob, which Laraine hit upon by pushing her hair up to form an upflung frame. It promised more history, so off she went to have it cut, curled and flipped up. To keep it shining, says Renie, she's willing to spend time in front of her mirror brushing it ten minutes twice a day, which keeps curls bouncy. She has frequent permanents and also oil shampoos to keep luster heightened.
