Proof of Solomon's Shortcomings As Ruler Found in Son's Career

Scripture: I Kings 12-22; II Kings 1-10; 15; 17; 6-8

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
 In our boyhood we used to be told that Solomon was "the wisest man who ever lived." We read about the famous scene upon which a part of that great tradition of his wisdom is based—the scene described in I Kings 4:16-28—in which two women at warfare over a child which each claimed came to him for judgment. When Solomon called for a sword, ordering to split the child in two, he quickly discovered the true mother, who would rather give up her babe than have it killed. Also, in the dream in which Solomon was asked by the Lord to name whatever he desired, he asked above all for "an understanding heart."
 Yet despite all his glory, and his greatness as the builder of the Temple, Solomon did not prove a wise ruler; or he departed from his early wisdom and consecration to holy purposes. The proof of this? It was found almost immediately upon his death, when the people came to Rehoboam, his son, to ask that their burdens be made lighter.

 People will stand for a great deal if an air of splendor is cast around their labors and sacrifices, or if a ruler is popular. But when personal loyalty has passed, and all that they have endured becomes apparent, realism triumphs over illusions of grandeur. More over a change in government has always been an appropriate occasion for complaints and hopes of something better.
 Whatever Rehoboam had inherited from his father, he had not inherited even a small part of Solomon's wisdom. He sought two sorts of counsel—from older men, of mature judgment, and from young men, like himself. The older men advised him to begin his reign auspiciously by granting the people's petition and lightening their burdens. But he took the advice of the young men; and he was also particularly nasty about it. He'd show them who was king. Instead of lightening their burdens, he'd make them a great deal heavier. "My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke; my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions."
 Rehoboam could hardly have asked more plainly for trouble; and he got it. Jeroboam, an outlaw who had fled to Egypt in Solomon's time, returned from Egypt, led a successful revolt of 10 tribes, and henceforth there were two kingdoms in the Israel that had been united under David and Solomon.
 And on that day of division was the beginning of the downfall of both kingdoms. For with the political disruption began a moral and spiritual decline as well. Jeroboam could lead a successful revolution, but he couldn't rule his own spirit, or guide his people wisely. He turned to ways of idolatry; he did evil in the sight of God; and he started the course that ended in the destruction of the northern kingdom, when it fell to Assyria in 722 B. C. That kingdom, called variously "Samaria," and the "kingdom of Israel," was never restored. Its inhabitants were enslaved and dispersed, and became the so-called "lost ten tribes."

Canning Sugar Allotment Will Begin Tuesday

 ton is president of that organization, and for the following Monday a group will be named by Mrs. Ernest Root, president of the auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

Miss Nolle Grimmett, clerk of the ration board, announced that not enough blanks have been received at the office to place them in the grocery stores as was done last year, though some have been sent to outlying communities.

The 1945 sugar supply is lower than for several years, only 700,000 tons of sugar are available for home canning in the United States, which will allow a maximum of 15 pounds per person but not more than 120 pounds to one family.

Coupons may be issued directly to the applicant or mailed to him. To apply for canning sugar by mail, the applicant first writes for the blank form. No. 13 stamp is to be pinned or stapled, not pasted, to the filled out form and mailed to the office. Special care should be taken, Miss Grimmett said, to follow instructions and avoid delay in issuance of the sugar allotments.

High School Band Brings Music Week To Close With Fine Concert Program

A small audience that braved threatening weather to hear the final program of national music week, a concert by the La Grande high school band last night in the school auditorium, was highly repaid, and was entertained with a program of unusual work.

Aside from the usual high standard of excellence of their performance, the band members, the entire band, the swing group (which will play for a public dance at 9 o'clock this evening in Zuber hall), the girls' sextet, and the capella choir, gave a performance that was a tribute to the director, Leroy Darling, who trained the young musicians and who was making his final concert appearance with the organization, as he will leave the La Grande schools at the end of the current year.

One of the highlights of the concert was a novelty presentation of the "blues" number "Stormy Weather." With the entire band participating the number was given added interest by simulating lightning, flashed on stage while the entire house was blacked out.

On behalf of the choir, Patty Jacobson presented Darling with a silver identification bracelet, and for the band, Bernella Brynstad presented a Masonic ring. Darling paid a verbal tribute to Mrs. A. L. Richardson, national music week chairman for the Neighborhood club, who, he said, has been an important figure in the advancement of music in the community.—A. J. W.

One Simple Dark Dress Plus Many Accessories Equals Unlimited Chic

By ALICIA HART
 NEA Staff Writer
 From a single investment you can keep adding up style dividends if the new dress that you buy is simple and dark. The simpler it is—stripped bera of cluttering details—the smarter it will look this year, the less dated next and the year after; the more accessory changes you can ring in on it to give you wardrobe variety.

In "best-dressed" Hollywood, where this idea is backed up 100 per cent, the basic wardrobe dress is a plain black job. On this simple theme one best-dresser—Lucille ("Ziegfeld Follies") Bremer—plays endless variations with accessories. One time she wears a bright hat, another time a flashing bag, and for a change she says she hitches a string of glitter to her waist or spills a foam of lace from her neck. Slickest trick to change the identity of her dress, says Lucille, is to cover the upper half with a bright print jacket.

Warning Voiced on Park Vandalism

A warning that visitors at Riverside park must not pick the flowers or break limbs from trees or shrubs was voiced today by the caretaker, L. C. Kennedy.

He said many of the plants have been damaged, principally by unattended children, and that flowers have been pulled and then thrown about the grounds. He said repetition of this offense will bring prosecution of the vandals.
 Kennedy also urged that parents do not permit small children to go to the park unattended, and that close supervision be exercised over them while they are in the park to eliminate the danger that some of the smaller youngsters may fall into the river.
