Butler Gets Labor Post
Richard Austen Butler, former minister of education was named to succeed Bevin as minister of labor.

Churchill's chief boost was for Brendan Bracken, who moved up from minister of information to first lord of the admiralty, replacing A. V. Alexander.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, who has been on the back benches since he quit the war office in 1940, re-emerged to become minister of national insurance. Harold MacMillan, who is British minister resident at allied headquarters in Algiers figured in the dealings with Darlan, became minister of air, replacing Sir Archibald Sinclair.

Churchill apparently had abolished his "war cabinet" of eight key ministers. His announcement made no mention of any such inner circle in the cabinet. It appeared he intended to revert to the pre-war practice of a full cabinet for all occasions.

President Shifts Duties To Aides

WASHINGTON, May 16 (UP)—President Truman, to ease the increasingly heavy burden of war duties on his office, today transferred by executive order most of his powers with respect to court martial cases to the secretary of war and navy.

The president's executive order gave the secretary of war and navy his powers of confirmation and commutation in all cases except those involving the death penalty.

The Chinese write their word for zebra in a combination of symbols meaning flower, stripe, and horse, respectively.

Churchill Plots Big Three Meeting On Election Eve

the allied control commission for Germany.

Churchill described President Truman as "the successor to Mr. Roosevelt with whom I have constant and cordial relations."

Names Interim Cabinet
Only last night, Churchill announced a caretaker cabinet that will govern Britain with him pending the general election.

So far the liberals have failed to name anybody to oppose Churchill, but nominations are open until June 25th.

Despite the "caretaker" tag put on the cabinet named last night, observers feel most of the appointments will stick if Churchill wins his fight for reelection.

The new ministers will receive their seals of office Monday from King George VI.

When common meets Tuesday, he resigned liberals of the cabinet—such political stalwarts as former deputy prime minister Clement Attlee, ex-labor minister Ernest Bevin, and others—will take their benches across the hall as opposition to the government.
