Workers Await Housing

The turnover rate hasn't increased since V-E day. But employers are scratching harder to find replacements. Help wanted signs still appear in factory and store windows. Thousands of new war housing units are under construction, and the waiting list is eight weeks' long at the old ones.

War plant officials believe a large percentage of unemployed California and Oregon workers can be absorbed in the Seattle-Tacoma-Bremerton area. Of the 20,000 needed workers, 12,507 are wanted for ship repair and construction, and the quota may boom to 18,000. The remainder represents needs in aircraft industries, army-navy installations and essential civilian businesses.

Ship repair yards have calls out for 9,146 laborers. More than 5,000 are needed at the Bremerton navy yard alone, where 30,000 workers already are employed.

Seattle shipbuilders weren't hit by cuts on new tonnage
