At lower left, she finds it hard to decide whether it should be flowered, feathered or lacy. The transformation from khaki to chic bl ack made, Miss Shirley is seen (right) ready to step out for a big evening.

NEW YORK — An army hitch of 28 months has given Sgt. Shirley Angel of New York City, first WAC discharged under the point system, a new appreciation for late morning pillow-pounding, tub baths, milk shakes, high heel shoes and all the feminine frills, especially hats.

Back home from Italy, where she was secretary to the commanding general in the Mediterranean Air Transport Service, this girl vet of World War II expects to catch up on her rest before she starts looking for another secretarial job. This time, she hopes it will be combined with traveling.

Her WAC's tour of the world from Daytona Beach, Fla., to Louisiana, from Massachusetts to Virginia, from port to embarkation to Oran, thence to Algiers and Naples, has given Shirley an appetite for traveling which she hopes a new civilian job will continue to satisfy. Out of the army ahead of her boy friend, this former Hunter college student and civil service employe of the army air force, stationed at Marana Field, near Tucson, Ariz., is making no further plans until her Johnny comes marching home.

Civilian First Class
In the meantime, Shirley is lugging for civilian first class by sleeping as late as an indulgent family will tolerate—nicest thing about it, she says, is knowing that she'll get breakfast no matter what the hour — and renewing her acquaintance with favorite foods, Broadway shows, beauty shops, long soaks in a bath tub, and civilian duds which she finds both strange and exciting.

Her wardrobe introduction back to femininity was turned into a gala event by the gift of an outfit made by Jay Thorpe, swank New York store. Accompanying Shirley on this expedition, I had the pleasure of witnessing the transformation of the first GI Jill into a civilian glamor gal.

Choice of a hat was tough — there were so many flowery fantasies and veil-swathed concoctions from which to pick—but finally a big black peek-a-boo straw won the honor of replacing the jaunty little overseas cap. The dress to which khaki garb gave way was a short-sleeved, apron-ruffled frock, ensembled with long arm-climbing gloves, choker necklace and flashing earrings. Army brogans were kicked off for open-toed, ankle-strapped shoes with spike heels.

When tagged out, Shirley gazed at herself from every angle in the mirror, obviously finding it hard to recognize the girl she saw.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus the Teacher, Guide and Savior Had Sublime Courage, Graciousness

Scripture: The Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John; with Isaiah 61:1-9

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
The life of Jesus was a ministry. He said concerning Himself: "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many."

In one aspect of that life it might be summed up in the saying, "He that was not only a doer of good, a minister bringing help, and comfort, and blessing as He went about Galilee and Judea. He was a teacher, and a guide, and a Savior. His ministry was to go far beyond His earthly life. It was everlasting in its nature, and boundless in its outreach.

The significance of Jesus was the Gospel that He brought to men. We call Christian minister today "minister of the Gospel," and happy is the church and community that has as its religious leader a true minister of the Gospel, and not just a useful community chore-boy, as I once heard one minister described! Except for those who prefigured His coming, Jesus was the first, and the supreme, Minister of the Gospel.

He brought the news of God's grace to men, and of that grace there is no limitation, in its availability, and in its effectiveness. It is of this gospel of the grace of God that the hymn-writer has written:

"Its streams the whole creation reach,
So plenteous is the store;
Enough for all, enough for each;
Enough forevermore."

But the Gospel was not only a message, a teaching; it was Jesus Himself. He did not just tell men of the grace of God; He lived it. And that ministry that dealt with the sublime, and all that was noble and greatest, was great in all the little things. He took the children up in His arms and blessed them, when the disciples would have sent them and their mothers away; He noticed the widow giving her mite in the Temple, and He commended her above all the wealthy givers; He washed the disciples' feet, that He might enforce His lesson concerning humility and service; and the richest and deepest of his teaching He gave to a woman whom He met at a well, a stranger, of a people with whom the Jews had no dealings. Well might the disciples marvel, when they came from the city and found Him thus conversing, for apart from the woman being a Samaritan, it was against all the conventions of the time for a man thus to be publicly conversing with a woman.

He dared, even in the face of His critics, to receive sinners and eat with them. His courage was as sublime as His faith and His graciousness. He who warned His disciples to "beware of men" had no fear of men, or of what men might do to Him. He cared only about doing His Father's will, and about finishing the work that the Father had given Him to do.

MEMO-TO ADVERTISERS

How you can be in a lot of places . . . at one time

If you could make regular, personal calls on your best customers and prospects and talk to them about your merchandise and service, that would be the most effective kind of selling.

Of course that is not possible but you can give a friendly, newsy talk about your business to the best families in our community through the advertising columns of this newspaper. You can describe your merchandise or service, quote prices and sell to a lot of people at one time.

But you wouldn't make a lot of personal calls at random, would you? It's just as important that you know where your advertising goes. That's the reason this newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, so we can give you audited facts and figures about our circulation—where, how much, how obtained, how much people pay for this paper and other essential information that you should know and have a right to know when you make an investment in advertising.

The Bureau is a cooperative association of 2000 publishers, advertising agencies and advertisers in the United States and Canada. Organized in 1914, its purpose is to furnish advertisers with verified information about the circulation of its publisher members.

The Bureau maintains a large staff of trained auditors who make an annual audit of the circulation records of each A.B.C. publication. With the facts thus obtained, published in A.B.C. reports, it becomes possible for advertisers to select media and buy space on the basis of known and verified circulation values.
