

Wherry Predicts Less Meat For Next Year

By ANN HICKS
WASHINGTON, July 31 (UP)—Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry, R., Neb., predicted today there will be even less meat for civilians next year than there is now. He based his statement on two factors—a short corn crop and no appreciable reduction in the size of the armed forces.

Wherry told reporters the lower red point values for certain cuts of meat in August do not necessarily mean there is "really" more meat. He explained a seasonal increase is to be expected at this time of year and better distribution also had helped.

Testify
Wherry is a member of the senate small business subcommittee which is conducting an investigation into the "food side" of redeployment.

Army and navy officials were summoned to testify today on their food needs for the Pacific war as well as the probable effects of redeployment move on western restaurants.

Leon Bosch, assistant director of the OPA food rationing division, said yesterday the army and OPA already were conferring on the "intensified" problems faced by western eating places.

Two Problems
Bosch said western restaurants were confronted with two problems. The first is finding room enough to accommodate the jam of business. The second may be that of obtaining enough food.

One troop train of soldiers can pretty well "clean out" a small town during a two-hour stop, he explained.

The subcommittee heard evidence that despite an over-abundance of meat in some western localities, restaurants are beginning to close because they haven't enough points.

Army Blamed For Many Shortages

WASHINGTON, July 31 (UP)—Armed forces were blamed by a former government official today for the slowness with which civilians are getting many needed items such as electric irons, refrigerators and even caskets.

The accusation was made by Lester P. Doidge, a former war production board official. He resigned July 1 as head of the consumers' durable goods branch of the office of civilian requirements.

Doidge said "unnecessary" demands by the army and navy officials on the requirements committee blocked efforts of high WPB officials to hasten reconversion.

Midwest Citizens Weary of Fried Chicken, Gravy

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
WASHINGTON, July 31 (UP)—Wheat harvesters of the OWI's great American desert won't eat lettuce and tomato sandwiches. That's official. They also are growing weary of fried chicken with gravy. That's official, too.

The mayor of Grand Island, Neb., joined 27 restaurant owners there in sending to the senate a resolution saying they'd have to lose shop unless they got some red point relief by Aug. 1.

The small business committee of the senate rushed by plane to Grand Island its investigator, Mrs. Catherine Guyon, to see what was irking the Nebraska restaurateurs.

The trouble seemed to be there wasn't anything to eat in Grand Island except chicken, stewed, boiled, roasted and especially, fried. The citizens wanted meat.

She added in Grand Island nobody gets butter, except on his waffles and pancakes.

"You've led the committee to believe this town is bursting at the seams with chicken," commented Sen. Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, "but in a few months there won't be any chicken."

"That's right," said Mrs. Guyon. "There's just a surplus of chicken now. And I can say the working man of Nebraska is not satisfied with a tomato and lettuce sandwich."

Sugarless Recipes Compiled in Book

Recipes are now being compiled at the office of Miss Doris McWhorter, Union county home demonstration agent, for publication in a booklet of sugar-saving and sugar-less recipes from Union county, it was announced today.

Home makers are asked to cooperate by sending in favored sugar-saving recipes, along with their names and addresses, which will appear with the recipes in the booklet. "The sooner the recipes are received," Miss McWhorter announced, "the sooner the booklet will be published."

Proposals For New Naval Academy Gets Attention

Vincons of Naval Affairs Group Opposed

WASHINGTON, July 31 (UP)—Proposal to found a second naval academy on the Pacific coast has gained considerable attention as the result of a controversy over a navy plan to annex historic St. Johns' college in Maryland for an expansion of Annapolis.

Opponents to navy purchase of St. Johns' argue postwar military needs probably will call for an expansion greater than would be possible on the Maryland campus.

Morse For It
Exponents of this view include several congressmen, authors of bills to create a west coast academy. Sens. Warren Magnuson, D., Wash.; Hugh Mitchell, D., Wash.; Wayne Morse, R., Ore., and Sheridan Downey, D., Calif., and Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of the Washington Post.

"The navy has sometimes shown a lack of imagination," Meyer said in a signed, front-page editorial yesterday. "Let it not delay in becoming Pacific-minded. Let it have a naval academy on San Francisco bay."

Agreed
In a Sunday editorial, Meyer said he would not press the claim of San Francisco, presented by its mayor, Roger Lapham against any other coast city.

The senators were agreed they would like to see a second Annapolis on the Pacific coast. They tended to doubt, however, that the navy would recede from its opposition to establishment of a branch academy.

The opposition has an adamant spokesman in Carl Vinson, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs which would consider any bill to create a west coast academy.

Morse Fires Parting Broadside at OPA

WASHINGTON, July 31 (UP)—Sen. Wayne Morse, R., Ore., left the capital for his home state today after aiming a parting shot in his campaign to lift the ration points on Oregon lamb.

The senator, who has made daily appeals from the senate floor, asked Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson to use his "good offices" to "prevent further wastage of lamb meat."

"I feel the responsibility now rests with you and the OPA for any continuation of further losses to Oregon lamb producers and for wastage of lamb meat growing out of a failure . . . To put our recommendations into full force and effect," Morse wrote Anderson.

Pressure Cookers Available at Office

Two pressure cookers are now available at the Union county home demonstration agent's office, and two more are expected to arrive within a week, it was announced today. Persons interested in buying pressure cookers should contact the office immediately.

Portable sewing machine and a pair of pinking shears are also available, it was announced, and may be borrowed for home use for periods lasting not longer than a week.

Build Vitality To Develop Charm

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

You can be the girl you envy who makes an arresting entrance and starts charming a roomful of people in what seems to be one motion.

You can, if like the little dynamo described, you have normal physical vigor. But to make it throw off such electrical sparks, vitality needs to be refueled by means of daily exercise, enough sleep, the right kind of food, and lively interests.

The livelier the interests, the more alive a person seems to be, as witness any woman you know who throws herself wholeheartedly into whatever she happens to be doing. That woman moves with vigor, talks with animation, and is apt to act with dynamic power. All of this means aliveness, which invariably holds more attractions for an audience than apathy or bored indifference.

Two important new railroad travel restrictions have been ordered by the U. S. Office of Defense Transportation.

Under O. D. T. Order #52, you cannot reserve a train berth or seat more than five days in advance.

Under O. D. T. Order #53, all Pullman sleeping cars operating for 450 miles or less have been discontinued.

While these regulations will cause some inconvenience, we feel sure everyone will approve the effort to serve better the men from overseas to whom we owe so much. We know that the families of boys who are coming home will have no question as to the merits of the orders.

As far as Southern Pacific is concerned, our guiding principle has been "the military comes first," and we are cooperating one hundred percent in carrying out the O. D. T. orders—in letter, and in spirit.

With nearly twenty thousand S. P. men and women in the armed forces, we, too, have a real and personal interest in the welfare and comfort of service men and women.

How you are affected by new O. D. T. Travel Rules

These two orders apply to all railroads. Admittedly, they are drastic—but vitally necessary. Additional sleeping cars must be made available for veterans returning from Europe for discharge or for redeployment to the Pacific.
