

'Rainbow Island' Coming With Eddie Bracken, Lamour

The public still dictates to Hollywood, apparently, for Dorothy Lamour is back in the South Seas in her newest sarong in Paramount's newest musical, "Rainbow Island," which critics hail as the most lush and lovely of any of the sarong-stress' tropical escapades.

Opening Thursday at the Liberty theater, "Rainbow Island," is a palmy, balmy chunk of entertainment filled with color, music and beautiful sarongals. Costarring with Miss Lamour are Eddie Bracken and Gil Lamb, who, as ship-wrecked merchant seamen in the south Pacific come upon this island paradise with another member of their torpedoed ship, Barry Sullivan.

Use of Vitamin C To Hold Color Of Canned Peaches

Keeping peaches from darkening in canning or freezing has always been a problem states Miss Doris McWhorter, home demonstration agent for Union county.

To hold the color and flavor in either home canned or frozen peaches, Miss McWhorter suggests the use of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) as an anti-darkening agent. Experiments have shown that air causes the darkening of peaches. Vitamin C acts against oxygen to prevent the change in color and flavor of the fruit at the top of the jar where it is most exposed to air.

Vitamin C is easily obtained at the drugstore. The tablet form is suggested in canning: 1 1/4 tablets of 100 mg., 2 1/2 tablets of 50 mg., or 5 tablets of 25 mg. potency for each pint jar of peaches. The powder form is easily used in freezing.

In freezing, if a less expensive treatment is preferred, the peeled or sliced peaches may be dipped in a citric acid solution for one minute using 1/4 teaspoon of citric acid crystals for each quart of water. The peaches are then drained and packed in a container with chilled syrup for freezing. The darkening of peaches does not necessarily indicate spoilage although often the darkening causes the development of undesirable and off flavors, adds Miss McWhorter.

Boilermakers Give Women Fond Goodby

SEATTLE, Aug. 29 (UP)—The Seattle Boilermakers union, the city's largest shipyard faction, tonight paid parting praise to wartime efforts of women shipbuilders.

"You are being benched," an editorial in the union's weekly said. "You have done more than your part. From now on let the male of the species do the work—they don't know any better."

Last of the women shipyard workers will leave their jobs at the end of the week.

Dates Set to Mail Christmas Parcels

Sept. 15 to Oct. 15 are the dates for mailing Christmas packages overseas to service men and women without a request.

From many letters of servicemen, it is known that foods sealed in tin cans such as firm cookies, hard candy, fudge, fruit cake, nuts, and cheese reach their destination months later in excellent condition.

Tins of food not commercially sealed require the United States department of agriculture label to meet the postal requirements for acceptance of parcel post rates regardless of censorship.

The tin can sealing service will still be available for the Christmas mailing season at the home demonstration agent's office in La Grande. No. 2 1/2 tin cans are inspected, sealed, and labeled at the minimum cost of 5 cents a can from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday and 8 a. m. to noon Saturday.

Uses of Meats, Lard Stressed in New Pamphlet

"Meat on the Menu," booklets stressing the use of meat and lard for more satisfying meals, are now available in limited quantities at the home demonstration agent's office, it was announced today.

The booklets feature the use of lard in cakes and cookies instead of hard-to-get shortening, and also have charts showing wholesale and retail cuts of beef, veal, pork, and lamb. They also have proper cooking and preparation methods for roasting, broiling, baking, frying, braising and simmering.

The booklets may be obtained by writing to or calling at the home demonstration agent's office in the postoffice building.

Jeanne Meserve Joins Red Cross National Staff

Miss Jeanne V. Meserve, former La Grande resident, now of Portland, has joined the national staff of the American Red Cross as a hospital worker, and has been assigned to the ASF regional hospital at Fort Ord, Calif., according to a letter received today by Mrs. John Miller from Verne Simmons, Pacific area manager of the Red Cross.

Miss Meserve recently completed several weeks of specialized training in Washington, D. C. In her new assignment she will assist professional social case workers in carrying out the Red Cross program of counseling emergency financial aid, and communications with patients' families through chapters.

Miss Meserve attended Eastern Oregon college of education, where she was graduated from the three-year teachers' training course. While here, she was a member of Phi Beta Sigma and Sock and Buskin, honorary societies. She then attended the University of Washington, where she received her bachelor of arts degree in education.

Prior to joining the Red Cross staff, Miss Meserve taught two years in Portland. During this time she was a Red Cross volunteer nurses aide, and was associated with the Travelers' Aid society, both as a volunteer and as a staff worker.
